THE SMARTEST FASHIONS OF WELL-DRESSED FOLK.

THE WEDDING DAY

DEAR MADGE: Doesn't it always make you think of YOUR great-day every time you go to a wedding? It does me.

Yesterday Mary Sinclair was married to Bob Kennedy, and, as you know, I was matron of honor. A prettier bride I never saw. She was in white satin, of course; a trained princess gown, with a high, shield-shaped bib, embroidered in a design which went beautifully with the duchess lace bodice. Above this bib was a further applique of Irish crochet in jabot shape, extending to the round neck. The lace sleeves fell in kimono effect over undersleeves of tucked satin.

Finally, her veil: point lace (old Madam Sinclair's), fastened in cap effect by a wreath of orange-blossoms. Wasn't that a pretty dish to set before a bridegroom?

Little Peggy Kinnerley was flower girl, all in sky-blue marquisette; a little Kate Greenaway frock with a girdle of double shirring, and turndown collar and deep cuffs of white chiffon embroidered in pink, with pink-bell tassels. In front a pink sash reached to the bottom of the skirt.

The mushroom hat worn with this was of tucked blue marquisette over white messaline sewed to a wire frame, with a ruff of accordion-pleated white chiffon edged with a wreath of pink silk rosebuds, and trimmed with a flat pink bow at the right side.

Mrs. Sinclair was in lavender chiffon over plum-colored satin; a gown made in coat effect. The tunic, half-length behind but hardly more than a peplum in front, was of the chiffon, light enough to show the heavy dark plum embroidery on the satin beneath. It was deeply fringed in silk. The bodice was folded, with a band of white lace like a military sash crossing it from the left shoulder, and was embroidered all over under the chiffon.

Cuffs of satin and a white chiffon yoke completed the gown, with which she wore a black picture hat with a lavender willow plume across the front.

And I? This was a chiffon-and-marquisette occasion (as, indeed, all this season is, little sister!), and I wore embroidered rose-pink marquisette over deeper rose messaline. The tunic is rather short, showing the plain silk skirt under it; and the girdle is of the messaline also, and rather wide, giving a short-waisted effect. The blouse is cut so that the front and back and the under part of the sleeves are of the marquisette over messaline, this portion being outlined in pink silk rosebuds in the deeper shade; and then the upper side of the sleeves (kimono, of course) and the rounded yoke are of loosely gathered white chiffon.

Talk about a rose in a garden of roses! You should have seen your modes! Sister! Especially with my simple and stunning hat: a big, helmet-shaped leghorn, with a rose-colored messaline bow in the back and a single pink rose in front.

Write me soon, sister mine.

Lovingly yours, ELEANOR.

ROBS TO LIVE

LIFE OF SQUIRE

Arrest of Young Clerk Reveals Remarkable Dual Life.

(By PAUL VILLERS.)

PARIS, June 3.—A unique case of a Lord Bantel has been brought to light by the arrest of a young clerk employed in a local department store. For years he has maintained a substantial country home outside of this city, given costly entertainments and played first citizen of the place, maintaining a fire department and opened bank accounts for children to encourage thrift.

The unique person is alleged to have robbed his employers in order to live the life of a country squire. Grasset-Legarde was employed in one of the great stores, and is accused of having stolen $250,000 by collecting outstanding accounts.

Although earning only $15 a week, Grasset-Legarde lived a life of luxury. Every week-end he journeyed to his estate, where he gave hunting parties. He did everything in style and was noted for his charity. He presented saving bank books annually to the best school children, and subsidized the village fire campaign.

Legarde protests that his salary was inadequate for the important work entrusted to him, and says that as he had the chance of procuring money he availed himself of it.

LEAVES HAREM LIFE.

Princess Zahia Hanum, cousin of the Khedive of Egypt, recently tore away from harem life and went on the Continental stage. She is the first Oriental royal lady to forsake harem life, and to break the fetters of immemorial custom for the footlights in this city. Princess Zahia did it just to spite her family. Since the day she donned the virtual shroud of the harem Princess, dismissed her second husband, a Turkish general, by way of the divorce court, and defied the traditions of the Egyptian Royalty. She has been an outcast from her native land. The action which enraged Mohammedans most was that Princess Zahia should dare to take to herself the right to divorce her husband, this privilege under the Mohammedan code being one for men only. Her father was known during his lifetime as "The Father of Treasures." Her first husband, cousin, died, and then her father. With the fortune left to her the Princess traveled. Then followed the erasure of her name from the Khedival family-tree.

WATCHES ANARCHISTS.

One of the most annoyed men here is M. Guichard, head of the department which drew the sword for Italy. Throughout the second of those of the chief of the prisons department at that ministry, and the third on M. Monis. The turn of the prefect of police was to come afterwards, followed by that of the prefect of the Seine, then the prefect of the Seine, as far as possible to the apartments occupied by the president of the council and by the officials referred to.

The names of the anarchists chosen to do the dastardly work were known, and the photos were posted in all the police stations. The newspapers got hold of the information and published it. M. Guichard is so annoyed because the anarchists have thus been named.

Meanwhile the threatened personages and buildings are being closely guarded. The first attempt was to have been made on the apartments of M. Erriman, the director of the department of the interior, the second on those of the chief of the prisons department at that ministry, and the third on M. Monis. The turn of the prefect of police was to come afterwards, followed by that of the prefect of the Seine, then the prefect of the Seine, as far as possible to the apartments occupied by the president of the council and by the officials referred to.

BANKER SOUGHT.

It has been discovered that the fugitive banker who is "wanted" by the police for defrauding thousands of people by promising them 1 per cent per day on their money and thirty-six interest-free advances. He is said to have netted large sums of money under the name of Rivier by his latest scheme, but before this the police assert that he was successful in getting people to invest in his scheme.

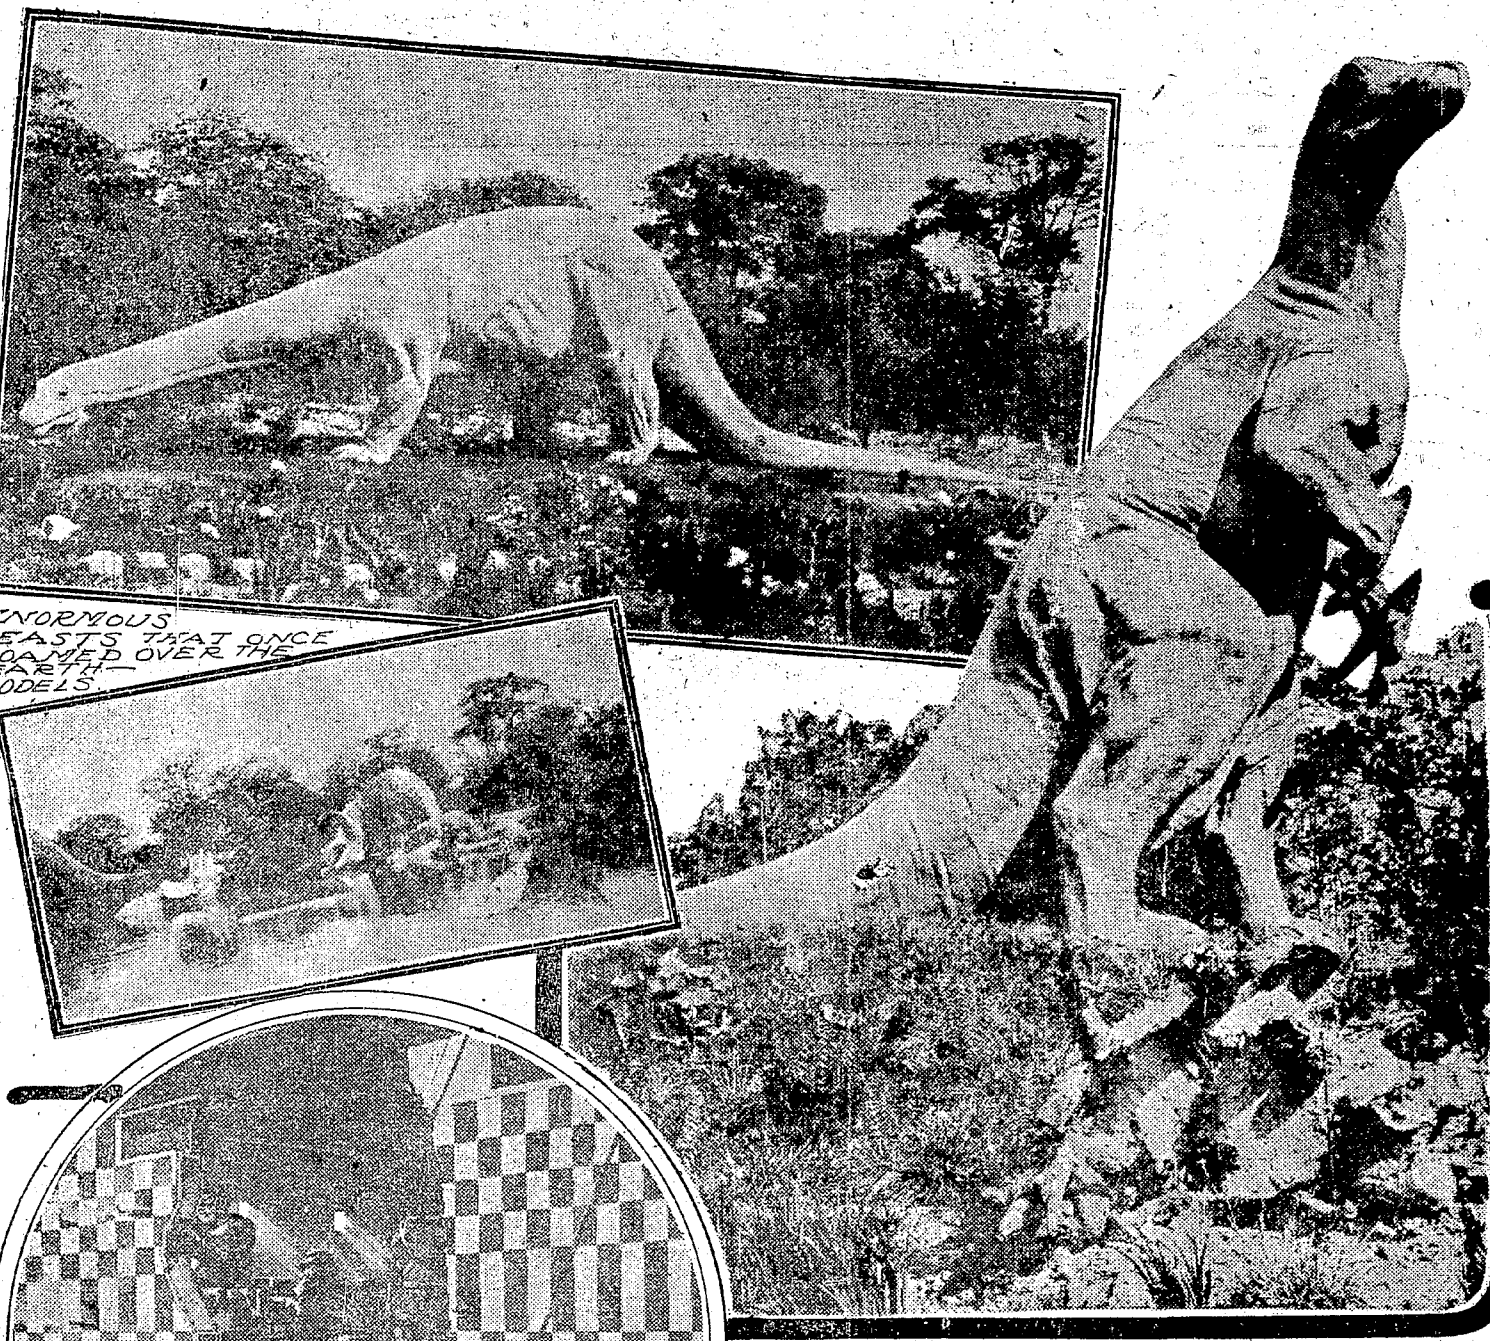

M. Bourdeaux, who is inquiring into the affairs of Rivier, has established that the banker has already been in the hands of justice under various names. While examining the dossier of an action previously instituted against a shady company known as the "Omnium General de France," the magistrate noticed that the handwriting in the letters of the manager, Louis Servat, who had been sentenced to three years imprisonment, resembled that of Rivier. He concluded that Servat and Rivier were one and the same person. But Servat, any more than Rivier, is not regarded as the real name of the missing banker. The affairs of the "Omnium General de France" attracted the attention of a magistrate at Lyons. The latter thought he recognized in Rivier an old client of his known as Cuvillier, who was sentenced in 1908 in connection with an enterprise known as the "fourth" of the "Omnium General de France." Cuvillier issued circulars to the effect that he had made arrangements with shipowners for tours round the world at the cost of 25 cents a day.

KEEPS RECORD OF ALL HIS BURGLARIES

PARIS, June 3.—A returned convict who has arrested in Paris, informed the police that a large quantity of linen found in his room had been given to him by Joseph Chicot in payment of a debt. The police went to Chicot's house and found, in his absence, an immense store of linen, silver, clocks, watches and $15,000 in gold and silver.

Chicot was arrested and confessed with the utmost calm that he took up burglary as a business, and that he had 1500 burglaries to his account. He handed the police a neatly written record of these burglaries, and pointed out that the estimated value of the stolen goods was in each case noted against the address and the date.

Queen Alexandra's Health Is Cause of Great Anxiety

(By LADY MANWARRING.)

NEW YORK, June 3.—The past month has been a season of sadness for Queen Alexandra and the beloved consort of the late King Edward has shown the strain. Her Majesty's health has been feeble, so feeble in fact that fears are still felt that there may be a collapse which will mar, if not cause a postponement of the coronation exercises.

There is a pathetic coincidence in the arrival of Her Majesty from her Mediterranean tour. It was timed almost to a day to the time a year ago when the royal yacht, preceded by two destroyers at frantic speed, was plunging its way into Dover harbor bearing Her Majesty to the bedside of her dying consort. Up till then no man outside Buckingham Palace knew what drama was being enacted within. But King Edward was not at Victoria to greet his consort, and half an hour later came the fatal bullet announcing that "His Majesty's symptoms cause some anxiety." In a flash the truth was out. It only remained for it to be conveyed with all speed to the world at large. The result was magical. Utter strangers stopped in the street to discuss the thunderbolt. The quips and cranks of comedies, the tragic words of melodrama, went by unheeded inside the playhouses. At the close of each performance the national anthem was sung with such fervor as never was known before. As all the world knows within 24 hours of the first dire news being made known, the King lay dead. Now, a year later to the hour, almost to the minute, King Edward's widow returned from abroad, from Calais, and not only that but in both instances from Italy. There is, in fact, but a solitary flag in a tale of adversity, complete and dramatic similarity. On that tragic May evening twelve months ago, Queen Alexandra was met at Victoria by her son, the Prince of Wales; this time she was met by her son, the King.

ORDERS CHANGES. Queen Alexandra has ordered some further changes to be made at Marlborough House. During her absence numerous personal belongings, to which she attached a sentimental interest on one ground and another, had been arranged according to a complete plan devised by herself. But Her Majesty was not altogether satisfied with the result, and so rearrangements are to be made. Queen Alexandra has the eye of an artist for things rare and costly, and she is very exacting with those around her as to the care of them. But she attaches even more value and importance to things that have been presented to her by friends and other things (very simple, many of them) which recall those who have passed away. The late King Edward deferred to his consort entirely in the disposition of such keepsakes, and often, at Buckingham Palace, some work of art almost invaluable would be removed from a place of honor in order to make room for something quite inexpensive, but of superior sentimental interest. Most of Queen Alexandra's personal belongings are now at Marlborough House.

BEUGM VISITS. The Begum of Bhopal, a rich, veiled Indian Princess, is now in England for the coronation. Her visit has many elements of mystery about it. For one thing this wealthy prin-

KILLS HERSELF AS HUSBAND DIES

CALCUTTA, June 3.—Despite the prohibition of the "suttee," a Dassi, aged twenty-two, has voluntarily burned herself to death fifteen minutes before her husband died.

On hearing from the doctor that her husband could not live, Subbalal, after praying before the family idol, put on her best ornaments and painted her forehead vermilion, and her feet with dye, in accordance with oldtime custom. She then sat by her husband's feet with a religious book in her hand, and a few minutes afterwards she set herself on fire. Before any one could reach her she dropped dead. Her remains were cremated the same evening with those of her husband.

KING GEORGE PLACES BAN ON ALL GIFTS

SIMLA, June 3.—It is officially stated that King George will not receive presents on the occasion of the coronation celebrations at Delhi. His Majesty has directed that addresses shall be confined to public and other important bodies submitted through the local governments, and that they shall not contain expressions of a political or controversial nature.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS FOR THE CORONATION

LONDON, June 3.—The total number of troops on duty in London on coronation day will be about 45,000 and on June 23, about 55,000. On each day every arm and branch of the service will be represented on the line of route, the basis of representation in the case of the special reserve and territorial force being twenty-six of all ranks from each regiment or battalion, with a proportionate representation from other arms and branches.

LOSS OF POPULATION WORRIES SCOTLAND

Emigration to Be Stopped by Edict of House of Lords; King's Clothes in Sweatshop

(By PAUL LAMBETH.)

LONDON, June 3.—Aside from the House of Lords question the draining of Scotland's population is causing more discussion than any other subject.

Whether the emigration can be stopped, and if so, how, is too big a question to discuss here. But we may take it that the thing will only be done by giving a Scotchman as much inducement to remain in his native country as he now receives to transfer his home to Canada, and the only way in which I should expect this to be done is by alterations in the land system. It is worthy of note in this connection that the House of Lords has been blocking land legislation in Scotland for five years.

The Lansdowne bill for the reform of the House of Lords sets up a second chamber, smaller by half than the present house, and representative of the nation. Of the 343 members, of which the new house is to be composed, it is suggested that 220 shall be presentment of the political opinion of the day; that is to say, 100 will be nominated by the crown on the advice of the ministry and 120 will be elected for districts by those numbers of the House of Commons whose constituencies are within the area. The third group consists of 100 to be elected by the existing House of Lords from such of their own numbers as have duly qualified by distinguished service to the state. The form of election is to be such that the minority shall be fully represented.

In this way it will be possible to retain in the House of Lords experienced administrators, retired cabinet ministers, colonial governors, heads of government departments and former members of the House of Commons. Except for this group, membership of the House of Lords is open to everyone. The present anomaly of political representation is corrected, and there is an equal chance for both parties in the new house. At present the House of Lords is a body of criticism, and the opinion is general that Lord Lansdowne has devised a solution of the reformed second house problem. But the radicals do not want a reformed second chamber in any practical sense of the word; those who do not frankly declare themselves one chamber men aim at practically the same object by a parliament bill which would do away with the House of Lords as it stands, and the upper house of all legislative powers.

TAILORS STRIKE.

A strike of tailors here has developed the fact that nearly all the clothes for the King's coronation are being made in sweatshops. Unless employers and workmen come to terms the whole of the high-class clothing trade will be disorganized and the necessary preparations which are being made for the coronation delayed. The Society of Tailors and Tailoresses are asking the employers to provide workshops for the whole of the employees before the strike begins, and that in the meantime, the employers shall pay workmen at the rate of one shilling in the pound on the earnings, but not less than three shillings per week, as wages for the period of the strike. The employers are asking the employers to provide workshops for the whole of the employees before the strike begins, and that in the meantime, the employers shall pay workmen at the rate of one shilling in the pound on the earnings, but not less than three shillings per week, as wages for the period of the strike.

China, a single west end tailor, provides workshop accommodations for all of his employees. A few keep a number of men, women and boys on their premises, but the bulk of the work is given out to small contractors who have their own workrooms and their own men.

CORONATION COMES HIGH. The sum of $925,000 has been set down in the civil service estimates to cover the cost of the coronation. The costliest coronation on record in English history is that of King George IV, $120,000, and that of the coronation of about $270,000 on the crown. The public grumbled, especially as they were excluded from the abbey. George III had been crowned at half the cost, and William IV, defeating pomp, had everything done at half the cost.

It has been stated in the press lately that in Queen Victoria's reign "divorced persons" were not permitted to appear at Court. This rule was enforced until about the middle of the seventies. Queen Victoria herself, after consultation with the late Lord Hartford, who was Lord Chamberlain, and the late Lord Sydney, that ladies who had divorced their husbands, their own conduct having been blameless should be allowed to come to drawing-rooms after making a special application for permission to attend.

Whenever a lady in this position desired to appear at court she was required to send in a report of the proceedings in her case which was submitted to Queen Victoria herself, and it was by no means a matter of course for the application to be granted. The wife of a very distinguished man, who has divorced her first husband, her own conduct having always been unimpeachable, had her application refused, to her intense and lasting disappointment.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS FOR THE CORONATION. The War Department is interested in the Mexican war cars. The cars are ordinary freight cars, painted checked fashion, that the loopholes may be as inviolable as possible. They are lined with half-inch steel, and between this and the walls and roof is a space filled with sand. Each car has twenty-nine loopholes on either side, and six at either end. The larger loopholes at the end are intended for quick-firing guns.

Here is a story from darkest England, from a section close by that where several millions will be spent upon the crowning of a little man and his wife. This story of life under the most wretched conditions was told at Clerkenwell Police Court, where Alfred Pank, and his wife were charged with neglecting their six children. An inspector of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children said he went to a washhouse in Little Clarendon-place—a room 8 feet by 4 feet, extremely damp, with a tap continually running, and a choked gully outside. The floor was strewn with clinders, and the place extremely dirty. There lived the prisoners and their six children, who were all bundled up together and all the children sick. A girl eight years of age, had no clothes except an old coat pinned round her. One child had a scalded foot, which had been neglected. The bedding was on the floor.

They had all been living in one room in another part of the house, but had been ejected and had since lived in the wash-house. The parents were fined and the children sent to institutions. At Coventry, Thomas Cowley was charged with being drunk and incapable. Cowley, a venerable looking laborer of no fixed abode, entered the dock wiping the perspiration from his forehead. He said he was "75" and his earthly race was nearing its close. The chief constable said he could not give the number of Cowley's convictions. It ran into hundreds. Up to 1900 he had 165 convictions. He has been convicted in nearly every town in England.

FEARS INVASION OF "YELLOW PERIL"

BERLIN, June 3.—"It is the conviction of every Russian officer on the Chinese frontier that the 'Yellow Peril' is no myth," said Lieut. F. Etherton, who has just arrived in this city. Lieut. Etherton is the Indian army officer who recently crossed Asia from India to Siberia accompanied by his Indian orderly. They have talked with many Russians from the Pamirs up to Siberia, and they were all of the same opinion," he added. "It will be a thing, they say, not of today or of tomorrow, but they feel assured that the yellow hordes will eventually sweep through Asiatic Russia into Europe. They have great respect for potential value of the Chinese as soldiers. Trained and properly led they believe them to be of the same standard as the Japanese."

"China," said Lieut. Etherton, in conclusion, "is desirous of consolidating her power, and since the Russo-Japanese war has kept a sense of responsibilities and the latent strength she possesses. She has realized that to get at the root of the evil she must purify the system of administration, corrupt and rotten to the core. This she is endeavoring to do, though time is needed to cleanse and remodel a system in vogue for centuries. With the formation of the new model troops, the management of the school and military line, and reforms in the administration, signs are apparent that China is desirous of developing her formidable resources."

"With a view to redressing aggression along the frontiers of the Empire, she is showing great energy and determination in reorganizing her military forces under foreign supervision, and this, coupled with the scheme to constitute a force of irregular cavalry from amongst the Mongol population may well give rise to perturbation in Russian circles. The awakening of China is at hand! She will be the predominant power of the East!"

PLAGUE OF DOGS SWEEPS SALONICA

Canines Are Taken From One Town to Bother Another.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 3.—It is not Constantinople alone which is afflicted with a plague of dogs. Salonica has recently decided that its streets also must be freed of the mongrel multitude that infests them.

To effect this, while avoiding breach of the Koran's prohibition of the unclean, the Salonica municipality is rounding up its dogs and sending them in batches to Catharina, a neighboring township farther along the coast. The dogs arrive by sea and are dumped on the beach. The Catharinians, with a snarling welcome from the canine clans which have preceded them, but they soon settle down and arrange respective spheres of action, as in their old home, to the mutual satisfaction of everyone but the Catharinians.

The latter find themselves the involuntary hosts of these hungry swarms of marauders, who break into hen-runs, steal all foodstuffs that are not adequately guarded, chase life, frequently display disagreeable inclination to attack the ample, calves of the Catharinian city fathers, whose physique, while of a tempting succulence, has not the activity which enables younger men to repel such onslaughts with a well-directed kick. Weary of being chased ignominiously through their own streets by the canine exiles of Salonica, the Catharinians have protested to the authorities of the latter city and have "forbidden" the free import of more dogs. The Catharinians, therefore, have posted a guard on the seaford and have announced that the landing of the next boatload of Salonica street dogs will be opposed by force.

REJECTION OF CONSTITUTION RENEWS GERMAN AGITATION

Alsace-Lorraine Matter May Start Another War in Reichstag for Compromise

(By MALCOLM CLARKE.)

BERLIN, June 3.—The rejection of the constitution for Alsace-Lorraine by the Reichstag has brought about the presentation of the measure to the national legislature. Already a number of meetings have been planned by the Alsace-Lorraine. The Emperor is said to favor a compromise.

Fritz Furse, who is ninety-eight years old, and his wife, who is aged ninety-one, celebrated the seventieth anniversary of their marriage at Potsdam, where they have lived in matrimonial harmony ever since. In all their married life they have had only one little dispute and that was on the question as to where his mother-in-law's picture should be hung. Mrs. Furse insisted that it was entitled to a place of honor in the parlor while he thought the dining room was good enough.

"Have your way, Madame," he said, "but I think the dining-room good enough."

When the marriage took place in 1841 Furse was a journeyman carpenter. He established his own business, prospered, and became the owner of property earning a handsome income. Both Furse and his wife are in excellent health.

The Kaiser, who takes a keen interest in the couple, as the oldest residents of Potsdam, sent the band of the Imperial Guard to play outside their house in honor of the occasion.

Prince Joachim, with all the officers of the regiment, called on the couple and offered their congratulations, as did the Mayor and Aldermen. The German newspapers commented on the anniversary festivities, including several great grandchildren.

MISS FAY TO WED.

Maude Fay, of San Francisco, a singer at the Munich Opera House, is preparing her trousseau for her marriage with Prince Ludwig, a son of Bavaria, grandson of the Prince Regent, and cousin of mad King Otto. As the king is childless, the right of succession rests in the Regent's line. Nor is this to be a morganatic marriage, for the young lady stands firmly for a regular marriage or none. As the Prince is desperately in love with the American singer, he has decided to renounce royal honors and kingly expectations so as to marry the girl of his heart. But the Emperor, who has done everything to dissuade the youth from marrying the young woman, but failed. The Prince first saw Miss Fay at the Grand Opera House in Munich.

A marriage has been arranged between Princess Barbara Reuss, daughter of Prince Henry Reuss, and Count Siegfried von Littlehau, a Protestant pastor, chaplain of the German Embassy at Constantinople. The announcement has caused much interest here as the marriage of a clergyman with a Princess belonging to a ruling house is without precedent. The pasteurist diplomat is thirty-three years old and his fiancée is twenty. Princess Barbara is a cousin of Queen Eleanor of Bulgaria.

ROMANCE ENDED.

A romance came to a happy conclusion when Major Enver Bey, the Turkish military attaché here wedded the daughter of Prince Sultan. The bride is an imperial princess, niece of the Sultan. Enver Bey is twenty-eight and his bride eighteen. A hero of the revolution, he helped, as leader of the Young Turks, to dethrone Abdul Hamid and to replace him by his brother, the present ruler. As a reward for his services in the overthrow of the old regime the imperial princess was bestowed upon Enver Bey in accordance with an old Turkish custom. He had more than his share of his engagement, seen his bride.

A young couple named Hellebrandt, who were married at Moscow, last Friday morning, were killed by lightning in the afternoon, just after leaving the house in which the wedding feast was held.

Euklidia Jondin, a Brazilian dwarf, three feet high, aged thirty-one, attempted to kill himself by jumping from his second floor flat in a fit of jealousy in regard to his dwarf wife, Frau Martha Schwarz, who is two feet eight inches high. Jondin married his little wife in Chicago six months ago and was jealous of the attentions paid to his tiny spouse. Jondin is an acrobat and his life is not thought to be endangered by his fall on the asphalt pavement.

STAYS IN SADDLE.

During the recent sham battle of Gravelotte the Emperor William remained in the saddle from midnight until half past six the next morning, personally directing a spectacular sham battle on the historic field. Fifty English staff officers were present. The field was brilliantly illuminated by searchlights. Eight divisions of the Sixteenth Army Corps, participated in the engagement, which was characterized by the utmost realism. All through the night the countryside for miles around rang with the din of battle, the roar of artillery and the crackle of rifle-fire.

The Kaiser left the field in the morning after having witnessed the commencement of a "deadly" artillery duel, which decided the issue of the battle at nine o'clock in the region between St. Privat and Saulny. It had been the Emperor's wish that the ships should participate in the fighting, but for some reason they did not ascend.

In the morning the Kaiser reviewed at Fort Lothringen the troops who had done battle during the night, and then delivered his usual "critique."

RECAPTURE "COUNT."

The notorious individual who long posed as General Count de Passy has been recaptured at Lebe, a beautifully situated place amid woods at the foot of the Spruce. After his recent escape from prison at Heilbronn he was altogether lost sight of till an innkeeper's daughter communicated her suspicions to the authorities that one of her father's guests greatly resembled the published portrait of the so-called count. The professional matrimonial swindler was taken when enjoying his siesta. In his brief days of freedom he had managed to become possessed of a considerable sum of money, and the police are said to have evidence of the six fresh victims.

Sixty thousand dogs Monday were enabled to enjoy freedom from muzzles owing to the dispensation of Herr Jagow, the police president, who by his bold stroke has won the heart of every woman who owns a dog. One enthusiast put on her Alderale coat on which was emblazoned in gold letters, Hurrah for Jagow! Long may he wave!

A deadly duel was fought outside of this city last Wednesday between two officers, Baron Oswald von Rietthoff and Herr von Gaffron. Gaffron fell mortally wounded and died a few hours later.

The quarrel arose out of a loan by Gaffron to Rietthoff. Rietthoff gave a note for $10,000. Gaffron declared that this was merely for form's sake, but the story got abroad, and Gaffron found himself boycotted. As a result he struck the Baron in a restaurant.

The conditions of the duel were pistols at fifteen paces, shots to continue till one of the duelists was put out of action.

The unusual spectacle of British soldiers walking about is to be seen these days in the streets of Potsdam. They are three non-commissioned officers of Lancers, who have come to the city to receive the Victoria Cross. They were captured by the Germans in Egypt. The men are, at his invitation, remaining to see the sights, historical and picturesque.

did not work at all. The wires were abandoned for ten years. In 1900 France, the authorities are endeavoring to put the Workmen's Pensions Law into effect, and the people will not accept it. There are more than a million wage earners in Paris and only 37,000 have insured their names; at Lyons, out of 160,000 workmen 6000 have made the necessary contribution; at Marseilles, 10,000 out of 200,000. Everywhere it is the same story.

In some places the law is boycotted altogether. Now this so-called reform was the pet scheme of the radicals for years, and they moved heaven and earth to have it voted before going to their constituencies at the last general election. As a bait to secure re-election it was considered infallible. Jules Guesde, the Socialist, was simply deceived by his brother deputies when he foretold the exasperation the bill would incite among the proletariat as soon as they became aware of its provisions.

For the sake of a totally inadequate pension, in the long years to come, workmen were called upon to contribute, week by week, from their scanty earnings the better off and the poorer. It was an immense accumulation of funds in the hands of the State without any control on the part of the subscribers.

The Socialists are now quite of the mind of Jules Guesde and are doing their utmost to excite the people against the law. The General Labor confederation is equally active.

SAVES COIN FOR STATE.

An instance of an employee of the postoffice who has saved the state 10,000,000 francs is given today. Paris is connected with all the large towns by a system of underground telegraph wires. In 1879 it was found that the wires did not work satisfactorily. In the following year they

SOME OF THOSE WHO DANCED FOR MEMORIAL AT LONDON

LONDON, June 3.—One of the most important social events of this exceptionally important coronation season was the great fancy dress ball at the Savoy Hotel on May 18 in aid of the Prince Francis of Teck Memorial fund of the Middlesex Hospital. Prince and Princess Alexander of Teck have promised to be there, as well as Princess Christian and other members of the royal family. Prince Alexander of Teck, wearing a diamond pendant, worth 250 guineas, to the lady present at the ball who wore the prettiest dress. This is the gift of Messrs. Cartier. A special box is to be built for the royal party, and among the other patronesses are many of the most distinguished names in society. Some idea of the scale of the ball may be gathered from the fact that fifteen hundred guests were able to sit down to supper at the same time. In the ballroom M. Krein's celebrated Russian orchestra played.

URGES FIGHT ON HOME RULE MEASURE

(By ROBERT EDMOND.)

DUBLIN, June 3.—The Orangemen of the North of Ireland egged on by Tory politicians are circulating a petition urging Protestants to fight against home rule. The petition reads as follows:

"We, the Protestants of Ireland, recognizing how closely religion and politics are connected in this country, view with alarm the proposal of his majesty's government to grant a measure of home rule, believing that any such measure, however carefully drafted, cannot but result in the interference of Rome, whose interference has ever been prejudicial to the peace of the community and the prosperity of the nation."

"We pray you will not take this step which will drive many of our brethren from these shores, leaving those who must remain to fight a hard battle against organized boy-

The idea is that each person receiving the document is to make at least six copies, to fill one himself, and give five to five Protestant friends, who in turn are expected to fill one and to make copies and forward them on to their friends, and so on, until the name of every Protestant in Ireland is on the list. The measure is opposed to home rule has been secured. When that has been accomplished, it is proposed to present the petition to Parliament, with the hope of preventing the passing of the home rule bill.

DENOUNCES BRIBERY.

During a recent official visitation at North Clare, Bishop O'Dea, Catholic bishop of Galway, bitterly denounced political corruption and bribery. He compared men who gave or accepted bribes to robbers and murderers. In the course of his address the bishop said that the people had a splendid opportunity to show that Catholic Ireland would be worthy of her best traditions, and they should elect the best men. There has been, amongst some people, a tendency to vote for men because of party interests, or because they were cousins or friends on whom they could rely to do "a turn" for them.

He knew of three men who took $250 each for their votes, careless of whether the man they voted for was the best or not. The selling of votes like that was despicable, dishonest, false to Catholic principles, selfish and unmanly. The man who sold his vote would sell the lives of the people, and the man who bought it would be a traitor to his country. He hoped the sellers of votes would be similarly dealt with. A man who puts a rogue into office was worse than a rogue himself.

He wished to have public opinion created which would not tolerate bribery, and would drive out of public life the man who took a bribe. In a recent Galway election the people had elected honest men, and the improvement was encouraged. They were likely to get home rule within a few years.

DENIES DISLOYALTY.

John Redmond, the Irish leader, recently wrote an article for an English publication wherein he denied that the Irish people were disloyal to the British government. He contended that Irishmen are by instinct and na-

RETURNS FROM VISIT TO GRAVE

LONDON, June 3.—Miss Olive MacLeod, daughter of Sir Reginald MacLeod, late permanent under secretary for Scotland, has returned from Central Africa, where she has accomplished a tour of close upon 4000 miles into the barest known regions of the interior. This great journey was made with the private object of visiting the spot at Maifoni where Lieutenant Boyd Alexander, the explorer, to whom Miss MacLeod was engaged, lies buried. Miss MacLeod left England in August last.

For six months Miss MacLeod, with her companions, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Talbot, journeyed in a land where white women are regarded as intruders, and during four months the route was in a region new even to Englishmen. Much of the time they made their way on foot along the native tracks through the bush.

FIND GREAT FAULTS.

Miss MacLeod in a statement given out yesterday said: "French Ubangi was reached in October last, and after a great reception by the Lamido at Lere, a successful attempt was made to find the falls on the Mao Kabi, which by the natives had never been actually seen before. After this success the French authorities asked permission to name the falls 'Le Chutes MacLeod.' At Lake Chad an excursion was made to the north to visit the extraordinary picturesque rocks of Hadji-el-Hanis, which are venerated for hundreds of miles around and even at Mecca as the spot on which Noah's ark rested. Though the natives declared it an impossible feat, we climbed the highest peak. Lake Chad was crossed in canoes, and it took eight days of which five were spent without a sight of land."

BRINGS BACK LIONS.

Among the things Miss MacLeod has brought back are two little lion cubs, which were three months old when they were given to her as a present. On the journey these lions refused to be led and had to be carried by natives, having a far easier time than the travelers. Miss MacLeod wanted to bring them back to her home near Maidstone, but by the time England was reached they had grown too large for park companions, and were transferred to the zoological gardens. She has also obtained an unique collection of native house curios and weapons, with detailed drawings of the inside of strange native dwellings, and samples of primitive art.

TRUNK MURDER STARTLES CAIRO

CAIRO, June 3.—The hitherto peaceful town of Benha, in Lower Egypt, has had its serenity rudely disturbed these last days by the discovery of a crime which reveals a revolting audacity and cynical brutality on the part of the author or authors. The chief police inspector of the town received a letter reading as follows:

"Dear Inspector—Ha! Ha! Ha! Let us laugh heartily at the government, which cannot catch me! Hum! Hum! Please keep for me the trunk for which I enclose the railway receipts and which contain the tools of the crime for which you asked. In the trunk you will also find the woman, whom I have loved since her childhood, and whose estate is in Upper Egypt. I have seized. Keep her carefully for me."

The signature was that of Hafez Neguib, the name of the celebrated Egyptian police. The moan (Inspector) thought this was some joke on the part of a friend, in sending him a present for the feast of Shem-el-Nessim, which occurred on the following day, and wanted to give him a fright. So he went and withdrew the trunk from the station and had it conveyed to his office. In the presence of his colleagues he opened it. Judge of their horror when their eyes fell on the mangled remains of a woman. Only the feet were missing; the limbs had been detached, and were carefully packed in boxes. The body, in addition, there were some articles of clothing, a bottle of eau de cologne, and a set of false teeth. The police in Cairo, from which town the trunk and the letter had been dispatched, were at once advised, and an extensive inquiry is on foot. As yet no trace is to be had of the murderer, who very probably, from his actions, is a lunatic.

The trunk has a half-defaced label on which the name "Petrid" was deciphered with difficulty, and the woman's clothes had the mark of a shop in Beyrouth. The police inquiry has elicited the fact that a woman named "Petrid" disappeared from Beyrouth a few weeks back, and since that another Syrian woman has been missing from her home in Cairo since the day before the trunk was sent to Benha. Whether either of these is the victim is difficult to say for the remains were in a very decomposed condition, having been saturated with some evil-smelling liquid. This discovery has created no little sensation in Cairo, owing to the brutality of the crime and the deep mystery surrounding it.

RUSSIANS TO KEEP EYE ON MOROCCO

Will Back Up France in Any Clash That May Arise.

Peasant Under Arrest Sleeps for Months at a Time.

(By GEORGE FRASER.)

ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.—While Russia has little or no direct interest in Morocco, the keen attention with which developments in Northern Africa is being followed here shows that the entente between France and Russia is very much alive and Russian support will be back of France in any clash which may arise. There is high authority for the statement that the Imperial Russian Government has had occasion to notify the subject to the German Foreign Office in clear and unmistakable terms. The authorities of the Wilhelmstrasse have been officially informed that, in the opinion of the government of His Majesty the Czar, the action of France in Morocco is perfectly legitimate, and warranted by the circumstances. In this way the Imperial Russian Government has found, it was promptly utilized, a fitting opportunity to tender in an appropriate manner its diplomatic support to France.

The news of the condition of M. Sazonoff, the Russian Foreign Minister, is less unfavorable than heretofore, and hopes of his ultimate recovery are better founded than at any moment since he fell ill. At the same time it remains extremely doubtful whether he will be allowed by his physical condition, even after recovery, to take up his permanent abode in St. Petersburg.

As soon as he can travel he will receive a long leave of absence, which he will spend in the south, and the question of providing him with a successor will remain in abeyance until the autumn, or possibly until December, when his majesties intend to return to St. Petersburg from the Crimea, where they will have made a sojourn of about four months.

SLEEPS LONG.

An extraordinary case of a protracted sleep is reported from Ekaterinos, South Russia, where a 21-year-old peasant, who has been under arrest on a charge of participating in an armed attack on a train, has been in a comatose condition for more than two months. On March 19 he fell into a deep sleep, and his eyes and mouth were closed and all efforts to restore animation were without result.

After a lapse of a fortnight, during which he had no food or drink, he got up, said a prayer, and lay down again. He received no food until April 14. He is now lying in hospital and artificial feeding has been resorted to with satisfactory results. The lower part of his body is quite nontender. There are signs that he is recovering and his doctors believe that, although he can neither hear nor speak, he hears everything that is said to him.

AEROPLANE TO BE USED ON ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION

LONDON, June 3.—Since Sir Ernest Shackleton's appeal to the people of England in three days secured all the money necessary to equip the Australasian Antarctic Expedition the leader, Dr. Mawson, has been busily engaged in buying all kinds of supplies to insure its success. For the first time in the history of Polar expedition an aeroplane will be used and Lieutenant Hugh E. Walkins of the English army who is to be its pilot, is daily experimenting with the machine selected, a powerful monoplane with a hundred horsepower motor. The strongly built aeroplane is very portable. The wings may be attached to the body in less than ten minutes and its motor has a very large reserve power.

A special screen will be made to protect the pilot and his passenger from the cold. Adjustments of the carburetor and fuel tanks will be necessary to prevent the petrol freezing. It is probable that the present landing chassis of the machine—two wheels and a central skid—will be altered in order to facilitate rising and descending upon ice. So far as present outlined the aeroplane will be employed for survey work and also in connection with the journey to the magnetic pole. An observer will be able to make height readings while the machine is in the air. It is hoped that the machine will be able to fly 250 miles without a stop.

Three widowed sisters, the pathetic survivors of an old family of Honiton lace-makers, are almost heartbroken because falling sales and the loss of them of the honor of making some of the lace that is to be used by Queen Mary and the ladies of the court during the coronation festivities.

The widowed trio are Mrs. Cawley, who is 83 years of age, Mrs. Cornish, who is only 73 and Mrs. Nathan, who is 77. Years ago these old ladies made the lace for the late King Edward's christening cap.

There were five of us sisters then," said Mrs. Cawley to an interviewer from London the other day, "and each of us had to make a bit of the cap. There were nearly a dozen lace makers turned on to it, and I had to make the lace that went over the baby's forehead. It was of a blue-raised design—all made by hand, every thread of it."

"We did some work for Queen Victoria and there was a room at Buckingham Palace filled with every kind of Honiton lace. We worked royal coats of arms and other heraldic devices in the finest lace, and made curtains, valances, and pillowcases for the royal bedchamber."

BEGAN YOUNG.

"We all went into the industry very young," Mrs. Cornish recalled. "I began as an apprentice when I was six years old. Mrs. Nathan was eight, and Mrs. Cawley getting on for ten. We used to work sometimes fourteen and sixteen hours a day. Over and Officials Now Declare That the Condition of Emperor Is Grave.

Archduchess Isabella of Vienna Sells Lace in Very Clever Way.

(By EMIL ANDRASSY.)

VIENNA, June 3.—The fact that the condition of the Emperor is serious is now generally admitted, though at the time I first called attention to his rapidly falling strength it was vigorously declared in official circles that he was merely suffering from a severe cold. As a matter of fact, he shows symptoms of a senile decay, and it is not believed that even his marvelous condition and determination can very much longer hold out.

In connection with the Emperor's state of health, the agitation in Hungary for steps to be taken for an act of recognition of the Duchess of Hohenberg, morganatic wife of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand, the heir-apparent, is most significant. It is possible that the demand may proceed even further than this in time, and will insist on her full recognition as the consort of the emperor-to-be.

A very pretty story is being told of the Emperor. While looking out of the window of Goedeolles Castle, near Budapest, he noticed that a little girl had fainted. He promptly sent attendants to her aid and they found that she had a heart attack. Dr. Kerzl, the physician-in-ordinary to the Emperor, attended the child, and she was sent home on her recovery in one of the Emperor's carriages.

The Emperor has been ordered to take baths because they have a revivifying and strengthening effect upon him.

SELLS HER LACE.

Archduchess Isabella, wife of Archduke Frederick, mother of six girls and one little boy, who is heir to the largest fortune in Austria, recently discovered a novel way of selling some lace that is made by the Hungarian peasants under her patronage. On her way back from Spain, where she had been visiting the queen-mother, she stopped for a few days in Paris. Driving in a motor car to one of the best shops for feminine finery, she sent in her card to the head of the firm, like any commercial traveler.

Then, followed by two lackeys bearing bags filled to the brim with beautiful and costly lace, she entered the shop when it was crowded with elegant buyers. Seated before a counter, she displayed her patterns, named the prices, and put down the chief's orders in a neat little notebook that had her initials and the Imperial crown on the cover. Of course, the customers gathered round and observed the pretty scene, a description of which they spread all over Paris. Immediately the pretty women were anxious to buy "les dentelles de l'Archiduchesse."

WATER IN EVERYTHING: DRINK HARD, HE SAYS

PARIS, June 3.—Dr. Havist of the Academy of Medicine, has just been telling Parisians what they ought to drink. Water, he says, is nearly everywhere. It is in wine, beer, milk, and so on, is also in vegetables, and uncivilized peoples have used it largely as a beverage. As regards school, the learned lecturer boldly declares that it is not a poison, and that a man weighing 150 pounds can safely take 35 ounces, or even a little more, daily, if he goes in for rather hard physical toil.

George Bernard Shaw's iconoclastic tendencies have again got him into hot water. The old-age pension came just in time to prevent the tragedy of poverty in Mrs. Nathan's declining years from becoming complete. "I nearly lost my sight working for a cash lady," she said. "Her husband, a general in the army, presented her with an exquisite scarlet dress in India, but it was so dazzling that the lady asked me to make a network of black Honiton lace go over it. I did so, but my eyes have never recovered from the strain. I am now almost blind, and that was my last work."

The three lone souls have refused tempting offers to go to London to see the coronation. They prefer a restful—if a little sad and cheerless—existence in a cottage home in Devon.

PREDICTS FIRE WILL DELAY CROWNING

Fortune Teller Worries London With Prophecy of Destruction.

The Turkish Government Seeks Ships for Merchant Marine.

(By PHILLIP EVERETT.)
LONDON, June 3.—London has any number of fortune tellers, more or less illustrious, some of them with very expensive offices in the heart of the fashionable shopping district, and one of them has created a stir by prophesying that a fire in Westminster Abbey is to interfere with the coronation of King George. Officially, of course, nothing has been said about the fortune teller's prophecy, but the fact is that it was repeated all over London and finally even made itself heard in the house of commons, when several members questioned the government as to what steps had been taken to protect the abbey against the danger of fire—now a result of two special firemen were placed on duty there last night and day, whereupon the government in due time replied that every possible precaution had been taken. As a matter of fact, the most famous building in London would undoubtedly be totally destroyed should a fire break out, and the danger is ever present. The interior, which has been closed to the public for many weeks, is now full of lumber and shavings, while outside are wooden structures many stories high where I have repeatedly seen carpenters smoking while at work. Should a fire break out while the coronation is actually going on it is almost certain that the number of victims would be appalling.

NEVER LIKED LONDON.

As the late King Edward was never very fond of London and spent as much of his time as he possibly could away from his capital, there is nothing very strange in the fact that an evil fate seems to be pursuing those who are endeavoring to build him a memorial in this city.

The longer the committee of the King Edward memorial fund sit the greater the middle in which they become involved. Having decided on a statue, they cannot find a suitable spot for it. One of three spots is now suggested—Trafalgar Square, or one of two situations in Hyde park, to all of which the committee respectfully record there may be objections. The fact is, there are really very few places in London suitable for a monument, and even if a desirable spot is found, the climate will soon ruin the appearance of the statue. Most of the stone memorials of this city are either receptacles for soot and dirt, or else the home of sparrows and pigeons, which is certainly not an edifying end for a memorial to Edward the Great. The committee should try to communicate with the late king's spirit, through William T. Stead, or some other reliable mediumistic bureau and asked where it would prefer to see the statue of the king's memorial erected. It is ten to one that the spirit would answer with a merry twinkle, "outside the Jockey club in Paris."

TURKEY BUYS SHIPS.

A Turkish syndicate is at present operating in Liverpool for the purchase of ships for the merchant service of Constantinople.

It appears that an exceptional demand for ships has arisen through the Turkish boycott of the Greeks. A syndicate in Constantinople with the object of conserving Turkish trade interests by confining as much trade as possible to Turkish-owned vessels, hence the demand for good second-hand British ships.

The new company's representatives in Liverpool have purchased the Jerome from the Booth line, and the Duke of York and the Duke of Lancaster, due to the Turkish line, and the Yorkshire Railroad Company, as well as two other vessels from Avonmouth. The syndicate hopes to effect the purchase of twenty ships before next September.

INSURE JEWELS.

Some large insurances are being offered by the companies and members of Lloyd's on jewels to be worn by Indian princes attending the coronation.

One insurance for $425,000 has just been completed, and the value of the property is between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. In some instances the risks covered are those of transit to and from India and that of burglary during the owner's stay in London, partly years of insurance being taken for the jewels shall be stored in strong rooms when not in use; in others it is only proposed to cover the risks of transit.

Numerous insurances rates have been made, but the premiums do not, in all cases, meet the views of the owners, and therefore few policies have been actually issued.

London is practically the only market where a ring can be placed, and as the value of jewels to be brought here will be very great, fairly substantial rates are quoted for insurance.

DO THE IMPOSSIBLE.

"The only thing that interests us," Miss Christina Burchard once said, "is the impossible. We know that because we have done it." Certainly the ladies of suffragette persuasion have managed to do some very startling and wonderful things, many of which, twenty years ago their sisters would have thought impossible.

Their processions of last year were admittedly marvels of organization, and this year they have one which will by all accounts totally eclipse their predecessors. Instead of being two miles long, the procession of June 17 is to be four miles in length, and instead of walking four abreast, as hitherto, the ladies are to walk seven deep.

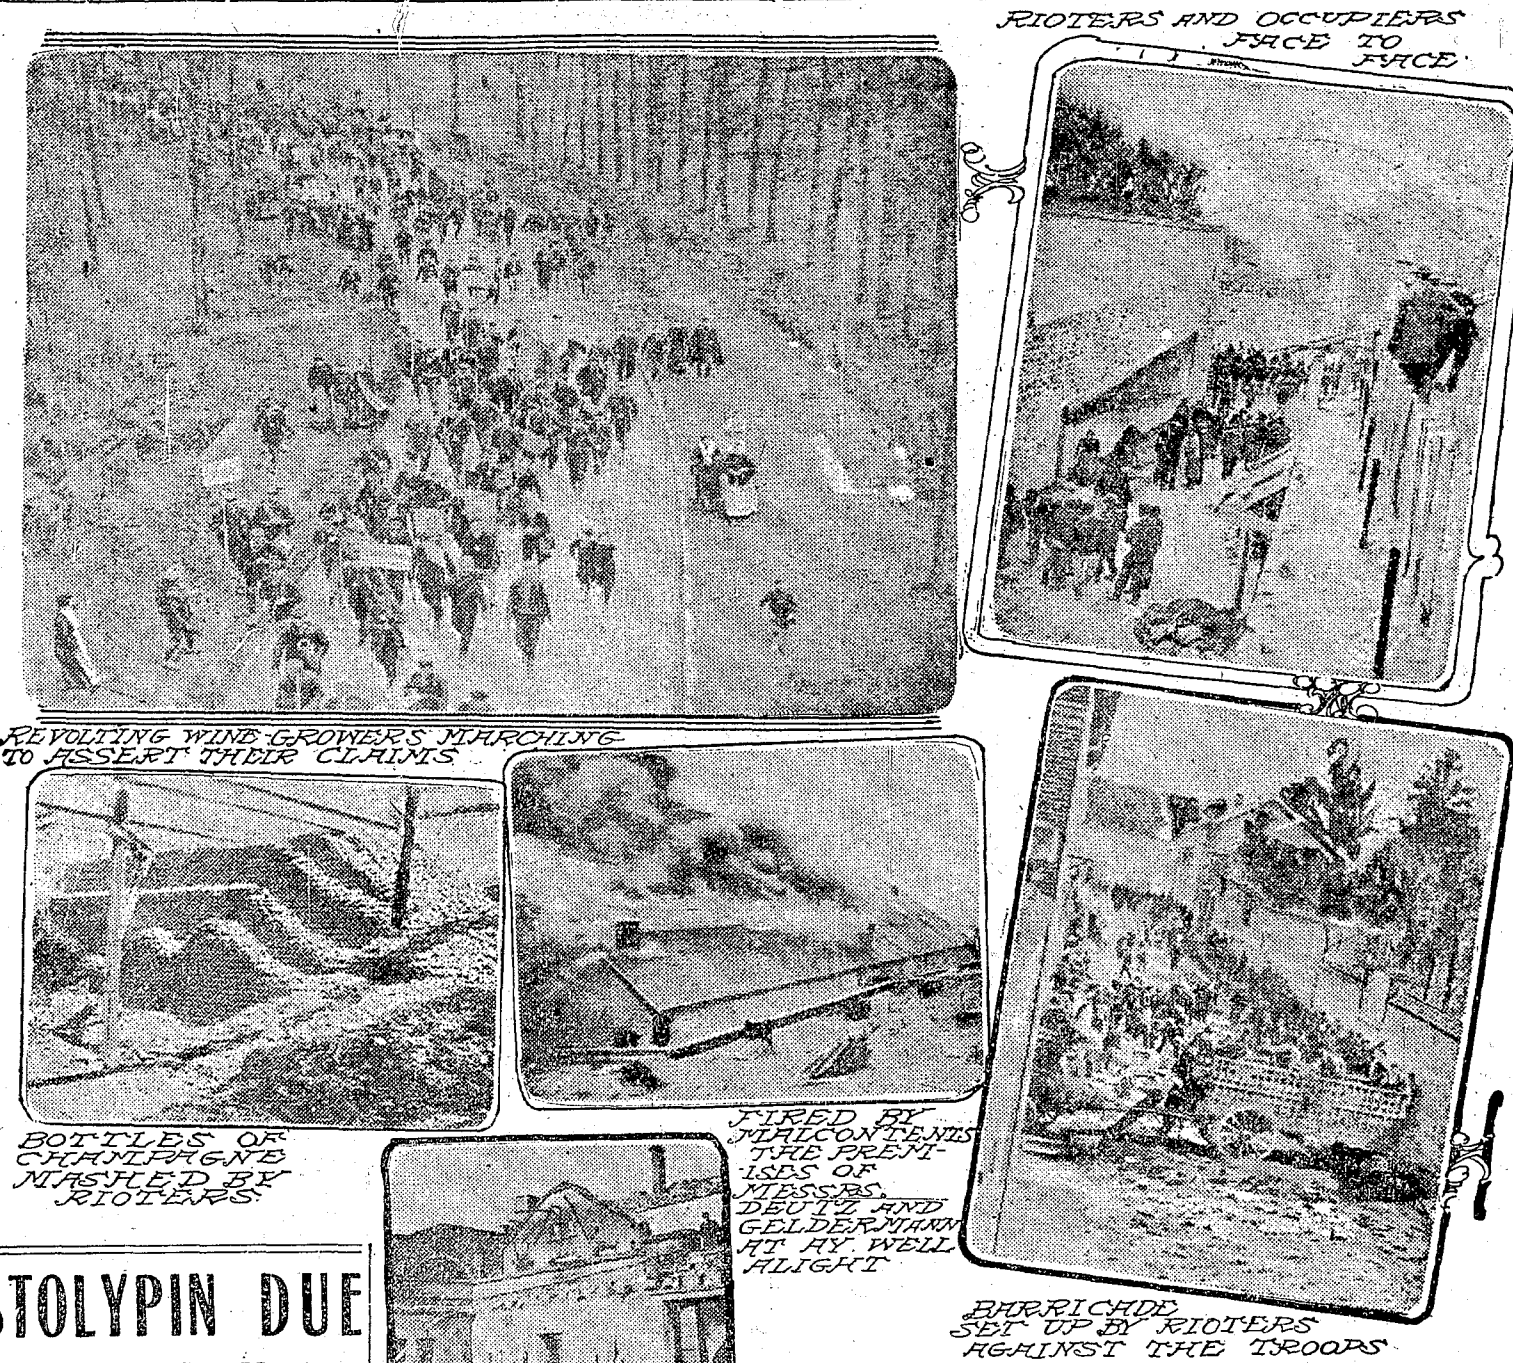

The procession, a gigantic army of white-robed women, is to include a pageant of ex-prisoners who have suffered in the cause of the cause, and great women in the past who have helped to make their countries great.

MILLIONS BORROWED BY LATE KING CARLOS

LISBON, June 3.—The commission appointed to ascertain the amount of the advances made by the state to the Portuguese royal family reports that $4,000,000 was lent to the late King Carlos. When the amounts of the loans to other members of the royal family are known, the provisional government intended to repay themselves from King Manuel's property in Portugal by yearly deductions.

STOLYPIN DUE TO SEE HIS STAR SET

(By FREDERICK WERNER.)

BERLIN, June 3.—Moroccan affairs, as far as Germany is concerned, now present a cloudless political sky to Europe. The trouble in Morocco, which for a time seemed bound to breed dissensions between France and Germany, has been greatly clarified by the official assurances given by Russia. To these assurances the German people have readily responded, and France now holds a free reign in the sultan's empire.

REMAINS IN POWER.

In Russia the reactionary H. Stolypin still remains in power in spite of the recent severe censure of his actions by the duma, but nobody believes his days of power will be many. He surely no longer enjoys the absolute confidence at court that he once did. The czar likes a pliant prime minister, but in his most soul he respects only a strong man, and the proofs that he no longer gives much thought to H. Stolypin's likes and dislikes are many. Here are a few of the incidents which show the direction in which the wind blows.

When the emperor ordered a commission to overhaul the ministry of Harino, and if, as his majesty anticipated, no shocking abuses were discovered, he published the results. broadcast, H. Stolypin was not in favor of the plan. None the less, it was executed. After this commission had reported, the premier laid before the emperor a receipt for signature expressing his majesty's thanks to the president of the commission. The emperor looked at it and said: "Very well; leave it. I will see it later."

RESCRIPT OF THANKS.

Later, indeed, a rescript of thanks was signed by the monarch, but it was addressed, not to the president of the revisionary commission, but to the marine minister, whom the commission had indirectly blamed. Then, when the marine minister resigned, the premier, who professes a lively interest in the navy, made known his disapproval of Admiral Grigorovich as a candidate, and took certain steps to sway the czar against appointing him to the post. The czar might not receive adequate consideration unless they were expressed orally. H. Stolypin sat down and penned a formal letter to the emperor, deprecating in advance the substitution of Admiral Grigorovich for Admiral Voyevodsky and uttering the hope that a better choice would be made. But the emperor paid not the slightest heed to this unsolicited counsel, but set Admiral Grigorovich to the head of the ministry.

What makes the fall of Stolypin in the near future an almost foregone conclusion is the fact that Russia is now doubly preparing to take an active part in politics in the Far East and to do this, when the duma is strongly opposed to the leader of the government, would be too dangerous an experiment, therefore, as Russian action in Asia in some shape is necessary to preserve the prestige of the empire, the present head of the cabinet will undoubtedly find some way of resigning gracefully.

PLANS IN DOUBT.

Nobody knows what Russia's political plans in Asia are. One thing only seems certain, she has entered into a far-reaching agreement with her old enemy Japan, and China is to pay the costs, unless that ancient empire suddenly awakens and springs a surprise upon those who are planning to annihilate it.

Bits of News From London

(By FREDERICK WERNER.)

LONDON, June 3.—Working twelve hours daily for $10 a week as an operative scene-artists' assistant in a large studio at Hendon is a tall, slender, sun-tanned youth. To his working companions he is known simply as Arthur Wellesley. He is in reality Viscount Dangan, eldest son and heir of Earl Cowley.

Viscount Dangan is assistant to Mr. O. P. Bernard, technical manager and scenic artist to the Quinlan Operatic Company, recently formed by Mr. Thomas Quinlan, late manager of the Becham Opera Company, to tour with grand opera in England, Ireland, South Africa and Australia. The tour starts in October, and Viscount Dangan is assisting in the preparations of the scenery of the thirteen operas which will compose the repertory.

He is only twenty, and yesterday he explained why he has become a worker. "The fact is," he said, "I was put into the army much against my will, and I didn't like it. The life was too mechanical, too automatic, and I am really a Bohemian, you know. So I left, or, strictly speaking, deserted, and joined a stage-manager a music hall company which had been playing a sketch in Dublin, where my regiment was stationed."

HE GETS ON.

"I toured with the company until the beginning of April, and then engaged by Mr. Quinlan as a paint-room laborer in the studio here. I had to clean the palates, mix colors and do all sorts of odd jobs. But at the end of the first week I got a raise and a fortnight ago I was appointed Mr. Bernard's assistant, with $10 a week. So I have got on. I have had nothing but what I have earned myself. I left the army, but I am quite happy. I work under exactly the same conditions as the others here."

KING IS HERO.

The King of Denmark who is staying in Paris in connection with the Queen, Prince Gustavus and Princesses Dagmar and Thyra, was the hero of a little incident which showed his characteristic consideration for others. The King left the Hotel Bristol on foot and unaccompanied. A group of photographers who had been awaiting his appearance failed to recognize him, probably owing to his being alone.

The King took pity on them, and after having stepped off the pavement into the roadway he turned back smiling and said to the photographers, "I suppose you are waiting for me." Almost before they had grasped the situation the King added: "Well, here I am. Where shall I stand?"

A suitable position was indicated, and the King stood while the photographers "snapped" him to their hearts' content. The first aerial taxicab will be put into service in a few days' time at Lucerne. The innovation is the enterprise of the Compagnie Transaerienne, which has just sent to Lucerne a biplane fitted with a taxi-car.

The aeroplane is to be piloted by the almanac Erbsater, and will carry passengers on cross-country flights at so much per kilometer as registered on the taximeter.

China is painfully changing into a constitutional empire. A responsible cabinet is already an accomplished fact and this reform is later to be followed by a house of representatives to which the cabinet is to be responsible. This either means a dissolution or an awakening of the old Mongolian empire.

British City Is Raked Over

LONDON, June 3.—Working twelve hours daily for $10 a week as an operative scene-artists' assistant in a large studio at Hendon is a tall, slender, sun-tanned youth. To his working companions he is known simply as Arthur Wellesley. He is in reality Viscount Dangan, eldest son and heir of Earl Cowley.

Viscount Dangan is assistant to Mr. O. P. Bernard, technical manager and scenic artist to the Quinlan Operatic Company, recently formed by Mr. Thomas Quinlan, late manager of the Becham Opera Company, to tour with grand opera in England, Ireland, South Africa and Australia. The tour starts in October, and Viscount Dangan is assisting in the preparations of the scenery of the thirteen operas which will compose the repertory.

He is only twenty, and yesterday he explained why he has become a worker. "The fact is," he said, "I was put into the army much against my will, and I didn't like it. The life was too mechanical, too automatic, and I am really a Bohemian, you know. So I left, or, strictly speaking, deserted, and joined a stage-manager a music hall company which had been playing a sketch in Dublin, where my regiment was stationed."

DOMESTIC WAR CLOUDS OBSCURE FRANCE'S SUN

Railroad Trouble Far From Over and Renewal of Mine Riots Feared by Officials; Only Lull Is Noted in Both Storms

(By GEORGE DUFRESNE.)

PARIS, June 3.—An association has been founded called the "Amis de l'Art Dramatique," the purpose of which is to create a vast movement of opinion against the purulence and immorality of too great a number of contemporary plays. The association is being organized by the poet, and it is pointed out that "suggestive exhibitions, obscene pleasures, and scandalous theses have invaded the French stage, and are gradually destroying its prestige." Among those of the French academy who have joined the association are Marcel Prevost, Rene Doumic, Maurice Barres, Francis Chermes, Emile Faguet, Etienne Lamy, Emile Olivier, Paul Deschamps, and the Marquis de Ségur.

The plan of campaign is very practical. Every time a critic is too indulgent of unwholesome works members subscribing to the paper in which the criticism appears will complain to the editor, and stop subscription if redress is not given.

As for the theaters in which the plays are given, the boycott is to be vigorous. Comite d'Action is being organized to read and select plays, and a "Bulletin Mensuel" will keep members on count as to the pieces that are approved. Conferences will be frequently given by prominent men on the subject, and altogether the scheme of purification has been set on foot which only needs public support to insure complete success. The state has abolished the censor; the people are now to fill the void.

Much of the atmosphere of the old Paris is evoked by the death of a particularly well known boulevardier. Amongst his intimates he was known as "Prince Lubo." It was a contraction for Lubomirski, and, at the same time, seemed to mark the joyous character of the man—in his palmy days, though, alas, he died extremely poor. Possessed of vast estates in Poland—his family owned, it is said, two villages and 10,000 acres of land—he had managed to ruin himself in the gay whirl of Paris.

Those were the days when the boulevardiers were otherwise than a vulgar throng. They were up to photographers and imitation jewelry, Tortoni flourished, and the Cafe Anglais was the resort of the smartest people in Europe. Dineau gathered in the artistic Bohemians, and the Cafe Rebent, at the further end of the boulevard, was a real academy of wit and literary elegance. Now scarcely a French gentleman goes to a cafe, leaving dissipation to the tourist, the provincial and the idle of lower middle classes.

Lubo wrote books, and by virtue of the fact, became a member of the Genz de Lettres, to whom he has left a legacy of $400,000—probably the greatest literary fortune in France. His literary style had the merit of a perfect frankness, making one think of Jean Jacques Rousseau. One of his works begins: "I despise myself thoroughly, but when I compare myself with some of my contemporaries, I hold my head up." And, indeed, nothing of a mean or scandalous character was ever imputed to the departed prince. His ship foundered with its millions of roubles, but the flag flew gallantly from the masthead.

A certain charming actress, by name Juliette Beau, had doubtless something to do with the dispersal of Lubo's fortune in the halcyon days of his wealth. She was blonde, and a beautiful figure and a captivating voice. And she was the original Merry Widow, for at the vaudeville in those days she sang in "L'Atache d'ambassade," the work by Jules Hervey, which was later to become a world-famous and fascinating "Widow." In recent years, crippled in health and fortune, poor Lubo became very serious in his ideas. He wrote about the state of the world, and his writings were full of socialistic ideas. It may truly be said that he scorned money.

When they have finished the weeds, which are broad-leaved and succulent, they proceed to the grass. In a very short time the lawn looks as if it had been cut by the very closest machine. No harm is done to the grass.

GUARD FORTUNE.

The guard which watches by night the fifty million pounds ($250,000,000) of therapeutics at the Banks of England will in future be drawn from the guards battalion at the tower instead of from Chelsea or Wellington barracks as in the past.

This change will revive the picturesque old custom of the guards marching to the bank to take up their quarters for the night. The procession was one of the interesting sights of the London evening, but in recent years the guards, having a considerable distance to travel in congested streets, have adopted the quicker and prosaic method of transit by railway.

The custom of guarding the bank by garrison dates from the Gordon riots of 1793. In view of the present preparations for coronation processions and illuminations, the commissioner of police writes to call the attention of the public to the dangers arising from—

Unsafe balconies, copings, area railings and grutings on footways. Decorations being fastened to chimneys stacks and copings without due examination to render them safe. Decorations so fixed as to be dangerous to persons riding in omnibuses, etc. Deposit of glass bottles in thoroughfares. Matches, cigar and cigarette ends thrown down on stands or amongst the crowd. Hatpins projecting from headresses. Young children and feeble persons getting in crowds, especially during the illuminations. Crowds collecting at openings to and corners of streets along the routes of the processions. The public is especially urged to avoid this and to distribute themselves along the footways.

Holders of tickets for seats at houses or stands on the route are strongly urged to discharge their vehicles at some point well outside the route, and to walk to their seats, as considerable confusion and difficulty is likely to be experienced if large numbers of vehicles are used, as ranking when empty cannot be guaranteed.

LADY NICOTINE LURES HIM FROM HIS WIFE

ST. GALL, June 3.—A husband's love of tobacco is the reason advanced by a Swiss wife of St. Gall in her suit for a reparation from her husband, to whom she had been married only eight months. Mrs. Hubler, the lady in question, states that her husband, when he was her fiancé, promised to give up the tobacco habit when they were married. But after the ceremony he said he must have a smoke, and he forthwith had one in the street. His wife wants a separation.

fresh outbreaks will occur. The damage done so far has been very great. Probably a million pounds. The premises of several famous firms as Messrs. Deutz & Geldermann, Ayala, and Bissinger, to name a few of several, were burned out, while the houses of the heads of certain firms were burned, and otherwise wrecked. At Ayala alone, at least six million bottles of champagne have been smashed. The case of Mme. Bissinger is particularly hard, for that lady has at various times given some hundred thousands of francs to the town of Ay.

The extraordinary wine war was brought about in a somewhat curious manner. Not very long ago wine-growers of the Marne petitioned the government, complaining that certain firms of the Aube were importing wines into the district that they might be mixed with genuine champagne and sold as champagne. Thereupon, it was officially shown that there was likelihood of a law being passed, that only wines grown in specified districts in the Marne should be sold as champagne. There followed immediately such strenuous protests in the rival department, Aube, that the government showed signs of not making the law in question. Then, naturally, the Marne rose in its wrath. The sabotage of the riot was only stopped by the drafting of a very great number of troops into the affected area; and there remains fear of further trouble.

FRENCH WAGE WAR ON WORKMAN'S PENSION LAW

has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, is a titled teamster—a genuine count. He was accused of having murdered his wife, an equally genuine countess.

Comte Paul de Castilleblat, an authentic nobleman, was reduced to exercising the profession of teamster. It seems to have been the only means of livelihood that he ever had. His wife, the Countess Angèle, exercised no very superior profession, either. They had one child, and occupied a small, shabby flat, for which they had to pay the rent. The Countess found it difficult to pay the rent. Being evicted from their wretched lodgings, a charitable neighbor offered them hospitality and gave them a mattress as their only bed. Misery notoriously sours the temper, and that of the Comte became very cross. —so cross, in fact, that one night he cut off the head of the Countess.

Asked to explain why he had perpetrated this atrocious act, he stated he would tell the jury that, wretched as they were, he felt exceedingly grateful that his wife should have proposed to leave him with their little daughter. She had received a very tempting offer from someone who said that he would take care of her and her child. Comte de Castilleblat decided to accept it, and informed her husband of her intention to leave him. They quarrel over the matter and their hospitable neighbor intervened and expelled the Comte for the night. But Comte de Castilleblat returned in stealth before morning and severed his wife's head from her body with a razor, whilst she was asleep. He had acted, he said, in a fit of blind jealousy. The jury gave a rather lenient verdict, whereupon the Court sentenced him to two years' solitary confinement.

Two young doctors of Dijon have performed an operation by using electricity as an anesthetic. In the hospital at Dijon a man had to have a finger amputated. An electrical apparatus was fixed on his back, another on his forehead. Doctor Cremaux attended the accumulator and a current was passed through the man's arm, rendering the limb insensible to pain. Doctor Leclerc proceeded with the operation. The sensation of the patient was that of needles pricking him.

Doctor Leclerc, in the case of two operations which had been performed under electricity in Paris in 1908. A woman suffering from cancer was successfully operated on. The electrical anesthetic lasted ten minutes. The pulse was little below the normal, the breathing kept its normal rhythm, and the awakening was immediate. The patient affirmed that she had not felt anything. The second operation was performed on a woman, 85 years of age, who was suffering from cancer in the face. In this case the electrical anesthetic was maintained during 50 minutes. The awakening of the patient was almost instantaneous, but she remained in a half-stupor until the operation was over. She awoke after the operation. But it is argued that her great age was the cause of death.

Doctor Tuffier, referring to electricity as an anesthetic, says that the system discovered by Stephane Leduc will, perhaps, yield interesting results in the future though its present imperfections make the older methods more reliable.

PROPOSAL BY CABLE.

A breach of promise case of a new order has just come before the fifth chamber of the tribunal. The judges have to decide whether a cable marriage made by cable is legally binding. The interrupted romance began in this way: A young civil engineer set off to Tonkin on business. On the voyage he made the acquaintance of a young woman with a German name who resided with her brother-in-law at Saigon. The acquaintance made on board ship ripened into mutual affection.

When the engineer returned to France at the beginning of last year he felt very lonely, and thought he could do better than make an offer of marriage to the little "Tonkinoise." With-out hesitating, he sent a cable to the young woman, offering her his hand and heart in these terms: "Fortune realized. Make offer of marriage to Grete. Cable reply." The reply was to the effect that Grete would start on July 23.

Arrangements for the wedding were completed when the engineer wrote to his fiancée informing her he had been ruined in business, and was compelled to renounce the idea of marriage. The girl demanded an action for breach of promise against her ex-fiance, claiming $3000 damages.

RENEWAL OF WINE WAR.

Fear is felt for a renewal of the so-called "wine wars" between the provinces of the Marne which reached an extraordinary pitch. There must be times when the French government wondered when the "Jacques bonhomme" of the affair was to appear and declare war on the death of the Marne. The wine seems to be subsiding; though it is, of course, impossible to say whether

THINKS HE'D MAKE GOOD PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, June 3.—If any one doubts that Congressman Champ Clark would make a good Democratic candidate for President at the next election, they have his own word for it, given today. He "admitted" he would make a good candidate, saying:

"Well, the Democratic party might go further and fare worse—and I think it will." The Speaker of the national House discussed any and all other subjects put to him except the "Lorimer" vote and woman's suffrage, of the latter of which he said:

"I know when to let well enough alone, and I'm going to keep still." He prophesied victory for the republicans, measure and said of the tariff: "We've got Mr. Taft with a few schedules, we hope, where we could get past with a whole bill."

of the hair, dries quickly and leaves the hair in that silky condition. Eggol is inexpensive and can be had at any drug store. It is a very effective hair restorer. A dozen shampoos. If the hair is thin and weakly, or falls out, a good tonic will be effective, and seldom requires repeating. The dose is one-half ounce, taken not nearly as costly as the electric needle. Be sure you get genuine delol, as it is the only one that will not irritate the skin and is antiseptic and works quickly.

HAIR. It is very dangerous to use ointments and salves to drive back pimples. Nature intended these impurities to drive them out of the skin. If you do not drive them out, they will find their way to get rid of these impurities is by taking a good blood purifier. Here is an excellent one: Take one ounce of cod liver oil, a pint of water, add one ounce of sarsaparilla, and take two teaspoonfuls before meals and at bedtime.

FACE. By all means remove the day's grime by washing your face with cold water, the youthful tint and glow to the complexion. When the skin is thoroughly clean, apply a little of the cream, a cerol cream. This clears the pores and stimulates the tender tissues that are the complexion naturally. Do not use the cream, get two ounces of cerol cream, and dissolve in three-fourths of a pint of boiling water.

LONG ISLAND IS SOCIAL CENTERMetropolitan Four Hundred Dodges Sun and Seeks the Breeze.(By MARGARET WATTS D' PEYSTER.)

NEW YORK, June 3.—With the coming of the first month of summer preceded by a spell of real mid summer weather, the social center of the metropolitan section is shifted mainly to Long Island for a while at least. The first of the international polo games was played Wednesday in the presence of a remarkable gathering of society people, considering the great number who have gone abroad for the coronation.

The second game is being played before an equally distinguished gathering and there is every reason to expect even a larger crowd next Wednesday when the British and American team meet in the final bout.

While of course the Meadow Brook Club where the games are being played is within easy motoring distance of New York practically all the front country homes in the district are entertaining big house parties and there are happy days on Long Island.

Most of these parties will continue until after the National Steeplechase and Hunt Association holds its spring meeting at Belmont Park Thursday and Saturday.

AT DOG SHOW.

Many of the society people will also be present at the Summer Dog Show given by the Ladies' Kennel Association at the fair grounds, Mineola, Tuesday and Wednesday. Much interest is being taken in the show and a number of valuable prizes for various classes will be offered. Many women of social prominence will be among the exhibitors.

The judges have been selected, and of the fifteen are: Mr. H. H. Thompson, Miss A. H. Whitney of Lancaster, Mass., an authority on St. Bernards; Miss Mary Henderson of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., treasurer of the Toy Spaniel club of America; and a recognized expert on English Toy Spaniels, and Mrs. Frances D. Kendall, of Lexington, Mass., who will judge Boston Terriers.

The men judges are Dr. Henry Jarrett, John Harwood, Mr. H. H. Thompson, Harry B. Smith, A. H. Higginson, John White, Charles W. Barney, Samuel Crabtree, M. M. Palmer, John Sergeant Price Jr., Walter S. Glynn and William Lennox.

Among the classes offered in the English Toy Spaniel class are Champion Walkeley Victor challenge cup, presented by Miss Henderson for the best Prince Charles dog in the limit class; the champion Rosemary Calvert Challenge cup, presented by Mrs. J. H. Jarrett for the best English Toy Spaniel; the Puppy bowl, presented by Dr. E. W. Clark for the best puppy of any color bred and exhibited by a member; the challenge trophy, presented by Mrs. William C. Harwood for the best American-bred English Toy Spaniel; various money prizes, given by Mrs. James Dolg, Mrs. George H. Fell, Mrs. A. Ronald Conkling, Mrs. D. Belmont Lester, Mrs. William S. Cockett, Mrs. M. Dillaway, Mrs. M. Cohen and Montefiore G. Kahn.

A number of valuable prizes for various classes are offered by the Ladies' Kennel Association of America, including challenge cups for bloodhounds, St. Bernards, Russian wolfhounds, English foxhounds, field spaniels, cocker spaniels, beagles, old English sheep dogs, dachshunds, pointers, dalmatians, chowchows, bull terriers, French bulldogs, Boston terriers, Irish terriers, Scotch and Skye terriers, Pomeranians and Pekingeses.

SOCIAL CENTER.

While Long Island is the social center at present the other Eastern fashionable resorts are preparing for an active season.

Even places quite far from New York to say nothing of Newport and the Pier, are taking on all appearance of life, if not gaiety.

Bar Harbor, and even North East Harbor have more people than usual within their precincts. Cottage owners and would-be tenants have found it necessary to visit the houses and make a few plans for the summer campaign. Until now there has not been any activity in the real estate market. The summer reports that would tend to make happy the heart of the house owner, but the last few days of summer heat have worked wonders, as usual, and now there is a lull of happiness on the part of the landlord, who finds that, after all, there are good prospects for a successful summer.

From present indications Bar Harbor is to be exceptionally lively. Houses have rented well. The hotels have a long and desirable list enrolled, and while no startling form of entertainment has as yet been promised the customary life of the place holds sufficient charm to insure its success. North East Harbor, which has been considered more intellectual by the inhabitants thereof who boast of its more solid life, seems to have started its season of activity. The hotel has already spoken of is of national interest from the fact that the bride's mother is one of the best known women in the United States. Miss Emily Nelson Ritchie McLean, daughter of Mrs. Donald McLean, former president-general of the D. A. B., will, on June 8, become Mrs. Edwin A. Gill Wylie.

The ceremony will be performed in the Church of the Heavenly Rest. Lawrence B. Robbins will be Mr. Wylie's best man, and his two brothers, Walker Gill Wylie Jr., and Sims

New York Facing Long Water Famine

(By RALPH JOHNSON.)

NEW YORK, June 3.—New York, that is that section of the city remote from Long Acre Square and Coney Island, has been haunted by the spectre of a water famine. Of course the habitation of the great White Way and of Coney Island use so little water for drinking purposes that the idea of a water famine has little terror for them.

It appears that in the storage reservoirs in which is contained the city's reserve water supply there is water enough for only 200 days' use if reasonable care is used. As this would carry us pretty nearly to Christmas even if there is no rain in the meantime it is hard for a man not an expert in water supply to see where the great need for alarm exists.

It is one of the characteristics of New York to love to be alarmed, however, and we are having all sorts of delightful carriages in and out of the apartments, especially those in upper floors.

And in a way typical of the big city, going ahead wasting water as lavishly as though we had a supply sufficient for 2000 instead of a measly 200 days.

BABY CARRIAGE GARAGE.

A garage for baby carriages recently was started by an enterprising girl in New York. It appeared at once to mothers who live in apartment houses and who found great difficulty in getting the carriages in and out of the apartments, especially those in upper floors.

As a result the promoter of the plan quickly built up a large business and is making an excellent profit weekly from the idea. The girl went out of work, and as she stood by her window thinking what she could do, she observed a mother struggling to get a baby carriage up the steps. Instantly she thought: "Wouldn't it be a good idea to have a garage?" She set to work and, renting a commodious room, began charging 50 cents a week for housing baby carriages. She arranged to see that each carriage was in front of the house where the owner lived at a certain hour each day or in answer to a telephone call. Her garage soon was taxed to its utmost. She turned next to providing sand piles and swings for children. Her profits are increasing rapidly.

20 CENTS FOR APPLE.

"It is not so bad to pay 20 cents for a single apple as it is to pay 20 cents for a single barrel of apples," remarked J. F. Reddy of Medford, Oregon.

"I have just returned from the other side, and I found American apples in every corner of Europe. They are rapidly taking to our western fruit on the other side, and it encourages us to keep on planting orchards. Apples are not only making Oregon rich, but famous. Most of the fruit grown in the Rogue River Valley of my state goes direct to Europe."

"We do not get 20 cents apiece for the apples—more the pity—but the fruit has to go through several hands before it gets to the consumer. There is no limit to the apple market the world over. To Europe the American apple is yet a novelty, and our orchard men have a wonderful chance to grow rich while the demand is so great. They are rapidly taking to our western fruit on the other side, and it encourages us to keep on planting orchards. Apples are not only making Oregon rich, but famous. Most of the fruit grown in the Rogue River Valley of my state goes direct to Europe."

"Talk about paying 20 cents for an apple; please recall that the orchard

Miss McLean will have Miss Estelle Reilly for her maid of honor, and the Misses Betty Boulton, Robbins Christian, Katrina Part Brown, Caroline Tuller and Lucilia Damon Wylie, sister of the bridegroom, for her bridesmaids.

Mrs. Tracey Taylor of Park Hill, Yonkers, will be at home to the Daughters of Ohio in New York on Monday from 3 until 6 o'clock. The society closed the most successful season of its career with a musicale and reception at the Waldorf. There were 250 members and guests present. The treasurer reported a substantial balance in the treasury, a sinking fund, a reserve fund, and a special fund. Miss Skinner presided, and three past presidents of the society were seated with her on the platform. Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, Mrs. C. C. Shayne and Miss G. Gardner.

TAFT PRAISES WORK OF
Y. M. C. A.Declares it Has Reduced Its Labors to a Scientific Proposition.

(By D. V. FRANCIS.)

NEW YORK, June 3.—While the Young Men's Christian Association did not need President Taft's defense from the charge of making "mollycoddles" of boys and young men, it is gratifying nevertheless to have the President of the United States speak unequivocally of the splendid work which is being done by this great organization.

He describes the work in a sentence when he says: "It has reduced to a science the taking of homeless young men and offering them a Christian club in which all the influences are good, in which there is nothing of the mollycoddle, nothing of softening or enervating influence. Everything tends to restrain them from the demoralizing vices and practices."

There is cause for thankfulness that the old idea which was once largely prevalent that certain vices were manly and abstraction from them a sign of weakness is disappearing. That it is becoming recognized that a young man may be a moral, right-thinking, clean-living being and be the highest type of man is due in some measure at least to the work of the Young Men's Christian Association.

MANY AT CONVENTION.

More than 100 representative men and women of North America will be heard at the International Sunday School convention, San Francisco, June 20 to 27, on the value and method of Christian education for the youth and adult. "The open Bible and the uplifted cross" will be the theme, and special emphasis will be laid upon these great factors of Christian service and Sunday school progress. Evangelism will also be emphasized, and the Rev. Dr. W. W. Chapman will be heard twice daily.

Previous to the convention there will be a missionary conference for workers west of the Rocky Mountains, with denominational discussion of problems of mass meetings in the interest of home missions. Following, by Sunday school workers themselves, will be departmental conferences with leaders of world-wide experience.

After the formal convention opening, with addresses by the governor of California and the mayor of San Francisco, the convention will be held at the Hotel California, already given, and the other by the Rev. Dr. David G. Downey of Methodist Sunday school work, on the Sunday School in the United States, and the Rev. Dr. J. H. Rogers of the Y. M. C. A. of North America. Day sessions following are to be devoted to earnest presentation of Sunday school problems, involving as they do, all America, in some respects all the world.

READING ROOM FEATURES.

S. E. Bussler, superintendent of the reading room system of the Santa Fe Railroad, says that the reading rooms and club houses established by the company for the benefit of its employees have been a potent factor in lessening marital discord.

"We have twenty-eight of these reading rooms and club houses along the line of the Santa Fe, and five more will be built before the end of the year. Numerous statements made to me by various officials of the company disclose that the plan has resulted in employees being kept away from saloons and gambling establishments, where men are inclined to go for lack of opportunity to obtain diversion elsewhere. Women are welcome in all of our reading rooms and club houses, and it has been interesting to note how many men take their wives with them when they go there for an evening of entertainment."

Domestic infidelity is often caused by the husband leaving his home after the dinner hour and seeking the companionship of some one other than his wife. The latter is left alone, and a continuance of this practice often leads to an estrangement and ultimately to divorce. When a man spends his evenings out amid wholesome surroundings and with his wife in his company the chances for trouble in the home are greatly lessened.

'DUMB' BEGGAR
FORGETS, SWEARSAccident Unmasks Youth and Charitable Man Takes Him to Jail.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Rev. Edgar S. Jackson, pastor of the Episcopal Church at Maspeth, L. I., was at luncheon the other day when the doorbell rang and a well-dressed youth entered. The stranger bowed politely and thrust a note into the pastor's hands. The note read:

Dear Friend—Having recently lost my speech and hearing through a severe attack of scarlet fever, I am trying to obtain money for an education. Kindly give what you can.—Edward Helet.

The Rev. Mr. Jackson sent for John G. Godfrey, a neighbor connected with the bureau of charities, and the three started for Brooklyn, where the minister and Mr. Godfrey believed they could interest charitable persons in the unfortunate youth. While boarding a crowded trolley car at Maspeth, a passenger accidentally stepped on the boy's foot. He regained speech at once and there was a volley of oaths.

Then the minister and Mr. Godfrey took the "deaf and dumb" youth to Newton police station and charged him with vagrancy. When arraigned before Magistrate Smith in Flushing Police Court he said:

"This has been easy picking for three weeks. I don't seem to care much for work. I hit on this scheme. It would have worked fine if that duffer hadn't stepped on my toe and made me forget I was dumb." "Two months in the workhouse for being so forgetful," said the Magistrate.

PRAYER DUEL
AT ZION CITYOne Leader Asks for Rain, Another for Drouth;
"Dry's" Win.

ZION CITY, Ill., June 3.—Rival prophets are engaged in a prayer contest at Zion City, one to bring rain, that gardens may be sated, and the other to ward off the rain that would damage the crops. The contestants are W. G. Voliva, who wants rain, and Elder Taylor, leader of the original Drouth sect, who hopes it will continue dry until he has a chance to get a new session and those of his followers under a roof. Up to date Elder Taylor's prayers seem to have been more potent.

'WHOPPER' GOT HIM.

WINSTED, Conn., June 3.—"By John Rogers' exclaimed a fisherman last evening when yanked into deep water at Highland lake. "I'll get that darned whopper yet," he added as he floundered in the water.

The "whopper" was a large eel. Rogers was fishing for perch, standing in one end of a boat. When he plunged headfirst into the lake he clung to his rod, and kept himself afloat until his two companions in the boat rescued him and landed the eel. It was six feet long.

Prosperity Rests
On Nation's Crops

(By PRESTON C. ADAMS.)

NEW YORK, June 2.—After all is said and done, the prosperity of the country rests on the crops. This may be trite but it is true. Hence accurate information concerning the condition of the crops is a mighty good foundation upon which to build a forecast of the business future.

With this premise it may be permitted to print a statement which comes from a big manufacturing concern in the Middle West whose agents and salesmen cover the entire country and are in a particularly favorable position to get accurate information concerning the crops. The statement says:

"The dominant note seems to be that while both soil and growing crop conditions, as a rule, are excellent, the principal matter now to watch is rainfall throughout the West, Northwest, the Central West, as upon the amount which we receive in these sections between now and July first will depend the outcome of the crops. Apparently there is a surplus moisture in the soil in the sections mentioned, nor in the Southeastern Atlantic States."

Generally good condition growing crops and soil. West half of Oklahoma still too dry, and while sufficient moisture for present needs in eastern Colorado, western Kansas, western Nebraska, eastern Wyoming, Idaho and Montana, all of both Dakotas, northern Minnesota, northern Wisconsin, yet reports show subsoil in these sections very dry, hence need reasonable rains from now to insure crops.

SEEK BANKER.

One of the most important banking positions in the United States must shortly be filled and already the possible candidates are being considered. The office is that of special examiner for the enlarged New York Clearing House. No other man in the country will be placed in possession of so full information concerning the financial operations of New York City. It will be his duty to ascertain the exact status of every bank and trust company in the organization. From him nothing will be hid.

He will be clothed with unlimited powers in regard to investigating banking accounts and transactions. The knowledge he will thus gain would be worth purchasing at almost any price. It is essential, therefore, that the governors of the Clearing House make the most rigid stipulations as to the conduct of this official during his term of office and after he may resign.

To secure the right kind of a man a very large salary will be necessary, not less than $25,000 per annum, in all probability. To have the duties performed thoroughly and impartially would be worth four times that sum to New York. It is said that no local banker will be chosen, for reasons that need not be specified.

EXAMINER AND STAFF.

Second only in importance to the admission of trust companies to clearing house membership is the agreement to appoint a special examiner with an adequate staff. It is even said that the financial powers were so anxious to introduce this innovation as they were to enroll the trust companies.

Without casting the slightest aspersion on the state banking department, it cannot be said that its periodic examinations inspire full confidence now that the trust company business has reached such a magnitude and has become so extremely diversified in character. When merely trust funds were handled the public's interest in these institutions was not very great, but today the New York trust companies are to be found engaging in all sorts of operations, from the promoting of "holes in the ground" to the collecting of interest on government bonds of widows and orphans. The national banks want to have a proper check upon questionable doings, and it is believed that the new arrangement will prove a valuable step in the right direction.

WASHINGTON'S SOCIETY
ANGRYMembers Declare They Do Not Favor Breaking of the the Sabbath.

(By CONSTANCE CARRUTHERS.)

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Washington society is indignant at its arraignment as a Sabbath-breaking aggregation by the Presbyterian General Assembly in session at Atlantic City. While it is admitted there is more or less Sunday entertaining in Washington, it is not to be blamed either on official or social Washington which it is claimed is as close in its Sabbath observance as is the society element in any city of the union.

Sunday entertaining has become a feature in Washington society of late years—in fact, since the new century began. The foreigners who come as members of the diplomatic corps introduced it. They were followed and helped by New Yorkers who have taken up their residence in Washington for the social season.

Sunday festivities are not indulged in by the official and resident set in Washington as a rule. True, there are some of both, as there are in all circles, who have exercised their individual tastes, but as a class the officials are a church-going conservative set. The foreigner, on the other hand, are the descendants of the teachings of their ancestors, and observe Sunday as a day of church-going and rest from even the exertion of pleasure seeking.

The President and Mrs. Taft, as well as all their predecessors, are of the same mind. The vice president and Mrs. Sherman are among those who never accept or extend Sunday invitations, nor do the other members of the cabinet and their wives.

The speaker of the House of Representatives and Mrs. Champ Clark are also of this class, as are General John W. Foster, former secretary of state and former special envoy to China and Mexico, and his family; the chief justice and Mrs. Edward D. White; Mr. Justice and Mrs. Harlan; Mr. Justice and Mrs. McKenna, former Senator and Mrs. Aldrich, former Representative and Mrs. J. Van Vechten Olcott of New York, Gen. and Mrs. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, Mr. and Mrs. John Hay, Dr. and Mrs. E. K. Goldsborough, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Schley, and Rear Admiral and Mrs. Craig. The list might be extended indefinitely.

Washington society feels therefore that it has not been treated as fairly as the general assembly should make amends.

INTERESTING FUNCTION.

One of the most interesting functions of the season will be the celebration on June 19 of the silver wedding of the President and Mrs. Taft. I understand this anniversary will be celebrated rather quietly, but the distinguished couple will be congratulated by the people of the whole country. The Tafts are an ideal couple and their family life is typical of the old-fashioned American home.

There has been a source of regret to Mrs. Taft's friends that she is in such haste as to prevent her taking the part in social activities that she would have desired. Miss Helen Taft, upon whom many of the social duties of the White House have devolved, has shown a most charming and graceful hostess.

A very interesting report is current in society to the effect that Maj. Archie Butt, the President's military aide, is to win the heart and hand of Miss Lucy Herron Laughlin, sister of Mrs. Taft, and that it is with this end in view the gallant Georgian is having his house fixed up, and accumulating Georgia quilts and the like. The report is a most interesting story but it is regarded as not at all unlikely. If it should be true, Postmaster General Frank H. Hitchcock will soon be the sole prize bachelor of the administration.

The diplomatic corps is rapidly completing its arrangements for the establishment of summer capitals. Here is the list so far as it has been definitely arranged: British, Bag Harbor, French, Manchester-by-the-Sea; German, Manchester-by-the-Sea; Russian, Manchester-by-the-Sea; Mexican, Magnolia, Mass.; Turkish, Belpot, Mass.; Austria, Bag Harbor; Chinese, Nyack-on-the-Hudson; Venezuelan, Bag Harbor; Netherlands, Bag Harbor; Argentine, Buena Vista, Pa.; Persian, Gloucester, Mass.; Greek, Bag Harbor; Siamese, Gloucester, Mass.

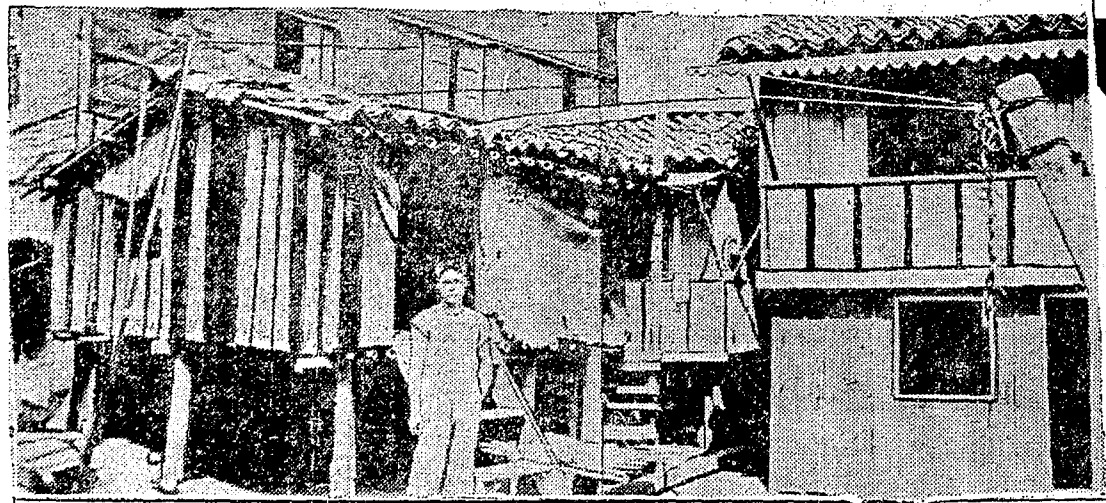

The Belgian, Swiss, Norwegian, Costa Rican, Peruvian, and Salvadoran, Haitian and Dominican legations will not be moved from Washington this summer. The Japanese ambassador, the Chilean and Brazilian charge d'affaires, and the Spanish, Nicaraguan, Swedish, Portuguese, Panamanian, Bolivian, and Cuban ministers have not completed their plans for the summer.

TAFT'S REBUKE.

President Taft's rebuke to the board of governors of the Metropolitan Club for refusing to receive three of the prominent members of Congress continues to be an engrossing subject of conversation in official and club circles and a revolt in the Metropolitan Club is already under way. Senator Root of New York is leading the opposition to a clique of men in Washington's most famous social organization who are attracted to discount brains and achievement in favor of social perquisites and glamour.

When the fact came out about two weeks ago that the governing body of the club in Washington had refused admission to Representative Martin W. Littleton, whose name was put up by Senator Newlands and Thomas Nelson Page, official Washington asked in vain for the cause that prompted their action. The members of the board intimated that Littleton "was too aggressive a politician" to be admitted. THE ARMY AS A LIFE SAVER

BREEDING PLACE OF THE PLAGUE,
MANILA.

THAT war is a condition approaching our popular conception of the abode of the evil one is so generally conceded that it is not open to dispute, but that much good may come from the conflict of nations, or, in other words, that war is an evil which may give birth to much that is best for the future advancement, health and happiness of the human race, is a trouble which needs no better or clearer demonstration than our own experience since the Spanish war placed upon us the custody and government of tropical lands.

Whatever hostilities to civilization were given by the United States in the war of 1898 have been wonderfully redeemed. The unwelcome conquest of undesired territory in the tropics has been turned by us to the world's advantage by the conquest over tropical disease. This is the greatest triumph in the history of the American army. In fact, of any army in the world's history.

While it is true that for the past ten years the study of bacteriology and of the causation of disease has been going on in the laboratories and hospitals of the wide world, from British India all the way around the globe through Europe and America and over the Pacific to Japan. It is also equally certain that our army doctors have kept alert to every discovery and suggestion and in many instances have been the first to apply it in a practical way and with a scientific thoroughness and a military efficiency that has changed the whole aspect of life in tropical countries. In fact, made them fit and healthy for a white man to live in.

FIGHTING FEVERS.

The practical extinction of yellow fever in the West Indies and of the dread malarial fevers on the Isthmus would alone repay many times over all the loss and suffering of the Spanish war. The redemption of the Philippines from all manner of deadly diseases, by efficient sanitation, vaccination and the extermination of disease-bearing pests, would make the American occupation of those islands glorious even if it had accomplished nothing for the mental advancement of the people.

In the comparatively restricted field of military medicine alone we have but to recall the awful scourge of typhoid fever in the camp at Chickamauga and contrast with it the army reports of today to recognize the astounding progress of twelve years. In the Spanish war hardly a regiment escaped typhoid, and the death rate among the affected was appalling. In the division now in Texas, living for two months under canvas in a rain-soaked country, there has been one case, a civilian not protected by vaccination against typhoid.

All this and much more has been accomplished so quietly that it has attracted very little public attention; indeed, the public at large has so meager a realization of it that it will undoubtedly prove of public interest to specialize on this important subject.

With the close of the Spanish war we became responsible for the welfare of Cuba, Porto Rico, the Isthmus of Panama and the Philippine Islands. Every one of these countries in 1898 was to a very great extent a hotbed of one or another, perhaps several, tropical diseases.

President Taft is the authority for the statement that the prevalence of yellow fever in Cuba and its constant recurrence as an epidemic in Havana and the other cities of that island, so near to our own shores, threatening death to our own Southern cities, was one of the chief causes and one of the most potent justifications for the popular feeling that led to the Spanish war.

COLONEL
W. C.
GORGAS

Havana was a pesthole unsafe for any foreigners to live in for any length of time if they desired to keep their health, when Colonel W. C. Gorgas of the army medical corps took hold of the medical work there and started to clean up the city and make it healthy. That he was successful goes without saying.

HAVANA HEALTHY.

Today Havana, even in summer, is much healthier than many of our northern cities, yellow fever there is a thing of the past. The credit of stamping out yellow fever is due to Walter Reed, an army doctor, who investigated and verified the correctness of the theory that the germ of yellow fever was conveyed from one human being to another by a certain species of mosquito. This discovery revolutionized the method of treating yellow fever and it was made clear that the great effort and expenditure of money required to clean up Havana and the other infected towns, while useful, was the prevention of other diseases, had little or no effect to prevent yellow fever.

An entirely different course of procedure had to be followed. It was adopted in Havana and the other cities of Cuba and was most successful.

When our army doctors had finished with Cuba they started in on Porto Rico. They had no yellow fever there, to be sure, but the greater portion of the inhabitants were infected with a slower but equally fatal disease known as the "tropical anæmia."

Well, it was certain that something had to be done for this by your Uncle Sam, and our doctors started to work. One of them, named Ashbrook, had not been on the job long before he discovered that the disease was not as first supposed, the result of starvation and the absence of nutritious food, but was due to the presence in the intestines of the so-called "hook-worm," and that it yielded to treatment, and that many deaths had been caused by the discovery that the hook-worm produced in the people of Porto Rico could be avoided in the future by comparatively simple and specific treatment.

While a certain portion of our army M. D.'s were at work in Cuba and Porto Rico another band of investigators were having troubles of their own in the Philippines. They did not find the hook-worm or yellow fever there, but they did discover, to use the words of President Taft, in glorious exuberance, cholera, bubonic plague, ber-ber, malaria, smallpox, amoebic dysentery and leprosy, a bill of fare for the enterprising and progressive physician and knight of investigation and research calculated to make his mouth water, and a list of scourges which the civil administrator viewed with alarm and despair.

By improving the water supply and introducing mountain water into Manila, at a cost of $2,500,000, and by the introduction of artesian wells in many of the towns and villages of the interior, by regulations as to the food supply, by a new sewage system in Manila, costing $2,000,000, and by regulations securing the proper and safe disposal of sewage in the smaller towns and villages, and by the use of inoculation with cholera lymph, we have greatly reduced the number of victims from cholera in these islands.

"By a wholesale vaccination of all the inhabitants of the Philippines, carried on carefully and rigorously, we have practically stamped out smallpox of all kinds in the islands, in which the black smallpox of the most virulent type flourished before our coming.

CANAL WAST PESTHOLE.

No sooner was Uncle Sam fairly well started in making the above mentioned countries fit for a white man to live in than he was confronted with the problem of making the Panama Canal strip the worst pesthole on the face of the globe healthy.

It is not too much to say that yellow fever and malignant malaria, known there as the Chagres fever, contributed more than any other cause to the failure of the French to build the canal, and when we went to the zone to begin operations we were found there lingering and ready to offer the same obstacles up to that time so fatal to success in this great work; but the Spanish War and the responsibilities it had thrust upon us had given such light on the method of meeting and reducing these obstacles that we have finally swept them away.

YEARS OF PLANNING.

It took two years for us to make the necessary preparations before we could begin the work of excavation and construction. By that time our army doctors had changed this "hell hole" as it was well called into a district as free from disease as any of the Southern States. Yellow fever has been so effectively stamped out that there has not been a case there in two years while the malignancy and extent of malaria on the Isthmus has been reduced to such a point that the percentage of deaths in the foreign population in the Zone is considerably less than in our large cities.

Turning to home we have the best object lesson of our war with Spain. At this writing there are about twenty soldiers in camp in Texas and California. They have been there for months living under canvas and in a country soaked with rain and deep with mud. But as effectively have been the regulative and preventative methods adopted to reduce sickness that the percentage of sick men is less than it was in the posts from which these men were mobilized.

What a contrast to Chickamauga and the other camps established during the Spanish war. In these camps the percentage of typhoid cases was so high that it is hard to believe. Of 120,000 men there were 20,000 cases with a case of mortality of 7 per cent. Of the volunteer regiments mobilized during the Spanish-American War, 80 per cent became infected with typhoid fever within eight weeks from the date of the mobilization.

By improving the water supply and introducing mountain water into Manila, at a cost of $2,500,000, and by the introduction of artesian wells in many of the towns and villages of the interior, by regulations as to the food supply, by a new sewage system in Manila, costing $2,000,000, and by regulations securing the proper and safe disposal of sewage in the smaller towns and villages, and by the use of inoculation with cholera lymph, we have greatly reduced the number of victims from cholera in these islands.

"By a wholesale vaccination of all the inhabitants of the Philippines, carried on carefully and rigorously, we have practically stamped out smallpox of all kinds in the islands, in which the black smallpox of the most virulent type flourished before our coming.

"By a crusade against rats and a cleaning up and destruction of the foci of the disease, we have taken all the terrors in the Philippines out of bubonic plague.

"By careful attention to the destruction of the mosquito, we have greatly moderated the injurious effects from malaria; and while amoebic dysentery continues to be a most dangerous lingering ailment, if treated in time it is the subject to the control and cure the remedies discovered and adopted there.

"When we went to the Philippines lepers were at large. There were leper hospitals in Manila, in Cebu, and in other parts of the country, but the horrible and disgusting character of them beggars description. We have segregated the lepers in all provinces in the islands to the number of 40,000, and have taken them to Cullion, a beautiful island in the Southern seas, have given them almost a self governing colony and have made them so happy and comfortable that we now have no difficulty in inducing all persons afflicted with this disease to join the colony. The effect of this segregation has been to reduce the new cases annually of leprosy to 16 per cent of what they were formerly.

"One of the most obstinate and difficult diseases in the Philippines, and indeed of the whole Orient, has been what is called ber-ber. We have segregated the cases of it as beyond our discovery. But now it has been definitely traced to the use of polished rice as food. I need not go farther than to say that 24 per cent of the Japanese army were afflicted with ber-ber during the Russian-Japanese war. The change of this food from polished to unpolished rice has practically stamped out the disease in the Philippines."

By no means was our little scrap with the Don the worst thing that could have happened to be sure—it cost lives and money, but they are really as nothing compared with the benefits to the human race that will have accrued and will continue to accrue from the discoveries which the exigencies of that war and the governmental burdens following it presented. And then just to show our hustle and as a last word it may be well to mention that while other countries have been in the tropics for nearly two centuries we in the short space of twelve years have bridged the difference. Indeed, we have made more progress in the discovery of methods of prevention and care for tropical diseases than all other countries have made in those two centuries.

At 29 She Would Divorce Her Sixth

LONGSPORT, Ind.—Mrs. Lydia Ice Green Baker Hayes Turner Brown Jones, 29 years of age, filed suit in the Cass Circuit Court yesterday for divorce from John Edward Jones, her sixth husband. She says in her complaint that he "was not the man I thought he was."

"When I married Jones I was going with another young man," she said. "He was 19 years old. I wish I'd married him. My attorney said that what I should tell the court if the judge asked me how many times I was going to get married, and I told him I was going to keep at it until I got the right man."

Her five divorced husbands are all living and Jones says he joins with them in believing her a fine woman, but of too loving a temperament.

"I don't think she was intended for a quiet, domestic life and I filed a cross-complaint," said Jones.

RICH, TAKES CHEAP JOB.
CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 3.—Harold Clarke Durrell of this city, the wealthy son of the late Oliver H. Durrell, began work yesterday as a grocery clerk at $9 a week. The young man is a Harvard graduate. His father left more than a million dollars.

Burrell believes that the best method to attain business success is to follow in the footsteps of his father and begin at the bottom. He will work an average of eleven hours a day. He preferred to enter the grocery business instead of the firm of Brown, Durrell & Co., with which he has business interests, because he believed in the latter firm he would be treated with too much consideration.

Neapolitan Life Pervaded by Fear of Dread Camorra

If we did not have the Black Hand playing its grim pranks with considerable success right in our midst probably no one on this side of the water would believe that the Camorristi of Naples could exercise the subtle and terrible power which they actually do exercise over their fellow townsmen who live in the sun-dashed, color-flecked city on the beautiful bay, says the New York Tribune. It is extremely difficult, even now that the trial of the leaders of the notorious Camorra is going on at Viterbo, to get the truth of the society are and the secrets of the society are apparently being revealed, to gather any genuine stories of the doings of the Camorristi, because, after all, only a few of the prominent members of the great secret community are on trial. The rank and file, together with enough leaders to keep the society as well organized as ever are still on the trail in Naples and are busy with their customary activities.

So general, however, is the reign of terror that the extraordinary examples of it have within the last few days come to light. To show how thoroughly used to the Camorra idea Neapolitans are, the police recently disorganized a gang of street boys who had for some weeks been keeping a whole neighborhood in complete subjection in the following ingenious manner:

"One morning, a shopkeeper, when he opened his store, found the windows smashed. One or two householders in the vicinity also found their windows in the street floor broken. A little later in the day a tall lad went casually into the shop and said to the padrone:

"I see your windows are broken."

"Yes," answered the shopkeeper sullenly. "I should like to know who did it."

"I know," replied the youth. "It is a pack of lawless boys. If you will give me a few lire a week I and my fellows will protect you from them."

The shopkeeper looked keenly at the youngascal, and decided in favor of giving him the money. But he soon learned that the neighbors were all visited in turn, and only one refused the sum demanded for protection. His windows were all smashed the next night, and the following day he gave in.

The majority of the young scamps, whose messenger the tall lad was, were not more than twelve or fourteen years old and in no way connected with or inspired by the Camorra. Yet, profiting by the habit into which the law-abiding people of the city had fallen, the habit of paying to be let alone the urchins had made a good sum of money out of simple blackmail.

WAYS OF LIVING.

The Camorristi, of course, have far more unexpected ways of living on the streets and in the houses than the ordinary citizens. They do not find the hook-worm or yellow fever there, but they did discover, to use the words of President Taft, in glorious exuberance, cholera, bubonic plague, ber-ber, malaria, smallpox, amoebic dysentery and leprosy, a bill of fare for the enterprising and progressive physician and knight of investigation and research calculated to make his mouth water, and a list of scourges which the civil administrator viewed with alarm and despair.

Reviews of the Latest Gossip About Makers Books of Fiction, Travel and Science of Books and Their Work

One of the new summer books, published this month, is entitled "The Sovereign Power" (Macmillan Company). Its author is Mark Lee Luther, who has written three very successful books, "The Crucible," "The Hunchman" and "The Mystery."

"The Sovereign Power" has all the elements of a good summer story. One reads of it:

"A capital novel of love, adventure and diplomatic intrigue, of youth matched against experience."

"A novel of exciting incidents, keeping the interest in suspense from first to last."

"Its hero attempts to regain a feudal heritage by most uncommon methods."

"His social instincts are a mediaeval inheritance, his education is as modern as his aeroplane."

"Its whole exciting plot centers around an American girl whose ideals are equally modern."

In the first place it is an aeroplane story, and that carries with it an extraordinary amount of interest these days, and all the technical part of the flying machine development is kept out of sight.

Then, again, the book has a foreign background, and that always carries a special appeal. Some of the most successful writers of the day owe much to this same foreign background. Many of Mrs. Humphrey Ward's stories are told against a colorful Italian environment, and Robert Hichens certainly owes a debt of gratitude to the great Sahara desert.

And so we find the story of "The Sovereign Power" unfolded to us from a charming background of Southern Europe.

The first chapter shows us that wonderful aviation meet at Rheims, which made such important history in the art of machine flying.

STORY BEGINS EARLY

"We hear of the achievements of Paulhan, of Latham, and of those other aviators whose names have since become household words. But in fact we really begin the story before that; it begins for us in that beautiful Rheims cathedral, in the most famous cathedral in Europe."

There is a fine inspiring chapter on "Money and Happiness."

"Emerson suggests that the poor man is the man who wishes to be rich. If men only knew the secret, happiness might be reduced to a science and be bought within the reach of every reasonable mortal. Happiness is usually pivoted on three things: (1) Good health, (2) a moderate income, reasonably sure, and (3) a few spare hours every day to be devoted to some favorite study or occupation. The moderately happy people are those who have found the right elements entering naturally into their lives. I say moderately happy people, for great happiness is the lot of but a few mortals. There is a world of wisdom in the words of the Connecticut farmer: 'Success comes here to settle about forty years ago. I told my wife I wanted to be rich. She said she did not want to be rich; all she wanted was enough to be comfortable. I went to work and cleared up my land; I've worked hard ever since, and got rich—as rich as I want to be. Now she comes here to settle about forty years ago, and they all have farms—and my wife ain't comfortable yet.'"

And again one reads:

"Harvard's retiring president, Dr. Eliot, is not rich, but what a profound influence he has exerted as president of a great university. Who will challenge his wisdom in deciding to give his life to the building of character rather than the accumulation of money? These are his own words: 'I have believed,' says Dr. Eliot, 'for the past two or three months to much praise. It was painful at first. I am getting used to it now, and there is a great satisfaction in the thought that the standard of success which the praise has in mind is not the so-called American standard of money-making. It reminds me of what the mate of a steamboat said to me once. I had traveled often on the boat, and the mate knew me. The mate said to me one day: 'I want to ask you a question. We've been talking it all over. You're a smart man, why ain't you rich?' It is refreshing to see that the American mind is coming around to that point where it can realize that the great satisfaction in life is the thought that poverty or wealth. President Eliot comes to the seventies a poor man. Yet we presume from the comments of the current literature that his life is looked upon as one of the great successes of the century. There are many millionaires in the country whose lives have been conspicuous failures. One may make his life a great success with millions, as Mr. Carnegie has done, but one may also live a rich, productive, beneficent life on a living wage only, as Dr. Eliot has done."

The book would be admirably worth while if only for that one chapter on friendship.

PROFOUND INFLUENCE

LIKE HI MAT ONCE

From the moment one finds Justin Blair looking over a wrecked aeroplane, owned by an American, one likes him, for he says:

"And now let's get down to facts. I know fighting Joe Page's son would never chuck the army for a wildcat scheme. Just what have you got here that the others haven't? And will money grease the wheels?"

Apparently money did, for Oliver Page, who is a fine type of the young American, wins out in his airship.

Then there are Mr. and Mrs. Truscott—the latter the rich American snob, of whom we all are so desperately ashamed. We have to admit the truth of her—she does exist. She has loads of money; she has the soul of a butterfly, and she fits from place to place with the agility of a grasshopper. And she tries to know great people, and she buys her way as she goes, but it all does not take her very far, and she drags her poor, hopeless, helpless, out any rest for the soles of his feet. But she is of us—she is one of our types; we despise her, but we cannot disown her. For the Truscotts we have always with us, except, indeed, when we send them abroad. But after all they make interesting copy, and there is great comfort in reading about people to whom one must inevitably feel superior.

The story has all the elements of a successful novel, and the author has used his materials with rare skill. He has given us one of the most readable of the summer novels.

VALUABLE VOLUME

One of the most valuable books of the year is entitled "The Young Man and His Problems." The editors in their foreword say of it:

"This book is an inspiring and uplifting work for young men. The first chapter deals with grit, others with will power, self-control, tact, friendship, personal magnetism, books, worry, dissipation, courage, and marriage. Each chapter contains several interesting and telling anecdotes of men in public life, along with which there is much helpful and vital comment by an author possessed of literary force and depth of feeling. The book is written wholly in the twentieth century spirit. Without being didactic it is inspiring and effective in many ways."

The book is not altogether for young men—it is for everyone. The older man will take much comfort in it. One remembers the comfort there is in Longfellow's wise message:

"For age is opportunity no less Than youth itself, though in another dress;

And as the twilight fades away The sky is filled with stars, invisible by day."

And somehow this new book contains a great ringing challenge to the world—a command to rise to better things. All one's ideals, all one's aspirations, all one's hopes, are embodied in this book which sounds such a royal bugle call to duty.

Its pages are full of anecdotes of great men, one sees why they were successful, and one learns some of life's lessons in a very wonderful fashion.

And humor as radiates from the book!

"Be kind, but be firm." Let us recall the counsel of Sir Hugo to Daniel Deronda:

"Be courteous, be obliging, Dan; but don't give yourself over to be melted down by the world. Be kind, but be firm."

There is a fine inspiring chapter on "Money and Happiness."

"Emerson suggests that the poor man is the man who wishes to be rich. If men only knew the secret, happiness might be reduced to a science and be bought within the reach of every reasonable mortal. Happiness is usually pivoted on three things: (1) Good health, (2) a moderate income, reasonably sure, and (3) a few spare hours every day to be devoted to some favorite study or occupation. The moderately happy people are those who have found the right elements entering naturally into their lives. I say moderately happy people, for great happiness is the lot of but a few mortals. There is a world of wisdom in the words of the Connecticut farmer: 'Success comes here to settle about forty years ago. I told my wife I wanted to be rich. She said she did not want to be rich; all she wanted was enough to be comfortable. I went to work and cleared up my land; I've worked hard ever since, and got rich—as rich as I want to be. Now she comes here to settle about forty years ago, and they all have farms—and my wife ain't comfortable yet.'"

And again one reads:

"Harvard's retiring president, Dr. Eliot, is not rich, but what a profound influence he has exerted as president of a great university. Who will challenge his wisdom in deciding to give his life to the building of character rather than the accumulation of money? These are his own words: 'I have believed,' says Dr. Eliot, 'for the past two or three months to much praise. It was painful at first. I am getting used to it now, and there is a great satisfaction in the thought that the standard of success which the praise has in mind is not the so-called American standard of money-making. It reminds me of what the mate of a steamboat said to me once. I had traveled often on the boat, and the mate knew me. The mate said to me one day: 'I want to ask you a question. We've been talking it all over. You're a smart man, why ain't you rich?' It is refreshing to see that the American mind is coming around to that point where it can realize that the great satisfaction in life is the thought that poverty or wealth. President Eliot comes to the seventies a poor man. Yet we presume from the comments of the current literature that his life is looked upon as one of the great successes of the century. There are many millionaires in the country whose lives have been conspicuous failures. One may make his life a great success with millions, as Mr. Carnegie has done, but one may also live a rich, productive, beneficent life on a living wage only, as Dr. Eliot has done."

The book would be admirably worth while if only for that one chapter on friendship.

THE POOL OF SILOAM

"I'm a patient man," said Dodd, as he got the man ashore the second time, "but if yez try that again——" And then he called the wench.

At the PLAYS

ORPHEUM

Now comes "The Perfect Girl" in vaudeville, this being the day set for the debut on the Orpheum stage of Miss Margaret Edwards of Berkeley, who won her title to "The Perfect Girl" when she was awarded a gold medal in an international competition for being the most perfectly formed girl in the world.

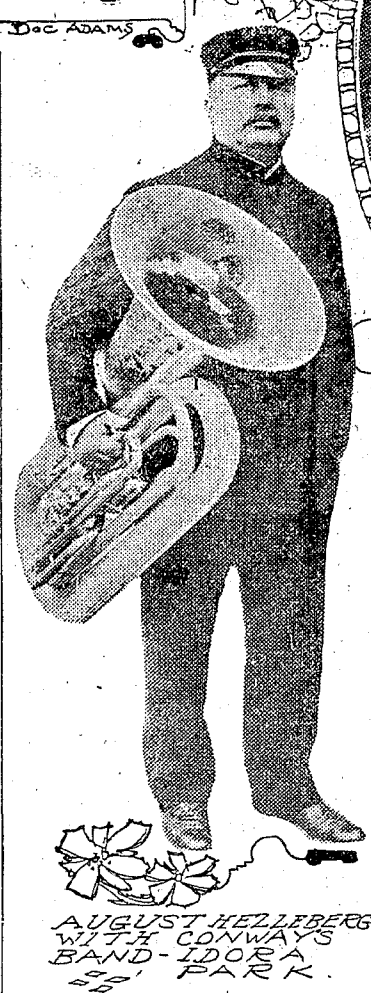

The new show of which Miss Edwards is a prominent feature is headed by "The Little Stranger," a George V. Hobart sketch, and includes altogether six new acts with but two of the features of last week held over, so that the program as a whole includes unusual novelty.

Joseph Hart's production of Frank Craven and George V. Hobart's one-act play "The Little Stranger" will be the headline feature of the Orpheum bill. The scene is a southern racetrack and the story is that of a broken-down "sport" who risks his last five dollars on a "long shot" in order to gain funds to provide for the little stranger expected at his home. By a coincidence the horse he backs is called "The Little Stranger." To enter more fully into details would be to dull the interest which is always attached to the presentation of this little drama—suffice it to say that it will be elaborately and perfectly mounted and given an excellent cast, which will include George Pierce, Percy Plunkett and Paul Dull.

Bowers, Walters and Crooker, a trio of comedy acrobats coming to the Orpheum, have taken rather worn material and made it seem new, as Bowers and his associates do some clowning and acrobatic work that is absolutely different from anything else ever attempted in their line. Since their line is the very backbone of vaudeville they deserve a word of appreciation for their enterprise in devising a novel act. The trio comes on the stage made up as farmers, and backwoods farmers at that, and their awkwardness is very amusing. After going through a routine of rools and jigs they attempt to excel each other in acrobatic feats, and their efforts are extremely grotesque, keeping the audience in roars of laughter.

The Five Armanis, who come direct from the Orpheum's Paris affiliated theater, the Alhambra, bring a gorgeous scenic musical review entitled, "A Night in Naples." The title indicates the poetic and picturesque setting of this magnificent staging novelty, and as each of the five Armanis are splendid musicians a rare offering may be anticipated.

Another English music hall favorite has been provided to the Orpheum in the person of Hal Forde, the popular English "swagger" comedian, and the London critics are unanimous in their approval of his occupying the forenoon role in the light comic opera field. Mr. Forde is the possessor of a sweet baritone voice of exceptional range and presents an excellent stage appearance in his faultless style of dress. He has an extensive repertoire of songs to se-of great educational value. Mrs. Edwards will superintend each detail of it herself, will accompany her daughter throughout and in every way will make sure that the highest purposes of art and education are served by the appearance of her charming daughter in vaudeville.

Howard Hickman and Bessie Barriscale, who have won golden opinions for their dramatic work in the sketch "Disqualified" during the last week, will appear in an entirely new offering tomorrow. They will present a drama written by Mr. Hickman entitled "The Wrong Road." Its characters portray scenes of the East Side in New York and suggests the excitement and adventure of life in the underworld in the metropolis. The play is a strong departure of any yet undertaken by either Mr. Hickman or Miss Barriscale and is expected to be unusually interesting on this account, as well as because of the intrinsic merit of the play itself.

Tom Waters, the great pianist and comedian, whose delicious imitations on the piano have convulsed Orpheum audiences during the last week, will remain a stellar feature of the show.

Robedillo, the Cuban wonder on the wire, will have a number of new stunts to introduce, which are expected to make his performance even more sensational than ever.

There will be new daylight motion pictures shown.

BELL

Eight pretty girls who play all sorts of musical instruments, sing daintily and dance to beat the band will be among those present in the next week's bill at the Bell, with one of the greatest ensemble acts in vaudeville. The eight Vassar girls are known from one end of the country to the other for the music they have made and are making. Their act is gorgeously dressed and beautifully staged. There are electrical effects that are new and beautiful, among which is the novel and beautiful display of 5000 tiny electric bulbs, and in all ways the act measures up as one of the most pretentious ever seen here.

Harry Le Clair has come to be known as "The Bernhardt of Vaudeville," a male Bernhardt, to be sure, but as all of his characterizations are feminine, the sobriquet is not so much misplaced after all. Le Clair is both impersonator and master of humorous satire and through all of his many characters there is the touch of good nature that robs them of any suggestion of meanness or malice. This week he is presenting a satire upon G. Bernard Shaw's "Candida," and it is not going over far to say that it is a riot of fun.

Two big laughing hits, two irresistibly funny fellows are Johnson and Wells, who will give the Bell attendants some singing, some dancing and a little talking. It is an effective combination, a great big comedy producer and is going to be one of the features of the new bill. Joe Fantom's "Awakening Athletes" have contrived an exhibition on the Roman rings that comes near to being in a class by itself. Not one of the trio but could qualify for a "strong man" act and all of them are marvelously graceful in every evolution. The act is handsomely staged and the "business" if a professional term may be used, is pure artistry.

The act is in every way well worth while. Harry Knox and Mercedes Alvin bring nothing new in the way of a vaudeville idea, but they bring a whole lot of extraordinary quality. They sing and turn loose a lot of patter, just as dozens of others have done before them, but their singing is exceptional and their patter more than ever to the merry, so their act must be counted among the good ones. Add to their ability the very stunning brunette beauty of Miss Alvin and the combination becomes fairly irresistible.

YE LIBERTY

"Arizona," the best play of the West ever written, will be the attraction at Ye Liberty at the popular matinee this afternoon and this evening. It has proven one of the biggest hits the stock players have had this season, and although it could easily be played to another profitable week's business, these performances of today will bring its run to a close.

THE IZZETTA JEWEL SEASON.

Tomorrow evening, Izzetta Jewel commences her special season of five weeks with the company. It is the fourth an-composer, so the play is provided with a happy ending.

Izzetta Jewel's handling of this role is so well remembered by Liberty patrons that it is unnecessary to go into details regarding it here. It is unquestionably as fine a performance as any stock actress has ever given in Oakland. Edward Fielding will have the role of Lancelot, the composer with whom the little "slave" is in love, and with the natural qualifications for the role he possesses, it should be a most impressive one in his hands. Henry Shumer, George Webster, James Gleason, Andrew Benson, Walter Whipple, Ivan Miller, Mrs. Gleason, Miss Gailhour, Miss Seymour, Miss Sanker and all the other Liberty favorites will be well taken care of.

After one week of the Zangwill success, Miss Jewel will be presented in the first Western presentation of "Rosalind and Red Gate," the sequel to "The House of a Thousand Candles" and the best book play produced in the East last season.

MACDONOUGH

John Drew, of well-maintained and merited popularity, comes to the Macdonough theater June 12, 13 and 14, in "Smith," his offering of the present season, which is the newest comedy by W. Somerset Maugham, and, by all accounts, the best he has yet given the stage. Among his other works are "Lady Frederick," "Jack Straw" and "Mrs. Dot," pieces which have met with success both in America and England. "Smith," first done in London, was accounted there its author's finest effort, a verdict ratified later in New York. The play has a serious element to balance its lighter side, which Mr. Maugham gives free play to his nimble wit and, in this instance, biting satire. Mr. Drew has a capital role enabling him to display his usual polished comedy work and to carry some situations of deeper meaning as well. "Smith" has some love scenes with a new angle which are especially charming. The piece has been at the Empire theater in New York for three months. The complete original cast will be seen in this city. Special matinee June 14.

IDORA

On the musical program which Patrick Conway and his band will render this afternoon and evening at Idora park are many selections which should be of great interest to all lovers of music, both classic and popular. Conway's famous musical organization continues to enjoy popularity with Idora patrons at every concert. Nearly every concert has some special feature or couple of selections which are either new or novel.

This evening Conway will render a humorous fantasia by Lotter called "A Southern Wedding." It depicts the scenes leading up to and during the wedding of a colored couple, the entire scene being easily followed by the different instruments. The man's voice is represented by the trombone, while that of his happy bride by the flute. The bassoon plays the part of the parson. Among the classical compositions to be rendered during the evening will be selections by Fletow, Rubenstein, Ellenberg, Tschalkowsky, Delibes, Strauss and Mydleton. Then there will be the usual large number of encore numbers, comprising the latest selections from the Broadway musical shows, such as "The Spring Maid," "Girl of My Dreams," "Naughty Marietta," "Bright Eyes," "Madame Sherry" and "The Chocolate Soldier."

At the afternoon concert Mrs. Dunfee will sing "The Swallow," by Doll-Aqua, and John Dolan, the great cornetist, will play "The Favorite," by Hartman. Classical selections by Wallace, Drigo, Kevin, Busch, Rossini, Rachmaninoff and Beethoven, together with plenty of popular airs will compose the afternoon session of music.

Drama and Players in New York

(By JAMES THURSTON.)

NEW YORK, June 3.—The discussion against fifth on the stage recently started by George M. Cohan and Wilton Lackaye, both of whom are church members, has been productive of much good. Joseph Brooks of Klaw and Erlanger makes the latest contribution to it. He says:

"It was a matter of the keenest satisfaction to me that I was interested in producing 'Ben Hur.' It is much more than a play or a stage spectacle. It is a wonderful story and its success was made because it dealt with a subject dear to the people themselves. But by far the most gratifying thing in connection with the presentation of this biblical play is the number of people it has attracted to the theater—people who ordinarily never grace the doors of a playhouse."

"At the height of last season Klaw and Erlanger and the writer had the exceptionally good fortune to secure another play which is a striking example of the genuine play of the soil. This is called 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.' It is dramatization by Kate Douglas Wiggin and Charlotte Thompson of the beautiful and whimsical 'Rebecca' stories."

"I personally draw the line at the exploitation of the seamy side of life. I say this because I am firmly convinced that people, as a whole, do not love to have the worst sides of life held up to them, even though the mirror used be the stage of the theater."

"The public soon tires of the violet-lights emanating from the stage of the drama. They want the genuine thing in the long run. The best proof that this is so, and that the genuine, lasting thing in the way of dramatic productions is the natural play, the play of life, as we have it in the world, is the fact that such plays as these live through many years, while all the passing fancies of the theater, all the vogues in the drama, all the fads for particular kinds of plays, die out of their own accord."

Despite the loss of a large sum of money the two years regime at the New Theater, Winthrop Ames should be happy, because William A. Brady says that Mr. Ames is a great producer. "Unquestionably," Mr. Brady says, "the man whose achievement is the proudest and finest in the history of the theater since 1889 is Winthrop Ames of the New Theater. If there is any New York producer I could be jealous of it is he."

The New Theater Company that has been on tour has returned. The itinerary included Baltimore, Washington, Cleveland, Pittsburg and Philadelphia. The company presented "The Piper" and "The Sign of the Cross." That there will be a company next season formed from the cast at the New Theater seems a strong probability. It seems a certainty, however, that Winthrop Ames will be at the head of the organization, and George Foster Platt general stage director.

The New Theater newsboys' benefit night was the scene of the biggest benefit this city has seen in years. The newsboys' Home Club's summer camp profited by several thousand dollars. Newsboys will reverse the name of William Fox, who not only contributed time and money and talent in their behalf, but gave them an evening's enjoyment that will live in their memories.

One of the biggest surprises of the benefit was the unheralded appearance of Dolly Taylor. She came on very demurely and was not on the stage long before the audience realized that a real artist was presenting the play. She scored a tremendous hit, and it will not be very long before this girl will be in the headliner division.

Her work is a revelation to those who are accustomed to the hackneyed style of the vaudeville act. When she finished her run several managers rushed and, well, that's another narrative.

Edna Blanche Showalter, an American girl—educated in America, trained for a career in grand opera in America, and who made her operatic reputation and won her first laurels in her own country, has been selected by Henry W. Savage to create the role of "Minnie," in "The Girl of the Golden West," in the first production of this American opera in the English language. She will sing at three performances a week for a season of thirty weeks.

She leaped into fame in the musical world last September by her singing of the title role in the grand opera, "Paolella," produced for a month at Cincinnati. She sang the role at twelve performances and won the most enthusiastic praise. Those who heard and saw her in "Paolella" anticipate that she will give to the role of "Minnie" in "The Girl of the Golden West" a peculiar charm.

During the season she has had many successful appearances as soloist with Walter Damrosch's Symphony Orchestra on its various tours of the country. Mr. Damrosch is enthusiastic about her.

Lillian Russell, as I announced weeks ago, is to appear on the vaudeville stage. A theatrical man has signed a contract with her and they say the salary figures would suggest Rockefeller. To be exact, Miss Russell will have $20 a minute for twenty minutes' work each day, and she appears twice daily for seven days for ten minutes at the matinee and ten minutes in the evening.

Following the example of Lina Cavalieri and other great actresses Lillian Russell has attached herself to the staff of a Western paper in New York.

Miss Russell's contract is of one year's duration. During that period there will appear daily articles by Miss Russell.

WANTED TO KISS HER FOR THE HOME-RUN HITS

NEW YORK.—A pleasant reward for making a home run was introduced in Montclair, N. J., when the juniors and fresh girls of the Montclair Girls' High School met in a baseball game.

Miss Louise Perry, shortstop for the freshmen, smashed out a home run in the second inning. It sailed far out over the head of the center fielder and two other girls on the plate ahead of Louise on the wall.

So delighted were the freshmen rooters, who were crowded along the first and third base lines and back of the plate, that they seized Miss Perry and kissed her.

That form of reward struck several men as excellent and they leaped from their seats and rushed for the field to join in the bestowal. But Louise's sister players sternly waved back the men.

The clamorous fellows went back to their seats and did little else but shout to the remaining batters to make home runs. When, in the fourth inning, Miss Van Vleck, of the freshman class banged out a homer, the men made another rush. Some even turned headsprings toward the diamond, but again cooler heads prevailed, the enthusiastic outburst was stifled and Miss Van Vleck was left unharmed.

Watching those ducks fly recalls to mind the time I brought into play the services of many thousands of wild swans. I don't believe there is a bird on the face of the earth that has as much genuine intelligence as a wild swan. Why, it's wonderful how easily they would pick up a conversation with me after I had studied their language for awhile. And they loved me—my, how those wild swans did love your Uncle Opie! They would have gone to their death for me at any time, and if this particular species hadn't become extinct, you may believe I now would have a large flock of them somewhere around here.

OLD OPIE DILLDOCK'S STORIES

(Copyright: 1911: by The Tribune Company, Chicago, Ill.)

The wild swan has a note, a cry, which is so musical one ever enjoys hearing it. It sounds more like a soft cornet note than anything else I can think of. Back in the early thirties I used to sit and listen to a flock of them. I studied their call and soon had mastered it.

Having mastered the call, I would imitate it and soon they would come flocking to me with the confidence of babies. I had a flock that constantly ate from my hands, and it was while feeding them that I studied their language and the great idea of air navigation by human beings dawned upon me.

I gathered them about me one day and in their swan language confided to them what I wished to learn—the secret of their flight in air. They readily consented to help me in my endeavor—indeed, were delighted at the prospect of being able to teach a man the rudiments of flying.

So the following morning we started out bright and early on my first lesson. I was too heavy at first for one swan to carry, so I got around this difficulty by springing lightly from the back of one to the back of another, scarcely touching either of them.

After a little I began distributing the weight of my body differently by getting two birds abreast and riding through the air with a foot on the back of each bird. I thus was enabled to rest and study the movements of their outstretched wings.

An hour or so later I singled out the largest bird of the flock and gingerly stepped upon its broad back. I was a trifle heavy at first but he soon became used to the burden, and as I did not interfere with his wings, we got along nicely.

The flock was constantly being augmented by other wild swans as we went on our flight toward a fairly good sized city some few miles distant. As we neared the city I noticed that the high tower of a building was in flames. Then I used bird language.

I instructed them to fly close to the building. This they did, and I discovered that the streams which the firemen were playing on the building did not reach the thickest of the flames. A bucket factory

In the bill of each I placed a large pail, and then with great speed I directed them to fly to a nearby lake, fill the pails with water, and return to the building. I told them this in wild swan talk and they under-

The flock of birds at this time numbered some seventy thousand, and equipped as each bird was with a large pail, it was not very long before they succeeded in checking the flames and getting the fire under control. Half an hour's work, flying to and from the lake, seventy thousand buckets of water thrown upon the flames every minute and a half, did the job. The building and its occupants were saved, and loud and long were the cheers as I coasted the back of my favorite bird and soared away.

New Commissioners Fail to Get Together on Question of Positions

Anderson May Be Dark Horse in Race to Run Police Department

Nothing has been done as yet by the commissioners-elect who are to compose the council of this city under the new charter, in the way of organization or determining who will be at the heads of the different departments of the city government. Speculation of all kind has been indulged in, but the commissioners, Mayor Mott, City Engineer Turner, Councilman Baucus, John Forrest and Harry Anderson, declare that there has been no understanding arrived at on the question any more than was the case when the announcement was made that the men named had been elected.

Yesterday one of the best informed politicians in this city made the startling announcement that Commissioner Anderson, in the new administration, would have the balance of power. This was startling, for the reason that the general supposition has been that Anderson would have to accept any commission which the other four, or even three other commissioners, would assign him. The consensus of opinion was that the most Anderson might expect in the matter of a commission, with which there might be some patronage connected, would be that on revenue and finance. Anderson would have little patronage to dispose of in that department. The reason why it seemed he was slated for that berth was because all the other commissioners-elect were closer in touch with the last administration than Anderson and, besides, in the campaign, Anderson succeeded in defeating City Treasurer Meese who had made his fight in connection with the mayor and the other members of the administration.

From such a position to be advanced to a condition in which, as is hinted, Anderson may exercise the balance of power and thus secure any commissioner he may desire, is a

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—As the result of being struck by a Sacramento street car at East and Market streets May 18, El D. Bloomer, an artist, died tonight at the Hahnemann hospital. Bloomer was first taken to the Harbor hospital, then to St. Mary's hospital and later to the Hahnemann. Bloomer was 45 years of age.

Unidentified Aged Man
Is Killed by Automobile

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—An unidentified man was struck by an automobile tonight as he was crossing the street at Van Ness avenue and Hayes street, and sustained injuries which resulted in his death a few hours later at the Hahnemann Hospital. The auto's victim was about 65 years of age, well dressed and had $25 in his pockets. Nothing was found which would assist in identifying him. He was of medium height, had a florid complexion and had a gray mustache. Following the accident the aged man was taken to the Central Emergency Hospital and later removed to the Hahnemann hospital. William R. Orman, the chauffeur of the auto delivery wagon which fatally injured the unidentified man, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter and booked at the Bush street station. Orman was released on bail furnished by his employer, the Rathjen Mercantile Company.

Regular Soldiers Are Not To Guard Forests of State

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Secretary of War Stimson has declined to comply with the resolution adopted by the California Legislature requesting that detachments from the regular army be stationed in the forest reserves of California during July, August and September, to assist in preventing and to fight forest fires. The resolution was presented to the War Department by Congressman Raker and the reasons for the Department's refusal to comply are stated in a letter from Secretary Stimson. He said that if troops were stationed in the forest reserves of California, similar requests would probably come from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and other states having large forest reservations. Too many men would be required for the work during the time usually devoted to practical training of the army, declares the War Department.

SPRING VALLEY SETS PRICE AT $40,000,000

Puts Figure as Its Lowest Offer to the City of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Spring Valley Water Company officials have demanded $40,000,000 from Mayor McCarthy as the purchase price of their properties. In addition to this figure, they also insist upon having turned over to them the $800,000 impounded by the courts. It is an uncompromising figure which has been named as the absolute minimum price at which the properties can be purchased.

It is the problem of satisfactorily explaining to the people this enhancement of value, since eighteen months ago when the purchase price was $35,000,000, that has caused the long delay in arriving at an understanding in the negotiations between the supervisors and the company.

During the early negotiations several months ago the representatives of the water company stood firmly by their stated resolve not to make an offer of their properties to the city. They insisted that the city must make the offer and that only under those circumstances would it treat with the members of the present administration. This stand was receded from to the extent that Spring Valley has named its price.

Mayor McCarthy today turned to the city engineer and President Casey of the Board of Public Works for assistance. They arranged a program for the employment of John R. Freeman, an eminent eastern engineer, to aid in going over the recently acquired properties of the water company with a view to ascertaining just how much of the additional $5,000,000 can plausibly be accounted for.

White Gets Tired Giving Out
Orders None Will Obey

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Chief of Police Seymour says that he has been informed that half a hundred gamblers have been summoned by the police commissioners to assist in convicting him upon the trial before the police board on the charges signed by Captain of Police Henry O'Day.

When Chief Seymour was called to trial last Wednesday on the charges signed by Secretary Siskely of the police board, these gamblers were present under subpoena, and ready to testify against the chief. Now that the Siskely charges have been voluntarily dismissed and the O'Day charges substituted, it is said that the gamblers are still ready to testify, and that they will be again subpoenaed.

It was pointed out by Chief Seymour that the gamblers connected with the Saratoga Club, in which Gustav Postler was shot to death, had refused to appear and testify against Captain O'Day upon his trial before the police commissioners, though Seymour had caused subpoenas to be served upon all of them.

"CONSPIRACY," SAYS SEYMOUR.

"If anything were needed," said Seymour, "to show that my attempted removal from office is the result of a rank conspiracy, this summoning of the gamblers who have been put out of business by me would clinch the proof."

The gamblers will testify that gambling was opened up after I assumed office. They will testify that they had an understanding with me that the games might run. All such testimony will be false, but the prosecution needs it to support the charges and expected testimony of Captain O'Day that I ordered him not to put his officers inside the clubs because I had been "reached" by the gamblers.

"All such testimony, of course, will be false, as to any wrong doing upon my part, but the prosecution needs it in order to support the charges and expected testimony of Captain O'Day that I ordered him not to put his officers inside the clubs because I had been 'reached' by the gamblers. And the gamblers will feel safe in giving such false testimony, for they have been told that a witness who gives false testimony in a trial before the police commissioners cannot be prosecuted for perjury."

"But it is possible that a way will be found to punish persons guilty of this brand of perjury. I will wait and see."

SEYMOUR IN COMMAND.

While the lawyers for the police commissioners were engaged in laying plans for a legal fight to have the restraining order of Judge Siskely set aside before next Wednesday, Chief Seymour sat in undisputed

The doctor who was called in said Miss Kromayer died of a cerebral hemorrhage, but the officials have ordered a post-mortem examination.

ACCIDENT IN YOSEMITE

YOSEMITE, June 2.—In a stage coach runaway this afternoon on a steep grade between the big tree grove, at Wawona, and the floor of Yosemite valley, R. S. Lincroft of Altaville, Pa., was instantly killed, three women were seriously hurt and seven other persons were slightly injured.

The more seriously injured were Miss Martha Webber of Boston, whose arm was broken; Miss Diesenderfer of Boston, who suffered a broken shoulder, and Mrs. A. Jaekel of New York City, who received a deep cut over the eye. The driver of the stage escaped with a sprained foot, while the other passengers received minor bruises and cuts.

All the victims of the accident were members of a Raymond-Whitcomb touring party from the East, who were staying at Camp Ahwanee in the valley. The party in charge of R. S. Yard, conductor of the tour, left Camp Ahwanee early this morning for the trip to Wawona, and after their visit to the big trees were on their way back to the valley when the runaway occurred.

The party numbered forty persons and occupied four of the big mountain stages drawn by four horses each. Yard was in the last stage, but there were eleven persons, including the driver, in the front stage to which the accident happened.

Canada Will Have 30,000,000 People to Trade With Soon, He Declares

CHICAGO, June 3.—"The interests are trying to block the reciprocity agreement with Canada with hostile amendments. The people approve the agreement."

"The American farmer will suffer no injury whatever. On the contrary he will be benefited by it."

"Canada will have 30,000,000 people some day and it would be a short-sighted policy that would fail to provide means to capture this trade."

"Six months from the time the agreement is ratified there will be no opposition whatever from any quarter, for the agreement will prove its own worth."

"Canada cannot and does not raise more than one-sixth of 1 per cent of the crop of the United States. The United States exports to Canada fifteen times as much meat and dairy products as Canada imports into the United States."

"The world price of wheat, barley, rye and oats is fixed abroad, where the surplus of the producing countries is disposed of and is little affected by the place from which the supply is derived."

"The reciprocity agreement should pass the Senate and I believe it will pass."

"There are so many in favor of the provisions of the bill as it passed the House that I fear the interests (the opposition) adoption in the Senate might prove a tactical obstacle in the passage of the bill through both houses."

STRAIGHT FROM SHOULDER.

Striking straight from the shoulder, calling a spade a spade and mixing matters in the East, William Howard Taft, President of the United States tonight discussed the reciprocity agreement with Canada before the Western Economic Society in Orchestra Hall and the above are among the telling points in the most able argument in favor of the ratification of the agreement thus far uttered.

"The exposing of the interests to block the agreement in the Senate, explaining clearly how the agreement is going to benefit every class of people in the United States and paying his respects to those who are opposing the agreement, President Taft made the flat declaration that the interests are disseminating so-called 'facts' which experience will show to be false and misleading."

Naming Senator Root as one of those who are actively working against either the passage of the agreement by the Senate or trying to so load it with amendments and 'jokers' that the real object will be defeated, the President flung down the gauntlet to the enemies of the measure and served notice upon them that he is in the fight to the finish.

"The cordial approval throughout the country which the proposed agreement received when it was sent to the Senate," said he, "surprised even those who were responsible for its making."

"I venture to think that there is much less real opposition to reciprocity than has been represented in

Aged German Badly Hurt by Automobile

Earl Moore, Driver of Machine, Is Arrested by Deputy Sheriff After Escaping.

While crossing Washington street at Thirteenth, at 10:30 o'clock last night, W. B. Munson, 75 years old, a resident of Alhambra, the home for aged Germans in East Oakland, was struck by an automobile driven by Earl Moore and belonging to J. H. Leno, immediately after the accident Moore drove on but was later arrested by a deputy sheriff, who had taken the number of the machine. Moore, who gave his address as 402 Falcon avenue, stood at the police station to Captain Charles Beck that he had borrowed the machine for the purpose of taking a young lady home and that he was returning it to its owner at the time.

Munson was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a dislocation of the left arm as well as a double fracture. He was severely bruised about the body and his condition is serious.

Salt Lake, Denver, Omaha and Chicago. It is probable he will visit St. Paul, Minneapolis and St. Louis, and if his health permits may go to the principal Southern cities. His plans may be changed, but as long as his health is good he can see nothing to prevent him carrying them out.

'INTERESTS' TRYING TO PREVENT RECIPROCITY

President Taft Declares Amendment Should Be Passed for Good of This Country

Washington for the purpose of influencing votes in both houses.

"Its actual operation will be so beneficial to both countries that the arguments against it will only be remembered as exaggerated instances of perverted ingenuity."

"I say this because I have examined the arguments and compared them with the actual statistics and find that the arguments are not borne out by the actual facts and figures."

"From what source does the opposition proceed? In the first place, it comes from two classes of business interests; those who own and control the lumber supply of the United States and those who are engaged in the manufacture of print paper, in the first class."

"In the second class are those who claim to represent the farmers and agricultural interests of the country. This is the case of the lumber and paper interests, who are not so friendly with each other as they are with the farmers. The lumber and paper interests are neither remote nor impossible, unless we bring to the markets of the United States the comparatively inexhaustible supply to be found in Canada."

REGARDING PRINT PAPER.

"Regarding the print paper, the provinces of Canada have control over the crown lands, in which nine-tenths of the pulp wood is grown and they have imposed restrictions and export duties upon the pulp wood in the crown lands in order to prevent the export of the wood except in the form of paper."

"The agreement provides that whenever the Canadian provinces remove all restrictions upon the exportation of pulp wood then Canada will permit American paper to come into Canada free and the United States will permit Canadian paper to come free into the United States."

"The Root amendment has to do with print paper and it is only fair to say with regard to the amendment that it is in exact accordance with the agreement. But it does not offer the inducement to the lifting of the Canadian restrictions which the present provision in the bill does offer."

"This other class of opponents to the agreement who vociferously claim to represent the whole farming industry of the country, constitutes a more formidable opposition than the special interests to which I have referred, and it is but natural that the interests should join hands with these other opponents in arousing the farmers to the horrors and disasters that they are to follow reciprocity."

ATTACKED THE HOUSE.

"I have been attacked on the floor of the House and elsewhere as occupying an inconsistent position. It has been said that I have urged the reciprocity agreement with a view of lowering the cost of living on one hand and at the same time have urged a measure which will decrease the price at which the farmers sell their produce."

"I believe that the cost of farm products is determined by the world's supply and not by local conditions of tariff and otherwise. The argument is made that to give free trade to the Canadian farmer in farm products will give him an advantage over our own farmer, who, living behind a high tariff wall, has to pay more for the cost of living than does the Canadian farmer, whose protective system is not so prohibitive."

President Is Asked To Prevent Hanging

Caleb Powers, Thrice Sentenced to Gallows, Pleads for Condemned Negro Woman.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—A strong effort is being made to secure a commutation of the death sentence against Mattie Lomax, a negro woman, who was convicted of the murder of her husband. She is sentenced to be hanged on July 31.

One of the most active in the effort to have President Taft extend executive clemency to the woman is Representative Caleb Powers of Kentucky who has himself been under the shadow of the gallows, having been three times convicted of the murder of Governor Gombel of Kentucky. He has seen President Taft and has been assured that the case will receive careful attention.

The strongest plea for a commutation is based on the ground that it would be a disgrace for a woman to be hanged at the nation's capital. It is believed President Taft will act favorably on the appeal.

Gull on Ship Three Times in Nine Years

One-Legged Bird Visits Fireboat With Almost Clock-Like Precision.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 3.—For the third time in nine years, a one-legged seagull has returned to the deck of the fireboat Dawamish. Nine years ago it was a daily occurrence for this gull to play about the fire tug. One day the bird disappeared and was believed to have perished. Three years afterward, almost the anniversary of the day it left, the gull returned and remained a week. Three years later, to a day, the same one-legged gull returned, alighting on the deck of the Dawamish about 10 o'clock one morning. Its peculiar mottled breast and black spot on the back proved beyond doubt that it is the pet of old.

'CONSPIRACY' CRIES SEYMOUR AGAINST HIS ACCUSERS

'Gamblers Will Testify Falsely Against Me,' Says the Chief.

D. A. WHITE AWAITS ACTION OF THE COURT

Sergeant O'Meara Is Kept Very Busy Obeying Two Masters.

possession of the office of Chief of Police.

Both Seymour and his chief clerk, Frank Norman, arrived at police headquarters ahead of time in the morning in order to forestall any attempt that might be made to seize the office of the chief.

David A. White, the man who was named by the police commissioners to be acting chief of police during Seymour's suspension, was slated to be the permanent chief of police after Seymour's programmed removal from office, did not reach headquarters until nearly 10 o'clock. But before that, Sergeant J. J. O'Meara, whom White had named as his chief clerk, entered the office of the captain of detectives and began to act like a chief clerk. This action was in obedience to an order that had been given to O'Meara by White.

O'MEARA HAS HARD JOB.

Chief Seymour learned of what O'Meara was doing, and he ordered him back to the central police station. From that time until White's arrival at headquarters O'Meara was kept as busy as the fabled dog that fell from exhaustion in keeping up with both his master and mistress who were going in opposite directions. O'Meara was trying to serve two masters, and he found it to be the hardest work of his police career.

The sergeant obeyed Seymour's order to return to the Central police station. Soon afterward White telephoned to O'Meara, and when O'Meara had told him what had happened, White ordered him to return to the office of captain of detectives and await his 'chief's' arrival. O'Meara started to obey this order, but on the way he was met by a number of friendly advisers, who told him that he had better stay away from Seymour before getting any closer to a contempt of court.

O'Meara heeded the advice and when he saw Seymour the chief ordered him to return to the Central station "and stay there."

When White arrived he entered the office of captain of detectives and sent for O'Meara. The sergeant obeyed the order, but he did not go to the business up to White pretty strongly, and White decided that O'Meara had better cease being chief clerk for a while and obey only the orders of Chief Seymour.

O'Meara returned again to the Central police station and then White, upon his own behalf, stated that he had not come to police headquarters to act as chief of police, but only to be within easy reach of his attorneys.

LEAVE IT TO SEYMOUR.

"I am not going to exercise any of the functions of chief of police," said White. "I am going to obey the order of the court and leave the field to Seymour."

A little later White visited Chief Seymour and told him the same thing. Then White left police headquarters. All this happened while White's attorneys were declaring that he was the only genuine chief of police and that he was on the job and would stay there.

In spite of the night order that had been issued by White to the captains of police, directing them to take him in person in the morning, all the captains reported to Chief Seymour. "The captains know their business," said one of the company commanders. "The man who occupies the chief's chair is the chief of police to us, and we know what a court order means when we read it. We are not going to make a mistake. Year's calls on acting chief of police."

VIEWS OF HANLON.

They insist as well that White is the acting chief of police of the city and though the new appointee of the board of police commissioners has been indicted and charged with negligence and misconduct in not suppressing gambling that he knew positively was going on.

We shall make an effort to have the hearing on the writ of review which was set for June 9, come on Tuesday. Seymour's trial before the commissioners will come on Wednesday, June 7, and I should like to clear away the issue in court before the commission trial.

COAL DEALERS TO HOLD PICNIC ON WEDNESDAY

A. G. RHODES (upper), chairman of the Retail Coal Dealers' Association. A. H. WHITE, president of the association.

The Retail Coal Dealers' Association of Alameda county will hold its eighth annual picnic at Fernbrook park next Wednesday. These family picnics are much enjoyed by the members and their families. This year over twenty tons of coal and numerous other prizes to the value of $500 will be given away as gate prizes. The Fifth Regiment Band will furnish the music and there will be dancing in the pavilion in the afternoon. The games and sports have been well provided for and numerous valuable prizes will be awarded to the winners of the different events. A. G. Rhodes is chairman of the general committee. A. H. White, president of the association, will personally look after the comfort of all the picnic guests. The picnic will start at 5:30 p. m. on return.

Ashes of Japanese, Not Bodies, Go Home

Oriental Find That It Is Cheaper to Send Can in Mails.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 3.—Within the last few months the mail to Japan and China has been burdened with mysterious packages, outwardly resembling cans of fruit, but much heavier. The mystery was revealed this week when a new clerk broke a can. The sender was a Seattle Japanese. He stated that the can contained the ashes of his wife.

It is becoming the custom for all Oriental people to have the remains of their dead cremated and the ashes sent home since the Pacific steamship lines made a big increase in the tariffs on bodies.

case as this is and has never been anything else since the adoption of the new State constitution in 1879, which provides for the trial of a title to an office by quo warranto.

TO TRY OUT SEYMOUR.

"I have told White to remain at his post as chief, but not to violate any orders of the court. He is occupying the office without distinction. Seymour I don't know how soon we will be able to pry Seymour out of his chair, but it will be just as soon as possible."

White has not abandoned his position as chief of police," said Theodore Bell yesterday, and he is therefore the present acting chief of police. He is chief de facto and chief de jure, which means that he is the head of the police department in fact and also by right of law. We shall not make any new move until Monday or Tuesday. Until then White remains the real chief in spite of the position taken by Seymour.

THE TRIBUNE'S informant declared that it was the fact, because there was imminent a division in the council with Councilman Baccus and Forrest fighting the mayor and Turner. Forrest, while he made his campaign with the mayor and Turner, is said to be lukewarm toward Mott, for the reason that the mayor is supposed to have listened to the idea that Forrest should not be given the commission of public health and safety, which includes the police department, because Forrest, being a representative of labor, might not use that force in a manner in keeping with the views of a large class of citizens in the event of trouble arising between labor and capital.

Forrest is also said to be lacking in ardent appreciation of Commissioner Turner because the name of the latter had been used in the probable commissioner of health and public safety, when Forrest was criticized in the manner indicated. It is said Forrest feels that the alleged reason for Turner's being considered for that position was for an entirely different reason, namely that he would be advisable to place Forrest at the head of either the police or fire departments, because he had never had any experience along those lines, whereas Turner has a long connection with the fire and police commissioners of this city for a number of years.

Forrest's friends say that this was a blind to prevent him from getting the health and safety commissioner'ship, which he applied, because of his connection with the labor movement. They feel all the more keenly against Turner for the reason that it is understood he is willing to take that commissioner'ship if it is given him or, that, in any other position in the gift of the council. Forrest is making an earnest fight for the health and safety department and it is believed that Mike Kelly is taking up his battle, because he made a determined fight for him at the polls. Yesterday there was a very intense conversation at the city hall between Kelly and Turner and it is said that this was the subject discussed. Baccus wants the street commissioner'ship and is confident that he will be appointed to the position. There is a certainty, too, that Forrest will vote for him.

THREE MUST ELECT.

If Baccus and Forrest should oppose Turner and the mayor, there could be no election unless Anderson should accept proposals which might be made by the mayor and Turner to him, thus, with the two last mentioned forming a majority of the board, which is necessary to cause an election. On the other hand also, if there should be a combination formed between Forrest and Baccus, Anderson might be open to overtures to side with them, thus enabling that trio to apportion the commissioner'ships to suit themselves.

Some disposition of this kind must take place before the 10th day of July next for the reason that, in the event of there being no determination in the matter before that time, the mayor is empowered by the charter to designate the man who will fill the several commissioner'ships.

All the commissioners-elect declare that they are waiting for the mayor to take the initiative in calling a meeting for the purpose of organizing the board, and that they will accept public duties are now engrossing all his spare time. It is known at the same time that he is trying to solve the problem of how Anderson and Forrest may be disposed of in the course of the election, so that he may have money instead of inharmonious from the outset.

Lecture Tour Not as Remunerative as Pen

Author of "The Wizard of Oz" Declares Himself to Be Bankrupt.

LOS ANGELES, June 3.—L. Frank Baum, author of "The Wizard of Oz," "The Wogglebug," "Father Goose," "The Enchanted Isle of Yew," and other bits of fiction that have created laughter in many countries, filed a petition for bankruptcy in the District Court today. In the petition the liabilities are scheduled at $12,600 and the assets at $55, the latter consisting of two suits of clothing, a typewriter and a book of references. The debts are said to be for advertising with Chicago publishing houses.

Baum has been living in Hollywood for several months. It is said by his friends that he got into financial straits through a lecture tour in which he engaged. His writings netted him many thousands of dollars, but he lost a great deal of money in the new venture.

Unwittingly aids work of Bunco men.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Because Walter Prieto was unaware of the fact he had assisted a bunco man to fleece John Nicholas, a laborer, he was placed on probation today by Judge Cabanis instead of being sent to the penitentiary. Prieto pleaded guilty to grand larceny. He explained to the court he was as much duped by the rogue, whose name was Nicholas, as he was Nicholas. Prieto testified that the unknown came to him with the proposition that they get a third person and put their cash together and bury it for safe keeping. They got Nicholas.

Rabid Dog Tackles Cow and Is Killed

After Being Bitten, Bovine Uses Its Horns With Deadly Effect.

SHARON, Pa., June 3.—A mad dog ran amuck at Sandy Lake, near here. After biting several other dogs it finally tackled a cow in the pasture of H. E. Brown. The cow tried to avoid the onslaught of the dog. Bitten on the shoulder and on the body several times, the cow fired the dog and tossed it high in the air. The body of the dog fell near some spectators and lay still. Its back was broken and its life ended by a blow on the head from a club.

Victim of Runaway Horse Is Summoned

Miss Frances E. Postel Dies in Alameda After Days of Suffering.

ALAMEDA, June 3.—Miss Frances E. Postel, who was seriously injured last Monday by being struck by a runaway horse as she was crossing California street in San Francisco, died about 10 o'clock tonight at the Alameda Sanatorium, where she had been in an unconscious condition since the accident. Miss Postel sustained a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. Deceased was a bookkeeper for the George A. Moore company of San Francisco and was 28 years of age. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Postel of 883 Willow street, this city. Miss Postel was prominent in Alameda, having attended the local schools.

LORIMER ASKS FOR FIGHT FOR MAYOR CHANCE TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Wishes to Refute Charges That Are Made He Declares.

RUMOR OF RESIGNATION IS GIVEN ITS QUIETUS

Matter Likely to Be Taken Up By a Small Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Senator Lorimer today wired to the committee on privileges and elections asking to be allowed to be heard as a witness before it in the new investigation of the bribery cases. Lorimer's telegram was as follows:

"At the former investigation nothing was charged against me personally. Therefore there was nothing for me to deny as a witness. It is my earnest desire to be permitted to testify before your committee so that I can refute any charges that may be made or any suspicions that anyone may have as to the validity of my election."

The telegram had the effect of quieting persistent rumors that the Illinois senator would resign. Senator Dillingham, chairman of the committee, said that undoubtedly Lorimer would be given the fullest opportunity to testify.

NO ACTION TAKEN.

The telegram reached the committee headquarters immediately after the adjournment of a meeting at which the Lorimer inquiry had been under consideration. No action was taken today, but another meeting was ordered for Monday, when the question will be taken up again.

The entire discussion today centered about a motion by Senator Kenyon that the committee proceed as a whole with the work. There were reminders of the tacit agreement for the selection of a special committee to do the work and indications pointed to the failure of the Kenyon motion.

DILLINGHAM RESIGNS.

The members of the committee generally expressed themselves as desirous of having the investigation conducted in Washington to as great an extent as possible.

During the meeting Senator Dillingham expressed a desire to be relieved from service on the proposed sub-committee and it is probable that Senator Sutherland will be given the place.

LINDSAY ORANGE GROVE BRINGS $1000 AN ACRE

LINDSAY, June 3.—The L. E. Bryce grove of twenty acres of two-year-old navel oranges has been sold to Henry C. Post of Monrovia for a cash price of $1000 an acre. This is a record price for an orchard of this age in this section.

Post's purchase was made after he had deeded nearly a year to investigation of orange properties in all portions of California. He is a recent arrival from Michigan, having purchased a summer home in Monrovia.

Having heard that the central California orange district was free from pests Post came to Lindsay and rode all over the district, satisfying himself that the reports were true.

THE THREE-CORNERED BATTLE AT MODESTO IS BECOMING VERY HEATED.

MODESTO, June 3.—With one week day remaining before the municipal election the candidates on the Business Men's and Socialist Labor tickets are resorting to personalities in their campaigns and rushing into print with charges galore.

The city was somewhat startled today when a morning paper printed a two-column article on the first page, charging John Harrison, present member of the Board of Trustees and candidate for mayor, with a direct violation of a State law which makes it a misdemeanor for a city official to enter into any contract with the city government.

The article reproduces records from the warrant book of the city clerk, showing several items where Harrison was openly paid for goods he had sold to the city during his term as city official. Harrison makes no denial of the charges.

G. D. Bice, the Socialist Labor candidate for mayor, is being opposed on the arguments that he is a prohibitionist and plans to make Modesto a dry town if elected. He is also criticized for his denial that he is favorable to Socialism when he has the endorsement of the Socialist local of the city.

George J. Wren, the business men's candidate for chief executive, expects to get a majority of the vote at the primary, but Bice and Harrison each claim that they will run a close second and be his opponent in the final election.

As Bice is known to be a church man it is claimed that Wren will lose the greater part of the church vote. Wren is opposed to a "dry town." And as Harrison is believed to be a friend of Bice as an opponent to Wren in the final.

The interest in this election is the greatest since the organization of the city, as it is the first under the new commission form of government charter recently adopted.

DISCONTENT RULES CITY OF TIJUANA

TIJUANA, Lower California, June 3.—Discontent is manifest in Tijuana today. The rebel captains have held many conferences, angry words have been hurled back and forth and no supplies or ammunition have arrived from the American side of the line. General Pryce is due in Tijuana tomorrow, but his men make no secret of the belief that he will not come and that he is through with the revolution in Lower California.

The news that a strong force will be sent against them from Mexico today, it is believed, the crisis will be reached and at that time the decision to continue the fight or lay down their arms and cross to the United States will be made.

MACHINERY FIRM FORCED TO WALL

Henshaw, Bulkley & Co., Admits Insolvency When Taken Into Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Henshaw, Bulkley & Co., one of the largest machinery and engineering concerns on the Pacific coast, has been forced into bankruptcy court. The liabilities of the pioneer company are conservatively estimated at $500,000. It has plants in this city on Fremont street, and in Los Angeles, and warehouses in Oakland.

An expenditure of more than $175,000 in the Sandimus quarry, near Los Angeles, is said to have been the main cause of the concern going on the financial shoals.

Several of the 100 or more creditors filed a petition in the United States District Court today asking that the firm be declared bankrupt. Its officers have admitted an admitted inability to meet its debts and its willingness to go into bankruptcy.

A committee of creditors, composed of B. S. Foss of the E. E. Sturtevant Company, D. K. Orton of the Orton Machine Company, and J. A. Lindley of the Crane Company, started an investigation into the affairs of the firm a week ago. They came to the conclusion that the only way the creditors could realize anything was through court proceedings.

An order was issued by Judge Van Fleet in the United States District Court today restraining any levies under judgments for small sums recently obtained by creditors in Los Angeles.

B. M. Hall is president of Henshaw, Bulkley & Co., and B. J. Smith is secretary.

Wife Expects Embrace But Receives Butlet

Husband Takes His Own Life After Killing His Spouse.

FRANKLIN, W. Va., June 3.—O. V. Fairchild shot and killed his wife and, turning the weapon upon himself, took his life, near here today. Mrs. Fairchild was sitting on her husband's knee when he reached his right arm over her shoulder in an embrace and fired a bullet into her brain.

As she fell lifeless he raised the revolver to his head and killed himself. The day before the couple, who had been living apart for a year, had apparently become reconciled.

COUNTY COMMITTEE TO NAME ITS OWN TICKET

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—As the result of a meeting held this afternoon in the office of Fred G. Sanborn, chairman of the Republican county committee, it was decided that the ticket of the coming municipal election, as selected by the Supervisors, is not satisfactory, and that the committee will endeavor to select a ticket of its own so far as the Supervisors are concerned. Present at the meeting were Chairman Boggs, Assistant Secretary Forbes, Byron Maury, Ralph Hathorn, Thomas W. Howlin and A. D. Fretz.

James Rolph, Jr., seems to be the only candidate for Mayor upon whom all factions agree. It was stated after the meeting that the various interests of the city had not been represented on the supervisory ticket, and that nominations for that office would be made by the committee.

FORMATION OF BATTERY IS PRELIMINARY TO ARMORY

CAPTAIN RALPH J. FANEUF, commanding officer of Battery B, First Field Artillery, N. G. C., recently mustered in in Oakland.

With the formation of Battery B, First Field Artillery, in Oakland, comes the certainty that this city is to have a $250,000 State armory within a short time. A bill for such an armory was up before the last State Legislature, but failed of passage because it was felt that the city had not shown itself willing to give the proper support to military affairs. Information was given to members of the local militia here that, with the formation of another military organization, such a building would soon be forthcoming to the city. Battery B is that organization, and it is to be followed within a short time by the formation of a machine gun company.

For the present the new battery is to be housed in the armory at Seventh and Franklin streets, upon which the city has taken a lease for three years. This building gives the battery over 7000 square feet of floor space, with a cement floor and a fire-proof structure. The armory will contain clubrooms for the members of the battery, a gymnasium, baths and other conveniences all of which will be provided the men without expense to them. When the battery was mustered in last Wednesday night there were 90 names on the roll, but since that time the list has been added, and it is expected that the full membership of 132 men will have been secured by July 1. Adjutant-General Forbes has already made a request for supplies for the new battery, and these are expected also by the first of next month. Noble as the drill nights and other details has been reached as yet, but it is hoped to have a definite program arranged on next Wednesday evening.

The officers chosen for the new organization have all been working hard over the future plans for the battery, and have all had extended experience as training for their new positions.

Captain Ralph J. Faneuf, first officer of the battery, is a practical military man. He served in the regular army in Hawaii in the days of the revolution and the Dole government there, in Battery B, First Hawaiian Artillery. Following this he was a member of the Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteers in the Philippines, being honorably discharged in 1899. Since that time he has been connected with the Fifth Infantry, having just resigned the office of adjutant of the infantry to fill his new office.

First Lieutenant Charles J. Hogan served in the old Second Artillery, N. G. C., and was captain of Company M, First California Volunteers in the Philippines. First Lieutenant Harry Huber served in the Hospital Corps of the Fifth Infantry and in the Philippines in the U. S. Hospital Corps. He was much in the public eye at the time of the trouble in the islands, when for eleven months he was held prisoner by the insurgents.

Second Lieutenant Frank Brown has been a member of an artillery regiment, while Second Lieutenant E. E. Vicary was a member of the Colorado State Cavalry.

These officers are all to proceed to Fort Riley, Kansas, in the near future, where they will receive instruction in the government's training school for officers. Lieutenant Hogan left Friday and the other officers will go before fall.

BOND ISSUE ELECTION AROUSES THE COUNTY

Plea for Modern Hospital and Infirmary for Indigents Appeals to the Humanity and Pride of Voters

In what seems to be the arousing of the entire county from the shores of the bay back into the hills, an appeal comes forth to the voters: at large for the support of the bond election next Tuesday by which it is intended to provide for a new $500,000 county hospital and infirmary.

Not only from the poorer classes but from "well known physicians" and merchants has the cry gone out for a betterment of the situation. Since the problem was taken up some time ago by the Board of Supervisors and by subsequent investigation of the Grand Jury, a movement has steadily grown by which it is expected a large vote will be polled in favor of the bonds.

Ill-equipped shacks that have served as house and home for county indigents for years past have been taboed by practically every person who has taken the pains or who with other interests have visited the infirmary situated on the old site of the county jail, where the "old" boulevard, north of San Leandro and about ten miles this side of Hayward.

MANY SERIOUS DRAWBACKS

The adversaries with which the county officials have had to contend recently owing to the overgrowth of the place have necessitated from time to time a number of temporary additions which, improvised as they are, have been forced to fill the requirements of a rapidly growing community in spite of the wealth and the host of people who have actively greater prosperity through abundant crops, wider manufacturing and increasing commerce.

That a county institution should in every way reflect the advancing strides that are being made in a community and that it should prove adequate to every requirement that is expected from it, is the view taken by the supervisors and the host of people who have actively identified themselves in promoting the bond issue to be voted upon next Tuesday.

Since the Grand Jury made its investigation and report directly of individuals have visited the infirmary to see for themselves just what the conditions are and the result has been an overwhelming opinion in favor of the building of a new hospital. Comparisons have been drawn with the ramshackle buildings that now constitute the institution and the quarters provided by other counties less able perhaps to provide for their indigent poor and crippled than is Alameda county.

One and one-quarter cents taxation on the $100 property valuation is all that has been asked by the Supervisors of the people in order that a suitable home for the 600 sick and needy persons at present housed in the ancient structures of the infirmary may be provided. Shelters that in the winter time leak from the rain and in the summer are overheated to the extent that suffering patients are forced to endure additional torture may be the beneficence of a prosperous people be entirely changed.

ENDORSED BY LABOR

The labor unions have endorsed the movement and are working for the carrying of the bond issue. "Charity, if nothing else, has apparently moved the masses to overlook any slight depreciation of the purse that may result and the small additional tax levied on the close-fingering man of wealth, has been counted in, not for the expenditure but for the good that may result. The tax Association of Alameda county, comprising some of her largest men of affairs, has unanimously endorsed the bond proposition, setting forth that the building of a new infirmary is an urgent necessity and further that if the entire bond issue is not required, those in excess may be canceled."

Supervisor Kelley has taken up the matter in earnest with the labor interests and has received the assurance that they are heartily in favor of the issue. The remainder of the board has been actively engaged in promoting the bond election and the indications are that the proposition will carry with a large majority on Tuesday.

BOX FULL OF COIN SENT AS PRESENT

Two $500 Bills Added for Good Measure by Generous Californian.

NEW YORK, June 3.—An expressman carted a package three feet square and about three inches thick into the Waldorf this evening and dumped it on the floor. It was addressed to Dr. S. V. Abel. Dr. Abel pried off the lid and his eyes bulged. On top were two $500 bills. Five hundred 50-cent pieces and 1000 25-cent pieces were also in the box. In a corner was a note that read:

"This is sent just so that you and Stewart and the rest of the boys can have a whooping time on me. Go to it. There's no reason why my friends can't enjoy some of the coin I'm picking up even if I can't be with them to help spend it. Everything is pretty soft for me out here in California now. (Signed) J. M. HOLLOWAY, 'Los Angeles, Cal.'"

The Waldorf assistant manager is the Stewart mentioned.

OAKLANDERS WIN AT TRAP SHOOTING CONTEST

San Francisco Family Club Defeated by Claremont Country Club.

A RETURN MATCH IS NOW BEING ARRANGED

Challenge Received by Local Organization Is Very Unique.

The members of the Claremont Country Club, of Oakland, and those of the San Francisco Family Club, held a pigeon shoot at the grounds of the former organization yesterday afternoon which resulted in the Oakland squad carrying off the honors, there being five squads from each club in the contest. In the presence of a large number of members and their friends activities commenced sharply at 2 o'clock and lasted until after 5. The two best squads scored as follows:

Claremont Country Club—J. G. Gorman, 45; H. Havens, 43; W. Havens, 42; E. C. Prather, 41; W. J. De Fremery, 37. Total, 208 out of 250 shots.
Family Club—"Pop" Adams, 38; Chas. McGittigan, 35; A. Karban, 33; A. Du Mand, 31; W. Mansfield, 28. Total, 166 out of 250 shots. The total score stood 633 hits and 361 misses for the home club, and 517 hits and 433 misses for the San Francisco club. Clay pigeons, automatically released, were used in accordance with the law forbidding trap live pigeon shooting.

RETURN MATCH.

A return match, in which the crack shots from both clubs will again line up, will be pulled off in the near future. The coming meet is likely to be a close contest as the "gun men" from both camps have decided to get into practice before the exact date for the event is set.

The reputation which John Gorman has of being the best shot in the Country Club was justified yesterday when he led all in the shooting with only five misses out of fifty shots. The humorous nature of the challenge of the local club to the Family Club, and the reply of the latter, has been a source of much amusement in the club circles. The Claremont Country Club's communication was composed by George Sterling and illuminated in Louis Libert. It was embossed on leather and will be cherished as a special curiosity of the organization. Following is the reply from the Family Club:

THE COME-BACK.

"To the Balcony-Athletes and Fergola Nincompoes of the Claremont Country Club: You're out! Gun for gun—barrel for barrel—or keg for keg. As for greetings—Bahl!

"We have heard your mightiest 'Gadman' boast of game and gun. We sat agape and listened to the slaughter they have done. But we have never seen a mallard—a canvas back—or goose—That went North any earlier because you happened to be loose.

"You have told of the limit that you've killed by 9 o'clock. And as for shooting quail—Why, pooh—one barrel to a flock; Yet we have often heard it said, one easily confuses.

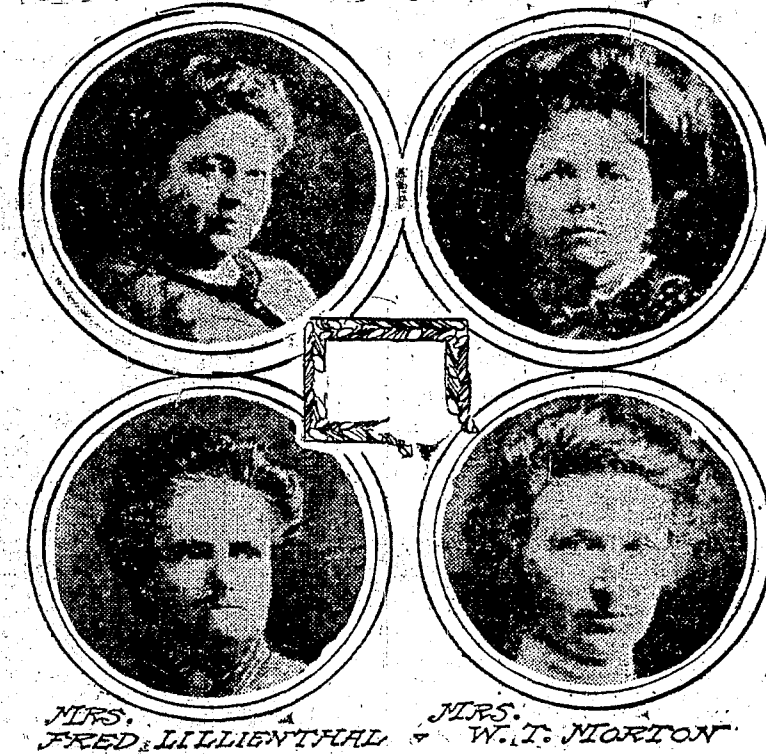

"The number of birds one kills with the shells one buys and uses. 'And at the traps—Ah! at the traps—' Is there, so runs the story, That laurel wreath and loving cups perpetuate your glory; Look to them then, for if a tale that we have heard be true, Your only broken blue rock died laughing—and, at you.

"So—name the day, the hour, and conditions; We will attend to the judges; ask no favor. Save, that a brass ball be put in front of our men when they shoot, and that our dead birds be rung up on a cash register.

"Yours to Abolition, 'THE FAMILY MUSLIMERS.' Who the author of this unique acceptance of the challenge of the Claremont Country Club has been given out. But the document, like that of the Claremont Country Club, has been printed upon sheepskin and is hung at the home of the Family Club across the bay.

WIFE GUIDED DIAZ'S HAND IN SIGNING RESIGNATION

Driven to Leave His Work of Years When Spouse's Tears, Pleas and Caresses Bridge His Warring Nature

(By HARVEY H. DUNN.)

MEXICO CITY, June 3.—Mario Ocampo, an Oaxaca Indian woman 35 years of age, who was in the service of Senora Portillo Diaz for nine years, declares that Senora Diaz guided the faltering hand of the President to his resignation and then took the message from the reluctant hand of the old man and sent it herself to the Chamber of Deputies for action the evening of May 25th. The servant declares that Senora Diaz forced her husband to flee the city at 4 o'clock in the morning through fear that he would be assassinated.

President Diaz protested at his wife's actions and used every argument possible but was overruled by her tears and his family fled. The Ocampo woman said: "To his family Diaz always said that he would never resign and that he would fight it out, and that it need be fighting, but my mistress argued night and day with him; and told him that his life was worth more to her than to the ungrateful Mexicans or to a country inhabited by such people."

"His resignation had been made out for more than a month by the Diaz attorney, and the afternoon of May 25th about 3 o'clock Senora Diaz brought the paper to her home on Cia Cadena in this city, with his head buried in his hands and the tears coursing down his cheeks.

"I had been helping Luisa Noriega, another maid, dress the sonora, and stood behind the heavy curtains leading to the main living room next to the library, when the heavy clock in the hall struck 3 as Senora Diaz put her arms around Diaz' neck and began reading the resignation to him.

"I WILL NOT SIGN THAT!" "No, no," he said, "I will not sign that." Then the sonora urged in a low voice, caressing him soothingly and finally took his hand in which she placed a pen and started to guide it over the paper at the bottom of the resignation. Diaz jerked his hand away and springing to his feet, his eyes blazing, cried: "I will not sign this! I will stay here in my country and care for it."

"Senora Diaz soothed him and then rang the bell. I answered before any other of the servants got there. I then brought a fresh piece of paper and then his wife led the old man, trembling with mixed anger, grief and regret, back to his chair, took his right hand with the pen and guided it as he re-wrote the entire resignation and signed it. No attention was paid to me and I stood watching and listening. When it was signed, the sonora reached for it with one hand and with the other rang a bell for a messenger. She knew that at that moment the Chamber of Deputies was in session and that her husband's resignation was being demanded.

"Diaz thrust the paper in his pocket and refused to hand it over to his wife and brushed her to one side. The original resignation, drawn up by the lawyer, lay on the floor and it was afterwards burned and never used.

WEPT AS SHE PLEADED. "There were tears on the beautiful face of Madame as she begged Diaz to give her his resignation or at least, send it once so she could avert massacre and riots. She argued for more than twenty

PIONEER SLEEPS AFTER LONG AND HONORABLE LIFE

The Late Emmett S. Moore.

In Mountain View Cemetery yesterday there were laid to rest the remains of the late Emmett S. Moore, whose body had been in the receiving vault of that resting place of the dead since last Saturday, when the deceased passed away.
The interment was conducted by the immediate members of the family of the deceased. He was a brother of A. A.
Moore, the lawyer of this city, and came across the plains with the latter, and other members of the family in 1882, and since then had been a resident of this State and this vicinity. He was a native of Waterloo, Ill., where he was born
June 23, 1830.

For a number of years he was identified with the staging business in Ala-ameda and adjoining counties, when Oakland was but a hamlet. Some of his lines ran between Alameda, Hayward, Stockton and other places.
For the past seventeen years he had been an employee of the Southern Pacific company, his latest line of duty being that of collector at the ferry depot of that corporation in San Francisco. He is survived by several of his brothers, his widow, formerly Miss Helen A. Cannon, to whom he was married in San Francisco January 9, 1879, and also by his only child, Mrs. O. F. Whitney, whose husband is passenger agent with the Southern Pacific company in this city.
The deceased had hosts of friends and was esteemed by all with whom he came in contact.

$24,000 SAVED TO
'PHONE PATRONS

Hotels Will Benefit by the New Regulations Made by Supervisors.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The telephone rates committee of the supervisors will on Monday submit a new rate schedule which will provide for a reduction of about $24,000 for the public in the next fiscal year.
Chairman Laughrey of the committee pointed out that under the old schedule an aggregate reduction of $110,000 was made from former rates, giving a total saving for the two years of about $134,000.

Virtually all the saving under the new schedule will be for the benefit of hotel men, who have complained strongly because of the expense of their room telephone service.
Under the new ordinance the 50-cent monthly rate will apply only up to 100 calls, after which the rate will be first the rate will drop to 25 cents a month call.

The hotel men are also to be allowed 10 per cent for collecting the room phone fees.

The company has made strong efforts to obtain leave from the committee to do away with the four-party line, costing $1.50 a year, desiring to have the patrons take the charge of the line. The company is opposed to this because of the expense

THROUGH RATE FOR ELECTRIC ROADS

Commission Orders Joint Tariffs for Oakland and Antioch and Santa Fe.

An order of far-reaching importance has been issued by the state board of railroad commissioners, which eventually may create great changes in the transportation map of California. The order, of itself, merely directed that joint through tariffs be arranged by the Santa Fe railroad and the Oakland & Antioch electric railway. The significance of the edict lies in the apparent disposition of the commission to compel an interchange of traffic under through rates between steam and electric roads. The effect of this would be to give full rail connections to all points heretofore served only by small local electric lines.

In making its order, the commission said that it was not to be construed as a blanket provision, but that each case, in which a similar principle might be involved, must be determined upon its own individual merits.

THROUGH RATES TO PREVAIL.

The Oakland & Antioch is the new electric line, financed with local and eastern capital, which will tap the rich back country of Contra Costa county.
The line has been completed from Bay Point to a location three miles beyond Walnut Creek. It will be extended into Oakland.

The connection with the Santa Fe will be established at Bay Point. Shipments from all stations on the Oakland and Antioch can, under the commission's ruling, be routed to any point on the Santa Fe under through rates. This through rate will also be under the supervision of the commission.

The immediate advantage of this new arrangement will accrue to the Ignatio valley, and the Walnut Creek and Concord district near Mount Diablo. The matter was presented to the commissioners in regular form and the commissioners reached the residents of district were entitled to the improved service which this alliance would give.

RATES SATISFACTORY.

There was no complaint against the rates now in effect into this district over the Southern Pacific, nor was there any complaint against the rates or service of the Santa Fe.

The order will become effective June 10 and in the meantime the two carriers will draft a schedule of tariffs.
The principle of compulsory interchange between electric and steam lines is a new one. The interstate commerce commission has adopted it, although the matter has been before it for some time.

Electric lines building off from established carriers have often found themselves at a disadvantage, because of through routing or discrimination by an adjustment that made through rates impossible. California is faced by electric lines and many more are either in course of construction or projected.
The general application of the commission's ruling will extend the service to many points under conditions much more favorable than they ever have known.

Naval Cadets Fight War
With Japan—in Theory

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 3.—It was learned today that during the last five months members of the graduating class at the naval academy have received detailed instructions concerning the navy and the resources of Japan. These instructions came from either the navy department or the academy faculty.

Midshipmen have fought a theoretical naval war with Japan and have absorbed all that they can from the older cadets about them in the practical experience. It is said this is the first time that such a course was ever given to the graduates of the academy about Japan or any other nation.

Hart North Fails
To Get Back Salary

Government Declines to Investigate His Charges Against Watts.

The troubles of Hart North, former Commissioner of Immigration, who resigned because of charges of neglect and incompetency, are apparently endless.

North is making an effort to collect $1800 in salary during his suspension, only to learn that the Government refused to pay money to officials who had resigned.

Word came from Washington yesterday that the Government refused to investigate the charges preferred by North against Frederick Watts, the special agent who was sent here to report on the conduct of his administration.

UNITED RAILROADS'
RECEIPTS SHOW GAIN

Rich Calhoun, to its eastern holding SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The United Railroads report, through President Patrick Calhoun, its eastern holding company, the United Railroad Investment Company of New Jersey, for the month of April and the first four months of the calendar year shows that the railway continues to make gains in earnings over the corresponding periods of last year.

In April the United Railroads earned gross $552,866, an increase of $481 over the same month of the preceding year.
For January, February, March, and April the gross earnings aggregated $2,528,935, as against $2,484,868 for the same months of 1910. This is an increase of $21,069.

In April of this year the paying passengers totaled 13,057,320, an increase of 97,000 over April of 1910.
For the first four months of this year 30,518,700 passengers were handled. This is an increase of 621,350 over the first four months of 1910.

CASHIER'S SHORTAGE
TO REACH $15,000

LOYALTON, Cal., June 3.—A. S.
Nichols, president of the Sierra Valley bank, said tonight that the process of checking up the accounts of J. J.
O. Miller, the missing cashier, is incomplete and the full amount of the shortage could not be estimated.

It is known that the shortage will reach at least $15,000, and may be much more. Investigations indicate that the embezzlements have been going on only for a short time.

CONVICTS TO ARRIVE.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Thirty-three military convicts en route from San Antonio and other places along the border to Alcatraz island will arrive at the Third and Townsend streets depot tomorrow morning.

TO VISIT IN EAST.

Mrs. Lily H. West of 1462 Thirteenth avenue, East Oakland, left Friday evening for Buffalo, N. Y., where she will visit relatives and friends for the next two months.

RECEIVES CIRCULAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The Chamber of Commerce is in receipt of circular proposal No. 64 from the Ist-hmian Canal Commission to furnish cargo handling and locomotive cranes, gasoline engine-driven passenger cars, rock slides, chaplets, electric cable and cable terminals.

STARS OF FIRST MAGNITUDE WILL ENTERTAIN YOU

GARVIN GILMAINE and FLORENCE DARLING in scene from "A School for Scandal."

MISS MAE REED, Eastern soprano soloist, who will appear on Tribune Day at Idora Park.

GARRETT PRICE, Choir Boy Tenor.

Grand Free Vaudeville at Idora Park Tuesday by Superior Talent

Every hour adds new luster to the galaxy of vaudeville stars who will entertain you next Tuesday at Idora Park.

Mr. Garvin Gilmaine, named by Julia Marlowe the Beau Brummel of vaudeville, who is on the coast for a short time recuperating, has consented to give his gill-edge act entitled "Lady Teazle." In this clever skit the versatility of the well-known actor and prominent director of many schools of dramatic art is shown. His costumes are splendid and the entire act deserving of highest commendation.

With him in this act is associated Miss Florence Darling, whose dramatic work has been approved and appreciated by Oakland people. At the grand concert given at the Macdonough Theater last Tuesday by the Eagles Miss Darling was given an ovation.

Miss Mae Reed will favor THE TRIBUNE patrons with vocal solos at different periods on the program.
A furor of excitement and appreciation was created by Gilmaine and Reed at the big benefit show and the directorship for that successful event was left to him.

Oakland people recall with gratitude the splendid work of Garrett Price, the choir boy tenor, who charmed them at the Orpheum in April.

By consent Mr. Garrett Price, whom Oakland claims as her own prodigy and kindly songbird, will appear for TRIBUNE patrons both afternoon and evening at Idora Park Tuesday,
June 6.

Those charming songs that brought continuous ecstasies, entitled "Garden of My Heart" and "You Are the Ideal of My Dreams," will be rendered.

Garrett Price will soon leave on a long tour of singing and will return with national fame. The opportunity of hearing Master Price, the youngest and best tenor that ever appeared on the Orpheum stage, is also worth a trip to Idora Park. People of much less ability have appeared in Oakland and commanded 50c to $1 admission.
Hear Garrett Price, with splendid accompaniment by the Conway full orchestra. Be present at bandstand Tribune Day, both afternoon and evening for a splendid free vaudeville performance. (Watch tomorrow's TRIBUNE for more new features.)

BLACK CAT GUEST
AT THE WALDORF

Has Chair at Dinner and Is Served Chicken and Other Delicacies.

NEW YORK, June 3.—That "Tabby" may be a regular diner at the Waldorf seems to be a possibility today, for the initiative has been taken by a man attired in white evening clothes and Panama hat, who wore on his left wrist a jeweled bracelet, while from his waistcoat dangled a monocle attached to a black silk ribbon. He entered the hotel accompanied by two women, one of whom was apparently his wife, while the other seemed to be his mother or mother-in-law.

The trio, including a black cat, drove up to the hotel in a taxicab. The man asked the head clerk, whether it was necessary to check the cat, and the clerk, remembering that there were three buldogs already in the check room, allowed him to take his pet into the dining room, where it was placed in a chair at the table at which the three were seated.

Immediately the summer dining room began to buzz, and every head was turned to the table at which the feline, wearing a blazing diamond and ruby collar, ate chicken and enjoyed a full plate dinner which was carefully inspected by the monocled gentleman.

TWO DANCES TO BE GIVEN IN RICHMOND

RICHMOND, June 3.—Dances are planned by two of the prominent organizations of this city, to be held before the month is out. The first of these events will be given at the East Shore park by the ladies' auxiliary of the B. of L. E., while the second will be the first annual ball of Burke council No. 609, Young Men's Institute, which is scheduled for the same place on the evening of Saturday, June 24.

SEQUOIA CLUB TO OPEN ITS NEW ROOMS

RICHMOND, June 3.—The Sequoia Club expects to throw open its new club rooms in the Neill block some evening the latter part of the month.
The exact date to be announced. These new quarters are most attractive, consisting of a suite of rooms including reception, lounging, and card rooms, all of which are being fitted up in luxurious style.

GREAT DEMAND
SHOWN FOR BIBLE

12,000 Bibles to Be Placed in Chicago; Book Is Revered Universally.

CHICAGO, June 3.—To supply the great demand for bibles by the traveling public 6000 free bibles were distributed in leading hotels of the city. The Gideon's of America will place 12,000 bibles in Chicago. It was announced today. The next order they will be for fifty thousand bibles. Several cities will be supplied.

In some hotels guests have carried away the bibles with them while at others not one has ever been missed.
Few instances of desecration have been found and there appears to be a universal respect for the bible among all classes.

One irreverent guest tore several sheets out of a bible and sent them to the headquarters of the Gideons, marking them
"good for shaving paper."

Guests seem to read the bible as sacredly as they do the latest magazines and in fact there is rivalry between the two. The letters received at headquarters of the Gideons tell of wild nights planned to paint the town red, and the sudden change of heart after picking up the bible.

CAPTAIN W. DAY
DIES AT AGE OF 65

Retired Master Mariner Passes Away at His Home in Berkeley.

BERKELEY, June 3.—Captain William Day, a retired mariner, died at 11 o'clock tonight at his home, 1304 Albuquerque, after a few days' illness of congestion of the lungs.

After leaving the sea Captain Day became a member of the stevedore firm of Smith & Company of San Francisco, with which he was connected for 12 years.

He came to Berkeley from San Francisco eight years ago. Captain Day took the first liner on the run between Liverpool and Japan. Later he was captain of a vessel plying between England and India and later came to San Francisco from which city he commanded vessels running to China.

He was a native of England, aged 65 years and a member of Durand lodge,
Free and Accepted Masons of this city,
which will have charge of the funeral.
He was twice married and is survived by a widow, Mrs. Fanny Day. Otherwise he leaves no relatives.

CHURCH MAY PURCHASE
NEW SITE FOR BUILDING

RICHMOND, June 3.—The congregation of the Christian church is considering a project for the purchase of a lot at the corner of Fifteenth and Nevins streets, upon which to erect a church edifice.

The lot upon which the present building stands is not owned by the congregation, and if the new lot is purchased the present building will be moved to the new location and put up on the back of the lot to do service until funds for a new structure can be raised.

RETURNING FROM LEAVE.

W. W. McCammon, quartermaster, enroute for duty in the Philippines; Second Lieutenant A. W. Robins, Twelfth Cavalry, en route for duty with the military information bureau at Manila;
and First Lieutenant C. J. D. Spreckels, Philippine Scout, returning from a leave of absence, registered at Army headquarters today. McCammon and Robins are at the Stewart Hotel and Spreckels is at the St. Francis.

DOG NO LONGER TO BE FREE BAGGAGE

Railroads Agree to Charge the Regular Rates on All Animal Travelers.

Hereafter the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe and other Western railroads are not to carry dogs free as baggage at owners' risk.

All the roads of the country have just agreed to put into effect new and uniform baggage rules. Under the new arrangement a dog not exceeding $25 in value or not for exhibition or field trials, if muzzled, or in crates, so marked as to show the name and address of the owner, will be checked and charged for at the regular excess baggage rate, the minimum charge being 25 cents. In all other cases dogs will be turned over to the express companies for transportation.

EXCESS RATES CHANGED.
Under the rules heretofore in effect the contracts on passenger tickets limited the baggage liability of the roads to $100.
Under the new contracts the limit in an adult's baggage will be $100, and on that of a child $50.

If a passenger declares a greater valuation, a charge will be demanded of per cent of excess baggage rate per 100 pounds. For example, if the excess baggage rate per 100 pounds is $1, the railroad will charge 10 cents for each $100 of valuation in excess of $100.

No piece of baggage for one passenger exceeds 70 inches in length, 48 inches in width and 30 inches in thickness. The value will be accepted.

One of the most important changes is to take effect next January. Under the present rules no piece of baggage will be checked which contains more than 40 cubic feet and weighs more than 250 pounds.

FORTY INCHES LIMIT.

After the date mentioned an excess rate will be charged for any piece of baggage the greatest dimension of which exceeds 40 inches. For each inch in excess a charge of 10 cents will be made for the charge for ten pounds of excess baggage.

No piece whose greatest dimension exceeds 70 inches will be accepted at all, unless it be baggage for a dog, which checked at a port of landing.
The purpose of the new rule is to eliminate entirely large trunks, especially sample baggage.

IT WAS NOT THE
WAS SHOCKED AT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—"I see by the papers" that lustrous Mary Garden was so shocked by the "turkey trot" at Caesar's Grill that she left the place in rage and shame. She did, eh? Well, now don't you believe a word of it! It takes more than a "turkey trot" to bring the blush of shame to Mary's cheek of innocence. She isn't at all touchy in such matters—very much a woman of the world, you know.

"But she did leave Caesar's Grill," I hear some one say—some one-half in the know—"and she did seem perturbed."

True, O king; but it wasn't the "turkey trot" that caused the trouble. I'll just tell you about it:

Miss Garden has as secretary a Mr. Chauncey. He is tall, young, bright of eye, fair of complexion. In the clubs he was known as "Mary's little lamb" and everywhere that Mary went that lamb was sure to go—and he followed her to Caesar's Grill for dinner that night.

Well, in that dinner party was a dashing young belle of our Bohemian society. Chauncey was placed next to her. The two became quite chummy, and they made a pretty picture as they sat together gossiping intimately.

Soon Mary's eyes began to flash. She darted glances at that young belle that were intended both to pierce and burn. And then the prima donna pleaded illness—a sudden attack—and went away. Of course Secretary Chauncey had to accompany her—and the trouble was over.

At the dinners where Miss Garden was the guest of honor after that much pains were taken to place Chauncey among the least attractive women—and there was no more sudden illness.

Just to Keep Down the Dust

When Miss Garden got to her private car and was about to leave our midst, she discovered that something was lacking. The supply of champagne was short.

Then there was mounting in hot haste. The telephone wire was put to buzzing. Men ran here and ran there—for when an operatic queen expresses a wish it is like the command of the queen of a devoted nation.

Mary had sipped of a vintage wine at the St. Francis that had appealed to her discriminative taste. She wanted some for the journey—just to keep those dust microbes out of the throat—you know what one of them did to Enrico Caruso's voice!

An appeal was sent to the St. Francis for a case of the special vintage. Any bonus would be paid if the case could reach the Garden car before the train pulled away. The rush order was attended to. Three men and a vehicle accompanied the case.

The bill was $78.10 for the wine. Its arrival was so highly pleasing that each of the three men accompanying it was given a tip of $2. And let us hope the dust microbes will be washed clear of that valuable throat.

It Doesn't Go in Los Angeles

Talking of the "turkey trot," I am reminded of an experience of one of our dashing club men at Venice this week. You know Los Angeles regards Venice as a sort of outfall sewer—a devilish lively place, where the throb and thrill of a great city pulsate so fast as to take the breath away.

Well, the club man from San Francisco found a darling young woman to accompany him into the heart and swirl of Venice devilment. They went to "The Ship," which is the nearest approach Los Angeles knows to a happy-go-lucky resort.

Having dined and wine they "heard the tread of dancing feet," and went to a big dance-hall across the way. The dancing was in full swing.

"Let's show 'em the 'turkey trot,'" said the club man.

"I'm afraid they won't like it," protested the maid. "Oh, they'll go crazy over it."

So the two swung into the well-known dance where every little movement has a meaning of its own. They were going famously and attracting attention, when suddenly a hand was laid on the club man's shoulder. It was the hand of the proprietor.

"You'll have to leave the floor," said the voice attached to the hand.

The clubman and his lady complied, but the thing struck them as so ludicrous that they broke out into peal on peal of laughter.

"I'd rather you'd leave the building," said the proprietor—and they left.

Ah, Los Angeles! Only a village yet—only a village!

The Donkey and the Whiskers

The commandant at the Presidio has threatened to close up with a stone wall the Lombard street gate and post a guard there in case Mayor McCarthy permits the opening of saloons in the neighborhood. The gate is the principal entrance to the Presidio grounds and the controversy over reopening the saloons in the neighborhood gets acute every little while. At one time it even involved Congressman Julius Kahn, who went to the front for the saloon men.

But never before have we had such a threat as the walling tip of the main gate, with the posting of sentries to see to it that the soldiers do not scale the wall to get at the outside canteens. It has been suggested that in such a case the Mayor could send out to that wall the well known boycott donkey with the whiskered man in charge marching them up and down in front of the wall with the admonition: "Unfair house! Don't enlist here!"

One of These Painters to Royalty

Every little while there comes on the rounds of America an artist of Europe who advocates himself as a court painter or the painter of great men and women. Then we proceed to "fall for them" and tumble over ourselves to give them commissions.

After a time some other painter—or perhaps a critic—comes gaily along and tells us we have been buncoed again. But that doesn't give us back our money or our self-esteem. For a time we are more careful and patronize our home painters—but soon along comes another foreigner, and we forget the lessons of the past.

Just now we are in the throes of another visitation. A painter of royalty is in our midst. Our society men and matrons are posing for him. The portraits exhibited are pretty fierce. We have half a dozen portrait painters who can give him cards and spades. But I have no doubt our rich people will patronize him largely, and get a lot more inferior portraits for superior prices. He hardly paints well enough to paint a governor for the state capitol.

And, by the way, a real portrait painter will be here next week. Our old friend Fred Yates is on his way. He is to paint Justice Henry A. Melvin for the Bohemian Club, of which the justice was president for two terms.

Just Part of a Club Josh

The other morning the suffragettes gave out the names of some preachers, lawyers, clubmen who are espousing their cause in the campaign for votes for women. In the list was the name of Charles K. Field, the brilliant editor of "Sunset."

At once his fellow clubmen took up a josh on Charlie and began making remarks about his attitude. Then he explained himself, as Kolb would say.

"It was this way: They wrote to Dick Hotelling—who, as you know, is my closest chum—asking him to support the cause of suffrage. Dick wrote back a blister. He wouldn't have anything to do with such a thing. He didn't believe for a minute in women getting out of their natural sphere. He had rather see a woman dead than parading around the polls, etc."

"Well, I must get talked about somehow, and I knew that if I took the opposite side from Dick it would create talk—and there you are."

By the way, the votes for women advocates seem to have plenty of money. They are employing orators and getting up advertisements, and I am told the Rev. Dr. Aked is to take the stump for them in a whirlwind finish campaign.

Roaring Buccaneers of the Bay

Many a year ago the papers were full of the escapades of "The Roseleaves." It was a merry organization of Bohemian Club men who sailed the bay on Sundays and took their name in a cynical imitation of the South-of-Market organization of the period, which organizations were given to marine picnics on scow schooners. Rescues and law suits and a thousand jests followed the course of the club whose constitution was, "What are you going to take?" and whose by-laws consisted of the reply, "I'll take the same!"

Well, the return of Charles Rollo Peters to California has started anew the "Roseleaf Social, Outing, Rescue, Gin, Gun and Grub Club," the old pirate choruses are being rehearsed and new members looked up. In the old days a new member was generally rich. He was tapped for about $15 initiation fee, and then given the wrong wharf as the sailing place of the good yacht Frolic. Then the initiation fee went toward providing the refreshments.

Many of the Roseleaves are dead—Dan O'Connell, Harry Gillig, George Nagle, Jack Lathrop and others; some have grown rich and socially haughty; and some are far away. But it is surprising how many of the original crew are left and how quickly they respond to roll-call. So if you should hear a specially salty chorus come roaring out of the bay some Sunday you may take it for granted that the Roseleaves are afloat again.

Where Is Our Dementia Americana?

What has become of Delphin M. Delmas? I found a man from New York this week bearing a letter of introduction to Delmas from his former law partner in New York, Charles Towne. It seems Towne thought Delmas was here, while we thought he was still in New York. He seems to be keeping himself out of the public view.

He is no longer associated with Towne and Stillman in New York. They felt they could get along without him. So it has been taken for granted by New York lawyers that he had not broken his way into successful practice in the great metropolis. But where will he break in?

I am reminded that when Delmas prepared his book of speeches he decided he would make it typographically perfect so far as accuracy was concerned. So he labored and labored and labored over the proof sheets with the devotion that none but Delmas could give a matter on which he had set his heart. Finally he told his publishers that everything was perfect—at last the perfect book.

Then, when it came from the press there were two typographical errors on the very first page he opened.

The Knockers

The "Cabinet," that famous organization of literati and gourmets, which meets at the noon hour each day at the Place, for physical and mental reflection, is now somewhat agitated over the titles accumulated by its members during the years of its existence as a luncheon club, which occasionally adds politics to its pursuit of the classics.

This novel club, of which President James H. O'Brien is the only officer, save that most important functionary, the waiter; and whose only by-laws are to place limitations on tips to the patient attendant at table and the hat-check man, has pseudonyms for all its most distinguished members. Among these are "The Duck," "The Insect," "The Grouch," "Cockey" and "The Cork."

All these designations have their special significance and what would appear phenomenal in any organization with a cult other than that of the "knock" as represented in the Cabinet, not one of this choice coterie is aware of his own nom de guerre, although fully informed of those of all his associates. For example, "The Duck" could tell you all about "The Insect" and "The Grouch," but does not know that he is referred to, aside, by the water fowl appellation. The same may be said of "The Cork" and even of "Cockey," who is conceded to be the wisest of all this profoundly acute assemblage.

The Cabinet has a dialect all its own that might be mistaken for patois, but which is in fact a most refined and forceful form of expression, compared to which Esperanto becomes meaningless and insignificant. Policies of Standard Oil, the balance of power of the nations of the earth, all trust problems and grave questions, both national and international, are disposed of off-hand and a declaration "He didn't do it" is a verdict of acquittal restoring the vilest sinner to full citizenship.

Occasionally between the intakes of physical nourishment the arts and sciences are given attention. A casual splash of local scandal, presented in choice vocabulary, furnishes citron for the intellectual cake which is served daily by "Cockey," "The Grouch," "The Insect," "The Duck" and others of this collection of kindred spirits, each of whom knows the pseudonyms of the others but none of whom is aware of his own nom de guerre.

Agents of La Follette

The State administration and its representatives are busy trying to build a La Follette machine in this State. Agents have been into some of the Congressional districts endeavoring to bring the various postmasters and other Federal officers into line for this program. Promises of Federal support and of patronage are made as though these agents were speaking with authority from Washington, D. C.

Thus far there appears to have been no move on the part of the regulars, or Taft people, the doing of national politics in this State to date seemingly being confined to the progressives.

Although a bill for the reapportionment of the House of Representatives on a basis of 433 members, or forty-one over the present membership, is pending before Congress, nothing has been done in this State other than the running of tentative new lines by political sub-committees to whom the matter was referred last year.

It is probable that nothing of a definite nature will be undertaken until after the Legislature, at its extra session next November, shall have apportioned the Assembly districts under the new census, as the lines of these subdivisions will be requisite in the fixing of the boundaries of the Congressional districts. Should the Houston bill now pending in Congress become a law, the representation in the lower house of Congress will be one member for each 211,877 inhabitants.

The California progressives, otherwise the present State administration, are also laying pipe for fights next year in some of the Congressional districts with a view to returning Representatives of their faction to Washington, D. C. The districts that are the targets of their principal attacks at present are the Fifth, otherwise Hayes' bailiwick, and the Eighth, now represented by Congressman Smith.

YO! HO! AND A BOTTLE OF— NO,
A CASE OF FIZZ

Twenty Years Ago

With the death of Billy Blattner, chief deputy in Assessor Dodge's office, last week another of what was known in this city, twenty years ago, as the younger element and who controlled the politics of that time, passed to the beyond. Blattner trained with Phil Crimmins, the "Little Napoleon" of the game, when he was at the height of his political power. It was Crimmins who made Blattner county clerk and later, in 1892, ran him for sheriff. But Blattner was defeated by John J. McDade, who had been in the Assembly. This was the year in which L. R. Ellert was elected mayor but otherwise the City Hall was taken possession of by the Young Men's Institute.

While Blattner had not been a nominee for public office since the year of his defeat for sheriff, he did much effective politics for Assessor Dodge, in whose office he had been chief deputy for the past twelve years.

At the funeral of Blattner was a large assemblage of reminiscent friends of the deceased. Next to the statement that he had been treated for pneumonia, whereas it was found, too late, that he was suffering from appendicitis, thus sadly illustrating the uncertainties of even modern medical science, incidents occurring during his public life were topics of discussion. One of these is given illustration every day on Market street, this city, over which drives an aged and grizzled man, once the political partner of Crimmins, as bosses of this city. It is none other than Martin Kelly endeavoring to eke out an existence by selling mineral water from a wagon. Twenty years ago money was so plentiful with the then Boss Kelly that one night he dropped a $10,000 roll of greenbacks in a hack in which he had been riding and did not miss it until the next morning, when it was restored to him.

Crimmins, however, has changed little, and while he plays no conspicuous part in politics at this time, is still as smug and well groomed as in the days when he was known as the Little Napoleon of San Francisco politics.

May Succeed Stubbs

William Sproule of New York, the president of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Express, who has been visiting the city for several days past, is being quietly spoken of as a likely successor to John C. Stubbs of Chicago, director of traffic for the Harriman railroad system, when the latter retires to private life next year on arriving at the age of 65. If Sproule should not get the coveted position, it is said the appointment will go to either E. O. McCormick of this city or Thomas M. Schumacher, who is now traffic manager of the Guggenheim smelter trust in New York. All of these men are proteges of the veteran Stubbs and both he and President Robert S. Lovett of the Harriman system entertain a very high regard for the ability of the three men. For many years Sproule was freight traffic manager of the Southern Pacific here. He resigned two years ago to become traffic manager for the smelter trust in New York. On becoming president of Wells, Fargo's Express, his place with the smelter trust was given to Schumacher, one of Stubbs' main assistants in Chicago. E. O. McCormick is still a leading assistant of Stubbs in his position as vice-president in charge of traffic on this coast. Sproule, by the way, is a former president of the Bohemian club. His wife is a daughter of Mrs. Veronica Baird, a wealthy San Francisco woman. Like Stubbs, each of these three men climbed up from the foot of the ladder and did much of their meritorious work in this city.

A Bunch of Keys

This is a tale of a bunch of keys. Mr. —, who is known as a promising young business man, is somewhat of a pessimist these days. No more of the talk of the milk of human kindness for him—at least not for a while. In a handsome apartment house our nameless despondent one has a suite of rooms befitting a prosperous young bachelor. Late the other night, when almost in front of the aforesaid house and somewhat mentally confused by the good things to eat and drink of several hours before, his foot struck a bunch of keys on the sidewalk. It was windy and raining and a good night to be indoors, especially at that hour.

"Some unfortunate fellow has lost his keys and probably can't get into his home without discomfiture," mused this man, as kindly, charitable feelings welled up in his heart and led him on to action. "I will take the keys to the police station for there the owner of them may already be making inquiries," he further mused under the influence of kindly thoughts and other things.

Soon he was in the presence of one of the night officers at Chief Seymour's office. His tale was told, the bunch of keys left and then conscious of having done a good deed, he was off on his way home seven blocks away. Arriving there, he found he had no keys. Like a flash of lightning, it dawned on him that the keys he had given the police were his own. Bitterly he cursed himself for having dropped his own bunch of keys without knowing it. Returning to the station, he demanded the keys as his own property. Throwing temper and discretion to the winds, he swore when his demand was not quickly complied with. It was almost daylight before he was properly identified and his own keys returned to him. So this is how it comes to pass that our hero of the key episode of the midnight hour is still saying to himself:

"The milk of human kindness! Bah!"

Shoe Fad of the Women

The hobble skirt, which appears to have marked the introduction of some startling innovations and bizarre effects in the up-to-date woman's attire seems to have still another indictment laid at its door. Now it and the incoming jupe culotte are accused of being directly responsible for the rapid and decided rise in the price of women's fine shoes and hosiery. The vagaries of fashion have apparently decreed that at the present stage it is the tailors and makers of fine footwear who are to get ahead of the game. While the hobbles and the extremely short, tight skirts that now prevail must contain considerably less material than formerly, I have not heard of any appreciable decrease in the size of milady's tailor bills and the bills for footwear have increased to double and treble their former size. Not now for the fair ones a "sensible" walking shoe or even the old reliable compromise, the broad-soled "tie," with its fancy ribbon bow. Perish the thought! Pumps, dainty and chic, of finest suede, satin or velvet, formerly reserved for special occasions, are now worn on the street, with fine silk hosiery to match, and, with the frank revelation of femininity's pedal extremities consequent upon the short, narrow skirt, form a conspicuous part of the tout ensemble of the fashionable woman's street attire. Consequently prices have soared. Even the woman who is courageous enough to invest in a pair of ordinary walking shoes finds that she has to pay thirty to forty per cent more for the same kind of shoe than she paid a year ago. The increase is even greater in the more fashionable styles of footwear.

Mere man could forgive these styles and prices were it not for the fact that the short skirt reveals an astounding number of women who have never been taught the necessity of graceful control of their feet. The latter in thousands of cases, it must be said in all truth, are revealed in all their pigeon-toed and sprawling awkwardness. In such cases, may Dame Fashion hasten the return of the crinolines or loose-pleated bell skirts to hide them. It goes without saying, however, that the woman who is graceful from the top of her head to the tip of the toe is a veritable joy in the short skirt and has a right to so consider herself. And where is the man who can't inwardly pick her out in any old crowd, too?

A Pastor's Story

Dr. Charles F. Aked, the new pastor and pulpit orator of the First Congregational church, has, like many another member of the cloth, the saving grace of humor. Being English born and bred, there are some who might think this former pastor of the Rockefeller Baptist church in New York has not a lively appreciation of a good story. But he has. He enjoys hearing one and also delights in the telling of one with the many good friends he is rapidly making on this side of the bay. In an informal talk with some of the officers of his church the other day Dr. Aked said it was necessary to keep close watch on details. With the little things well in hand, the big things could be more effectively handled as one by one they presented themselves for solution. Speaking of details, he said he was reminded of an enterprising landlord's wife. One afternoon the wife heard her husband talking to someone on the front doorstep. Johnnie, her son, had just come into the dining-room from the front of the house when she remarked to him:

"Johnnie, who is talking to your father at the front door?"

"I heard him say he is studying to be a minister and was looking about for a furnished room and meals for six months," was the reply.

"Quick, Johnnie," was the mother's instructions, "walk up and down the hall and whistle a hymn."

A Senator's Novel

An old San Francisco friend of former United States Senator Hansbrough of North Dakota has received a letter from the latter to the effect that he has written a political novel entitled "The Second Atone-ment," which is shortly to be published. It may not be generally known that Hansbrough years ago was a newspaper reporter in this city. If I am not mistaken, he took assignments on both the Chronicle and Call for several years. It was about the same time, or a little later, that Frank J. Cannon of Utah was a reporter on the Chronicle. Cannon, whose father was George Q. Cannon, was one of the leading bishops of the Mormon church, later on returned to Utah and became a United States senator. He is now making a sensational expose of the Mormon hierarchy in one of the monthly magazines. But, to return to Hansbrough and his novel. He was a senator for twenty years and ought to know the political game in the national capital. His story revolves around the rise of an insurgent senator and a love tale runs through it like a thread of gold. My informant states that the moral of the story is suggested in the following lines from Richard Brinsley Sheridan, quoted as a foreword:

"Believe not each accusing tongue,
As most weak mortals do;
But still believe that story wrong
Which ought not to be true."

Campaigning in Nevada

Speaking of Cannon and Hansbrough, two former senators of other states who once lived and worked here, calls to mind that the two present senators from Nevada, George S. Nixon and Francis G. Newlands, once claimed this city and state as their legal home. In his younger days, Nixon, who is a millionaire banker with fine homes in Reno and Washington, did not get along well in a financial way in this city. He went into the mountains and shot game for the market for a while. Later on he went to Nevada where he got his business start long before he entered politics. A close friend of Nixon tells me that in the latter's campaign for re-election last winter he used $400 worth of automobile tires. Some time ago in filing an itemized account of his campaign expenses, in pursuance of the Nevada law, Nixon included this item and one of $195 for broken windows. The latter expense, according to the friend of the senator, was due to a jollification meeting in Goldfield after the returns showed his election. There was a dense throng in the main, narrow business street. In the eagerness of hundreds to push up in front to greet the successful candidate, many show windows in stores were broken. Nixon had the damage appraised, paid it out and put the cost down as an item in his campaign expenses. The late United States Senator "Bill" Stewart of Nevada once told the writer he invariably used up eight or ten horses every time he made a campaign of the state. It is not surprising, although interesting; therefore, to hear in these days of automobiles that Nixon wore out several hundred dollars' worth of tires. Senator Newlands practiced law in this city and married into the wealthy Sharon family before he went to Nevada to claim a legal residence there and begin his successful political career. Newlands, by the way, does not seem to be faring very well at the hands of the Democratic minority in the senate at the present extra session. He has failed to become a member of the finance committee. Senator Shively of Indiana also beat him by one vote in becoming the leader of the Democratic minority. However, a Washington newspaper man informs me that a couple of weeks ago Newlands in a speech in the senate caused a decided stir and "put one over" on Senator Bailey and his favorite word "animadversion" by drawing and using from his ample vocabulary the word "malonimadversion," whatever that may mean.

Countess Sought Poverty

The Countess Aurelia Bethlen of Hungary, who recently at the Palace stated she was the propagandist of the Persian religion of Baha O'Llah, the "Promised One," offered the Pacific Mail Steamship officials some ten or twelve days ago just before her departure for Japan a $750 diamond ring in payment for a ticket, good for two years, from this city, via the Orient, to Paris. The offer was declined, although there was no doubt as to the value of the piece of jewelry. The company rules require cash payments for tickets. Two days later the prepossessing woman appeared again with enough money to purchase a ticket to Yokohama. Whether she sold or pawned jewelry to get the money or wired for it to New York is not definitely known. It is said she did the latter. The countess, who had modest apartments at the Palace, displayed while there plenty of diamonds and other jewelry on fingers, at throat and on her corsage. She was fond of declaring that she was traveling to the Orient without an extra dollar in her purse, for she said, "unless a missionary actually realizes the poverty of the poor she cannot become one of them." She claimed to be a descendant of one of the first kings of Hungary and that her new Persian religion was the natural and logical successor to Christianity.

The Bunk Fruit Picker

The woods in these parts are full of candidates for office from mayor to supervisor and clean on down the political line. One young man, who is very anxious to get a strong party endorsement for the office of supervisor and who seems in a fair way to get his wish gratified because of the position of some of his friends and his present apparent business prosperity, is to have his past record attacked if he gets into the primary election fight. Several persons living in the city who own apricot and prune orchards make a rather queer charge against the politically-ambitious citizen. According to them, he was a fruit picker for them at various times seven or eight years ago. Until they discovered his method of picking and packing fruit, they say he was the fastest in that line they had ever heard of. He picked and packed so fast as to be able to earn $4 to $6 a day. He would have one box filled where another fast man would hardly have a box half full. Then came the expose. What do you think they say it was?

Over a layer of apricots or prunes he would put a layer of shale or pieces of other rock and so on alternately until the box was full, the top layer being a beautiful array of packed fruit.

Vigorous complaints from consignees of the orchardists caused the latter to investigate. They say the man was paid fully $1000 before he was caught in his swindling trick. They do not explain why they did not prosecute him at the time. Since then the man has married a woman of means who has established him in what appears to be a good store. What will become of the threats to expose his alleged conduct as a get-rich-quick fruit picker and packer remains to be seen. Such an expose would add spice to what promises to be a most exciting political fight at next September's primaries.

Big House Warming

There is to be, I understand, a big house warming party at the new country home of William T. Seson at Soquel, near Santa Cruz, on Saturday, June 10, and the following day. Fully 500 people, mostly from this city and Oakland, are to be invited. Seson is a member and officer of the Bohemian club and a widely known business man, who has a host of friends. It is the desire of himself and wife to have many of these friends join them in the opening of their new country place, which is described as being both commodious and palatial. A special train is to be run from this city for the accommodation of their guests. Saturday night there is to be an elaborate vaudeville program. The same night there will be an electric display on the grounds under the direction of Edward Duffy, who made a name for himself in this role at the William H. Crocker country place about a year ago when his daughter was given a coming-out party and reception. On Sunday there will be a grand barbecue, which is being arranged for by former Mayor Robert Johnson of Monterey, Thomas Lynch of Santa Cruz and several other friends of Mr. Seson who are skilled in this delectable form of the Spanish cuisine. The affair will cost the host and hostess a pretty penny.

Bouquets for Each Other

At the Unitarian club banquet at the Fairmount last Monday night Chairman John M. Eshelman of the state railroad commission and F. G. Athearn, chief of the bureau of economics of the Southern Pacific Company, indulged in a pretty exhibition of bouquet throwing. The subject discussed at the gathering was about the relation of the railroads to the public. Those two young men were among the speakers. In the course of his remarks, Athearn said railroad commissioners should be honest and just in their treatment of railroads and he was glad to say the present California commission was of that character because of the ability and high sense of honor of its members. Eshelman, in turn, told of how Athearn and himself had been students at the University of California together and what a fine record Athearn had made as a scholar, an athlete and gentleman. Both men took a philosophical course under the lamented Professor Howison. Eshelman remarked further along that he was very optimistic in those college days. He wrote a thesis on "The Philosophy of Ethics—A Solution of a Difficulty Problem." Professor Howison very properly suggested the title be changed to read "An Attempted Solution of a Difficulty Problem." Since becoming a railroad commissioner, he has found the question of rate-making a most intricate one and was frankly prepared to say he would only attempt a solution of it and not optimistically and dogmatically assert he would and could furnish a solution that would be a panacea to all complaining shippers.

The Incident Closed

Harry Bates and his equally youthful and enterprising partner, Arthur S. Chesebrough, who constitute the firm of Bates & Chesebrough, owners of the California and Atlantic Steamship Company, the new and vigorous competitor of the Pacific Mail, via the Isthmus of Panama, and Judge Dickinson, who recently retired as Secretary of War, are disagreed as to the meaning of the word "misunderstood." Both young men recently made separate trips to the national capital to confer with Dickinson about the relations of their company with the Panama Railroad. Bates had the first conference with the War Secretary. Later on Chesebrough was East and called on the cabinet officer. As the story is told me, they went exhaustively into the question of steamer connection with the Panama road. Dickinson expressed the opinion at one stage of the talk that Chesebrough's statements were at variance with those previously made by his partner.

"Beg pardon, Mr. Secretary, you no doubt misunderstood Mr. Bates," was the reply.

Three other men were present at the time. They also attended the Secretary when Bates had his talk. Dickinson appealed to them as to whether he was right in saying the two men were not agreed as to their facts. They replied in the affirmative.

"Gentlemen, is it not possible you may all have misunderstood Mr. Bates?" pleaded young Chesebrough.

"Well, Mr. Chesebrough, you and I are far apart as to the meaning of the word misunderstood; in fact, irreconcilable on the subject, so we will close the incident and proceed with the work of the conference," smilingly but emphatically the Secretary of War is said to have rejoined.

Nice Naval Billet

That's a nice naval billet Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, recently in charge at Mare Island, has been given by his friend, Secretary of the Navy Meyer. Osterhaus has just gone East to assume command of the North Atlantic squadron and will put it through extensive maneuvers this summer. In addition, as is the usual custom, Newport society will fete him and his officers several days during September. Secretary Meyer, who is both able and aristocratic, will be present at the said maneuvers. Far be it from me to slight the ability of Osterhaus. He has won his spurs in the navy and his father before him was a distinguished general in the army. Annapolis probably never had an abler professor of mathematics than this same rear admiral. At the same time, Meyer, with his radical innovations in the navy and his pessimistic views about Mare Island as a rendezvous for American warships, has had a strong supporter in Osterhaus. Meyer has been more than kind to such supporters in the navy and ruthless with other officers who disagreed with him in his views. It is patent, as in the case of Osterhaus' new appointment, that the Secretary of the Navy is strong in his friendships. May the new Commander of the North Atlantic squadron gain more glory ere he reaches the inevitable retiring age. In addition to this important appointment, Secretary Meyer is having Admiral Osterhaus act as a member of the naval "plucking" board. It is the disagreeable duty of this board to select a number of naval officers for retirement for one kind of disability or another in order to cause a proper flow of promotion and thus strengthen the official personnel. The board will have to cause fifteen vacancies this year, it is said. This list will be made up of five captains, four commanders, four lieutenant commanders and two lieutenants.

Gates as a Dice Thrower

John W. Gates, stock and turf plunger and a steel magnate of no mean proportions himself, who is testifying against the steel trust before the Stanley Congressional Committee, was, one night, one of three original participants in the largest dice game ever shook over the Palace Hotel bar during the fifteen years immediately preceding the big fire. It was about 2 o'clock in the morning during the winter of 1902 while Gates and his son, Charles G. Gates, were on the Coast on a short vacation trip. The other two men in the game were rich San Franciscans of sporting proclivities. They shook regular poker dice for $3000 per throw. About $15,000 in money was displayed, the final settlement to be made by check. With his proverbial luck, Gates was beating the local men to a frazzle, having won $20,000 from them, when Charley, his son, appeared on the scene and insisted on getting into the game.

"Go to bed, son," remarked Gates pere. "You are my mascot in everything but dice, and I'll be darned if you can get into this game. If you do I'll sure lose."

Charley did get into the dice battle and the father's prediction came true. He lost his $20,000 of winnings and when the game ended at 4 a. m. he was $3000 to the bad. One of the local men broke even, the other lost $3000. Charley Gates was ahead $6000 and gave his father the laugh.

Clark's Debts

What is the matter with Charles A. Clark of San Mateo, a son of the fabulously rich Senator W. A. Clark of Montana, whose second wife is a Tobin of this city?

A New York dispatch in the local papers the other day stated that the father was fighting an effort to force him to pay $30,000, said to be a stock exchange debt of his son. The latter, who has an expensive establishment at San Mateo, having bought the regal place of Walter S. Hobart some years ago, seems to owe every row and then large sums of money. It will be remembered that the day before he married into the Tobin family the Bank of California sued him on two notes for $25,000. Several other suits for large sums have been brought against him since then. They always got quietly settled somehow in the end. Senator Clark's other and younger son, W. A., Jr., now living in Los Angeles, is just the reverse. There has never been a suit against him for debt. Liberal to a fault, however, his friends, it is said, have all along easily made him their victim. He is said to have a bunch of I O U's large enough to choke a cow. Some time ago a prominent man connected with the stage, now dead, lost his entire bank roll playing faro. Clark, Jr., was with him at the time, simply as an on-looker.

"Let me have $2000, Will," said the man of the stage.

He got the money and it went the way of the rest in an hour.

"I'll hand you the $2000 in a few days, Will," said the friend.

Will got it handed to him all right, all right. The friend never paid and when he died his estate was nil. Young Clark may still have that I O U in his collection as a souvenir.

PIEDMONT PARLOR TO GIVE THEATER PARTY TUESDAY

Piedmont Parlor, No. 120, Native Sons of the Golden West, will give a theater party at the Liberty Theater next Tuesday evening, for the benefit of their band and drum corps, which they propose taking to Santa Cruz during the session of the grand parlor. This organization is one of the largest of its kind in California, and headed by the drum major, Joseph W. Kramm, it will be one of the leading features at the coming convention, as it also proved to be in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco last September.

Since that time however, under the leadership of the able drum major and bandmaster, both the band and drum corps have been greatly improved, through continued practice, and this will be the first time they have appeared in public since the celebration. Kramm has the honor of making the best appearance on parade of any drum major in California, being of stately build and over six feet in height, while his uniform is especially attractive.

COMMITTEE IN CHARGE.

The committee in charge of the theater party comprises Past President Frank Craddock, Walter Herkenham, August Wenner, Joseph W. Kramm, and H. Webber, who have been ably seconded in the undertaking by the entire membership of Piedmont parlor and its many friends.

The center of interest among the Oakland delegation at the grand parlor will be in the election of James J. McElroy, who is being urged for the office of grand trustee, the stepping stone to grand president, the highest office in the gift of the order. Headquarters have been secured for the week of the convention at the Sea Beach Hotel, where Oakland hospitality will be extended the visiting delegations from every state, while incidentally boosting the candidacy of McElroy for the office to which he aspires.

COMPULSORY PHYSICAL TRAINING IS PLANNED

BERLIN, June 3.—A scheme of compulsory physical training for the municipal officials of Schoenberg has just been introduced by Herr Doering, the newly appointed Lord Mayor of the beautiful western suburb of Berlin, in order to counteract the evil effects of their long hours of deskwork. All the younger officials are granted an hour's leave on one day every week, during which they are put through a course of athletic exercises in the playground of one of the city schools under the direction of the school's gymnastic instructor. Every official is expected to participate in the training if the medical officer reports him physically fit to undergo the exertion, and regular attendance is compulsory.

TRIBUNE DAY

IDORA PARK, Next Tuesday

75c Worth of Concessions Tickets FREE

Last night, just as it began to grow dark, old Mr. Brownie, the chief bear at Idora, said to Mrs. Brownie: "Oh, hem, I wish this was Tuesday. I'm so hungry for peanuts that I can't go to bed." "Never mind, daddy," she said, "Tuesday will soon be here and you'll get more peanuts than you can ever eat."

Only one more day to wait after today! But, like the day before Christmas, it will seem like a week. Tuesday morning bright and early 80,000 little eyes will pop open with the daylight. Forty thousand tousled little heads will receive the quickest brushing they've had for many a moon. Eighty thousand little legs will scamper to an early breakfast. And then? Why, then 40,000 little kiddies will have to wait until 10 o'clock because the gates of Idora Park on TRIBUNE DAY don't open until 10. So don't get up too early—and take your time about dressing—and eat your breakfast slowly.

Now Then, Folkies, There Are Two Very Important Things to Remember

First—You must use your admission tickets between the hours specified upon them. Morning tickets are not good in the afternoon or evening, and vice versa. So don't try to use them except during the hours stated upon the ticket. Second—Concession tickets must also only be used during the hours stated upon same. Those who enter on morning admission ticket get morning concession tickets which must be used before noon. Afternoon concession tickets are only good from 2 to 6, and evening concession tickets are good from 6 to 10.

AMONG THE ATTRACTIONS TO BE FURNISHED FREE ARE

A Big Open Air Vaudeville Show.
A Thrilling Balloon Ascension and Parachute Jump.

Two $500 Band Concerts.
One Hundred Dollars in Gate Prizes.

50 Gift Bearing Parachutes to Be Turned Loose.
5000 Free Toy Prizes to the Little Children.
6000 Free Bags of Peanuts.

If 50,000 people attend (as is expected) THE TRIBUNE will on TRIBUNE DAY give away to its friends prizes, entertainment and gifts of a TOTAL VALUE OF APPROXIMATELY $45,000, making it the greatest party ever given to its patrons by any newspaper in America.

CROKER'S DAUGHTER FINDS MARRIAGE FAILURE

Countess di San Martino Finds Herself in Predicament of Being Unable to Get Divorce

(By VANCE THOMPSON.)

PARIS, June 3.—The usual fate, only with aggravating circumstances which befalls the rich American girl who marries a titled foreigner, has overtaken the Countess di San Martino, formerly Florence Croker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Croker of New York, Glencairn, Palm Beach and Paris.

Miss Croker's marriage with the Italian nobleman, although a love match, has lasted about four years, this being the average length of time such international unions last.

Every official is expected to participate in the training if the medical officer reports him physically fit to undergo the exertion, and regular attendance is compulsory.

Count San Martino is the son of an ancient Italian house. It was his cousin and Count San Martino, who entertained recently at a gargantuan feast to the mayors of the principal cities of Italy.

The domestic infidelities now aired in the London law courts of that fair Virginian, dashing horse woman and shining light of letters, Mrs. Robert Harborough Sherard, have had their rise and growth, if not their development, in a piece of Parisian literature from the pen of her present husband.

high sheriff of Northamptonshire. Originally she was Miss De Belot, coming of old Virginian stock, such as the Careys, Fairfaxes and Debelots.

The book that has brought about the trouble between these two former literary affiliates is called "The Nocturnal Pleasures of Paris." It does not bear the name of Robert H. Sherard, but purports to have been written by Captain Corey Sylvester. Under this military title Sherard concealed his authorship, but some too candid and too zealous friends informed Mrs. Sherard that her husband was the author of this obnoxious book.

The price paid, the unbecoming circumstances under which it was written and its being a guidebook to gayety in the most wicked city of the world, were all poured into her sharp ears.

SHAKES CONFIDENCE. This piece of Parisian literature gave the first shake to the confidence of Mrs. Sherard in her husband. Then his Russian ex-wife, who also lives in Paris, became troublesome. The ultimate disappointment came when Sherard was not able to make good his promise that Mrs. Sherard should be raised to the dignity of Lady Harborough.

Mary Garden has been cut out at the Grand Opera by a newly arrived Russian named Mme. Kousnezoff. The Russian had recreated "Gwendoline," now given for the first time in ten years. She is to take Miss Garden's place in "Thais."

This blow is particularly severe on Mary, who used to say she held the managers of two state-aided theaters in the hollow of her hand. Carre, manager of the Opera Comique, first revolted against Mary's domination. In this he was encouraged by Mme. Carre, who has a deep-rooted dislike for the Aberdeen girl from Chicago.

Whatever the cause may be, there is a reversion in Paris from what the Parisians call the exaggerated style of Mary Garden to the simple manner of Mme. Kousnezoff. The revolt against Mary Garden and the favor of Kousnezoff is led by the Duchess de Rohan, Countess Chaldon de Brielle and Countess de Gabriac.

WILL PARADE FOR EDUCATORS. SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Alfred Roncover, Superintendent of Schools, called upon Colonel J. P. Wisner, commandant of the Presidio, today and made arrangements to have all the troops at the Presidio give a dress parade for the National Teachers' Association, which convenes here in July.

PLAN LEGACY TAX ON EDDY PROPERTY

New Hampshire Claims Jurisdiction Over Part of Estate.

CONCORD, N. H., June 3.—Upon petition of State Treasurer, Solomon Carter, there have been appointed by Judge Charles K. Corning on the probate court for Merimack county, three appraisers to make an inventory of certain personal property of the late Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church, located in Massachusetts and not included in the previous inventory of Mrs. Eddy's estate by the order of the court.

This property, the state treasurer claims, although located in Massachusetts, is within the jurisdiction of the state of New Hampshire for the purposes of assessment of a legacy tax.

21 TO BE DEPORTED. EL PASO, Tex., June 3.—Twenty-one Chinese left El Paso this morning in the custody of United States Marshal C. M. Forester for San Francisco, for deportation to Hong Kong. Nine of the Chinese are from Albuquerque. The others were apprehended here.

CONGRESS OF AVIATION LAW COMES TO END

PARIS, June 3.—The first international congress of aviation law, which has been in session here for several days under the presidency of Alexandre Millerand, former Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, ended with the adoption of seventeen clauses of an agreement, which will form the nucleus of a code of the air.

SCHOOL BOOKS STOLEN. SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—For the second time within a month a large quantity of school books were stolen from Bergerot school, twenty-fifth avenue and California street, some time yesterday. The previous theft occurred on May 3.

A Dangerous Lunatic at Large.

In Stockton there is a public institution denominated by the vulgar as a "foolish house." One of its inmates appears to have escaped, judging from a letter printed in the Stockton Mail, which seems to be the official organ of the aforementioned public institution. This letter is dated from Oakland and signed Hugh J. Corcoran. The writer labors under the delusion that the conditions which prevail in Stockton prevail here. Everything in Alameda county that is not crooked is rotten, according to his story. The only thing he did not complain of is the whisky, which he apparently found to his liking, although his remarks indicate a sour stomach and a headache the morning after. The police department of Oakland is a joke, if he is to be believed, and everything else a tragedy. This is how he describes conditions in Oakland:

"On every hand one can see evidences that progress has been opposed rather than assisted. Her system of streets and avenues is, in many sections, chaotic. In time this will be remedied at an enormous and unnecessary cost. Fine pavements have, of late, been put down, only to be left uncared for and filthy. Of breathing spaces in the form of parks she has so few as to amount to almost a total neglect of this very important element in municipal life.

"In the heart of the city there is a filthy pool, in and out of which a feeble tide struggles, serving to replace the foul water inside with the still fouler from the outside, for into the bay waters along the front is poured the sewage of several cities, and tide and wind and natural conditions generally prevent this foul mess from being carried out to sea. On the contrary, the small portion which gets beyond the sewer mouth is carried along the water front for miles and remains a perpetual menace to the health of nearly a quarter of a million people. That Berkeley, Oakland and Alameda have not been decimated by a pestilence because of their awful sewer systems is only because the time is not yet come. It will come, unless conditions change, as surely as night follows day.

"From this sewage-laden body of water the tanks of certain swimming and bathing establishments are supplied, with no protest from the health authorities.

"In the markets you will see fruits and berries, vegetables and fish, meats and butter lying uncovered and exposed to the clouds of dust from the filthy streets and to the myriads of flies which divide their time between the compost heaps and the public markets. In this city is conducted a so-called free market, which is a marvel of filth and other undesirable conditions.

"Automobiles and motorcycles traverse the streets at all hours and at any speed, to the great danger of those who walk. There is neither regulation nor attempt at regulation of these vehicles."

It is clear that the author of this spill of sewage is either a lunatic or a fool. He either does not know what he is talking about or is a malicious and abandoned liar. The Mail ought to be ashamed of itself to print such a farrago of vindictive drivel. No sewage runs into Lake Merritt, and the sewer system of this city is as good as any on the coast. The markets are clean and sanitary and all fruits, meats and vegetables are required by ordinance to be kept under glass. This Corcoran individual must have the fens and sloughs around Stockton in mind when he described Lake Merritt as a filthy pool befouled by sewage. The mosquitoes he carried in his imagination from the slough city appeared to him as flies in Oakland.

Indeed, there is not a single statement made in the letter quoted from that is not a bald, deliberate lie. What the object of the writer was (assuming him to be sane) in making such grotesquely false statements can only be conjectured, but it is extraordinary that a journal as ordinarily respectable as the Mail should make itself the vehicle for circulating such malign ravings as those contained in the letter signed Hugh J. Corcoran. That person ought to be in the insane asylum or in jail.

According to John W. Gates, the Steel Trust was formed because J. Pierpont Morgan was afraid Andrew Carnegie would pull down the whole industrial fabric—tear everything to pieces, in fact. According to Judge Gary, the Steel Trust absorbed the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company to avert a panic. The panic that was averted was the threatened failure of the banking house of Moore & Schley. Thus it will be seen that Mr. Morgan's course in all these matters has been dictated by a spirit of philanthropy, by a desire to serve the public. Nevertheless, he made a bunch of millions by his philanthropic activities. Possibly his motives were entirely altruistic, still a good many skeptics will cling to the delusion that he was prompted by business reasons and had the profit in view all the time.

Woodrow Wilson is not afraid of his salary being docked. He is still swinging around the circle delivering academic discourses on politics and government. His tour may be described as the course of the pedagogue. Hon. Judson Harmon of Ohio would probably speak of it (in private) as the itinerary of the demagogue.

The Relative Cost of Things.

When we have reached that delightful millennial stage of altruism when no man will want more than fair profit on his investment or ask more than a fair price for anything he has to sell, there will still be plenty of ground for dispute in defining what is a fair profit and a fair price. The man who has increased the rental of his tenants two hundred per cent in five years is often indignant at having to pay ten cents extra for a crate of strawberries. The man who is enriched by the rise in property values is incensed at the increased cost of living. He finds fault because labor is too high and foodstuffs cost so much, but he steadily screws up the rent on the tradesmen who rent business quarters from him and the tenants who occupy his tenements. He does not associate the cost of living with high rents and excessive profits on land.

It is all in the point of view, we might say, upon whose side the gored. It is human nature to accept the advance in prices when they confer a personal benefit as blessed gifts to the righteous or as fruits of foresight, frugality and honest sagacity in business dealings and at the same time complain of advances in prices that redound to the advantage of others. It is the way it hits one, the side that presents itself.

This is a selfish world, and the effort of all mankind is to buy as cheap and sell as dear as possible—get as much as you can and give as little in return. Hence the farmer rejoices at getting big prices for his grain and hay and fruit is indignant when he has to pay correspondingly high prices for clothing and groceries. Increase in the price of wheat he has to sell is right and natural. The increase in what he must buy is wrong and unnatural. It is something to be corrected by Congress or the courts. He is sure he is being robbed. He blames the railroads, the trusts, the money system, the tariff—anything and everybody but himself. And he never balances the credits in his favor against the debits in his disfavor. There is only one side to the case, and that side is his side.

It is the same way with the merchant, the manufacturer and the middleman. Even the workman is not to be excepted. He strikes for more wages and shorter hours, gets what he demands, and then is surprised that he has to pay more for beefsteak, house rent and shoes. He does not consider that every advance in wages helps to increase the cost of living; that rents rise in proportion to the increased cost of building houses; that farm products increase in value with the increase in the cost of production. Then all hands turn round and express astonishment that the increased cost of products, material and labor should have any effect on the cost of transportation. Nobody appears able to understand or is willing to admit, that increased cost of labor, fuel and material increases the cost of operating a railroad. The rule is that every man should take all the advance and advantage he can and deny the right of any one else to take any advance or advantage.

So the world is inconsistent as well as selfish. Charity begins at home, so does social and political economy. The charity that begins at home usually stops before it makes a start. The reasoning which follows the circle marked out by self-interest never traces effects back to cause nor balances the credits and debits in the game of life.

Such is the man who for interested reasons declares the cost of living has not increased. He is disputing a proposition that every housewife in the land knows to be true. But he is no worse than the person who says the farmer is the guilty person who is cinching everybody else. The farmer points an accusing finger at the railroads and the railroads cry aloud that the middleman is the real malefactor.

Yet they are all quarreling over a shadow while losing sight of the substance. Cost is relative, not concrete. It is not always measured by dollars and cents. It is fixed by the law of compensation. You cannot tell how much you pay till you see what you have got in return. While the cost of living, measured by the dollar, has visibly increased, there has been a still greater advance in the scale of human comfort.

The average man lives in a better house, eats better food, wears better clothes and enjoys more leisure today than at any previous time in the history of the world. The state furnishes him with museums, libraries and pleasure grounds and his children with books and playgrounds; there are free hospitals, free music, free baths and many other things which were not in former times provided without charge. All these things help swell the tax rate, which in turn contributes to the increased cost of living. If a dollar does not go as far as it formerly did, it is easier to get. The man who earns his living by manual labor dwells in a larger and cleaner atmosphere than he ever did before; his family enjoy comforts and luxuries undreamed of two generations ago. The level of human comfort and human dignity has gone higher than the advanced level in prices. It is the working of the law of compensation. With each fresh advance to higher ground in the development of the race there is a readjustment of values. In speaking of the details we speak in the terms of the unit, not taking note of the real relation of things and of comparative values. We abandon the substance to chase the shadow.

That is because mankind is inherently selfish and prone to reason in the terms that fit closest with the prayer of the old farmer:

God bless me and my wife,
My son John and his wife;
Us four and no more.

San Francisco is taking a bad time to wash her dirty linen. At the very time she is asking Congress to pass her water bill and authorize the appointment of an exposition commission, she is turning up a very noisome police scandal as a proof of her worthiness. It is really too bad. It hurts the whole State, and only gives wider spread to the evil reputation which San Francisco gained a few years ago. The kind of a bird that fouls its own nest has been immortalized in proverb. San Francisco should study the proverb.

Since William Jennings Bryan has transferred the light of his countenance to Woodrow Wilson, Champ Clark has become an avowed candidate for President. Evidently Champ is playing the Nebraska orator for a hoodoo.

THE AUTOMATIC ALARM.
Lights out. The house is dark and still,
The windows have a vacant stare;
The night is black, the wind is chill—
Lights out!

And noiselessly he climbs to where
The porch roof looms—he mounts the sill,
Forces the casing. Then, beware—
A flood of light springs up! A shrill Voice sounds! He's touched some button,
Then, with a curse, Porch Climber Bill
Lights out!

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

If a body find a body
Digging in the Wye,
Who'll identify the body
When it's high and dry?
For if Bacon killed poor William,
Kindly tell us why
He should trouble to inter him Underneath the Wye?

Next some scholar will inform us
By the river Wye
That old Falstaff slaughtered Hamlet
For Iago's lie.
All the world is mad, my masters,
Fame is worth a try,
Though a clapper comes to zero

WHEN FATHERS ARE HUMBLLED.

Euclid entered the stadium looking blue and discomfited.
His associates held aloof for a while, expecting the great problemist to throw off his gloomy air.

But they waited in vain.
Then they commingled together and finally selected Timmyanus to approach the master.

"What is it that disquiets you, great one?"
quoth the messenger in his softest Pelopean demeanor.

Euclid looked around.
"I'll tell you, Timmy," he replied. "My little girl came home from school last night and asked me to show her how to do one of her geometry problems—and,
by jings, I couldn't do it."—Cleveland

THE BRAVEST.

They were talking of bravery.
"I crawled up the hill of San Juan with a broken collar bone and a bullet in my leg," said the first man.
"I carried a message across Death Valley and was without water for five days," said the second man.

"And I braved 500 policemen, twenty ushers, six screaming bridesmaids and a raving father and set up my flashlight apparatus in a fashionable church," said the pallid photographer.

And without further question they handed him the medal.—Cleveland Plain

"Why," suggested her dearest friend,
"don't you let some other girl wear it?"—

WONDERS OF INSECT LIFE

The mimicry of inanimate things by insects is one of their chief means of protection. The walking-sticks, as they are called, are insects that resemble the twigs of trees with almost absolute fidelity. There are moths that pass the days, with outstretched wings, flat on the trunks of trees, and, from a short distance, cannot easily be distinguished from a patch of lichen. The leaf butterfly of India takes the form, color and even the veinings of a leaf so closely that it is next to impossible to distinguish one when it is at rest. These are but a few of the remarkable protective mimicries among insects. In every case the action is entirely unconscious on the part of the insects.

The most wonderful boring apparatus in the world is possessed by the great ichneumon fly. It is composed of three black filaments, all extremely fragile, no larger of stiffer than a horsehair and about five inches long. These fit together with grooves, and glide easily along their entire length. The three, when fitted together, are no larger in diameter than a small needle, and as flexible as a slight breath of air will bend them. Yet with this remarkable instrument, its owner can bore three or four inches into the hardest wood. This horror is possessed only by the female and is her ovipositor, or egg-laying apparatus. Boring which takes hours to accomplish is for the purpose of laying one egg.

Many insects are extremely prolific. All of the order Hymenoptera, the bees and ants, lay large numbers of eggs, but they are easily excelled by the order Plecoptera, the stone flies, one female of which deposits from 5000 to 6000 eggs. But the champion egg-layers are the insects embraced in the order Isopoda, the white ants. Dr. Howard states that these insects are called white ants because they are not white, but he further goes on to tell us that the females of some of the African species grow to an enormous size, as big as a large potato. The rate at which the eggs are laid is extraordinary, being about sixty a minute, or 80,000 and upward a day.

SUCCESS IN LETTERS

A magazine editor, in the course of an informal talk a short time ago, made the somewhat brutal assertion that the financial emolument is the sole test of success in literature as in about every other line. As a matter personal to the author, it might be admitted that this is about as good a test as there is. And yet it leaves a sense of dissatisfaction. On that cash basis Mr. Robert W. Chambers is reported to be our most successful author today, and Laura Jean Libby is one of the most successful on record. Such examples are not altogether comforting to those who believe in merit as a test of success.

However, merit in literature may be of various kinds. A book may be dull but valuable, or it may be diverting but worthless. The authors of "Success in Literature" cite what they consider a deplorable instance of the success of the superficial writer. Three books were written on the camelopard. The first was by an Englishman who had spent 10 years in the haunts of that animal, had bred, trained and shot them; but nobody read his book. The second was by a German who had never seen a camelopard, but who spent 10 years in a library, reading everything that had been written on the subject. His book is looked upon as a standard work on camelopards. The third was by a Frenchman who went to the Jardin des Plantes and spent 10 days writing his own interpretations of the beast. His book gained a European success.

There you have a sample of the vagaries of success. Of course, the Englishman's book was the truly authoritative one of the three, but its merit was probably purely scientific. The Frenchman produced a readable book, and that is the test of merit in literature and the test of success. The actual value is a secondary matter, and comparatively unimportant.—Providence Journal.

UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE

Four students of Boston University are about to sing their way around the globe. They will, it is presumed, take no scrip. It is interesting to note that they fully expect to arrange one-night stands in Christian churches clear round the world. But equally noteworthy is the suggestion that music, particularly vocal music, song, is already the universal language. In the streets of Bombay a respectful and admiring crowd would pause to hear a quartet of fine voices and so would it be in Pekin. No doubt it would pay to pass the hat. Music is the language of the emotions, and words are of small account in their realm.

Music is drawing mankind together in a way not sufficiently recognized. Musicians are not publicists nor politicians.

They do little talking about public affairs, but they have done great things to show the essential unity and brotherhood of mankind. We quite disagree as to our rights. Our creeds are many. Our affections present amusing variety. But our emotions are identical.

The opera is much more than we realize. Beyond all amusement, it is a world force. A great bandmaster, like Theodore Thomas, was a great builder of national unity. A grand organ knows no nationality. Where is the spot on the round earth, in which a violin is a "foreigner?" Some one has said it was the songs that made German unity possible. At all events, Germans sing more than Americans do. We do not sing as much as we used to. It is time to tune up, sing more and grow tress.—New York Mail.

PRACTICAL FARM TRAINING

Elmer E. Hutter of Faulkner county, Ark., is 17 years old. He lives a mile east of the county seat, Conway, "on a farm that several years ago was considered worn out, but now is making a good living and a small bank account"—the words are the boy's own; they suggest responsibility and a serious-minded outlook.

Last year, on a single acre of this old farm, Elmer raised 94.7-8 bushels of corn; by this he won the boys' corn-growing contest and received $100 from the Arkansas Bankers' Association. Other prizes that he won in exhibition at the Faulkner county fair, the state fair at Hot Springs and the tri-state fair at Memphis aggregated $279.50 in cash; also a Berkshire pig, a registered Poland China pig, a trip to Washington and an official diploma from Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture.

Something of the intelligence this boy puts into his farming is hinted at by one line of his letter: "We tested a piece of ground with blue litmus paper." Evidently the schooling this boy has received has tended to make him a farmer, not a bookkeeper, a clerk or a motorman. For him the path of least resistance is to stay on the farm, not to go to the city. Apparently somebody connected with the public schools of Arkansas is doing a man's part toward solving the most important economic question in the United States.—Collier's Weekly.

PREMATURE BURIAL

Every now and then someone works up a panic over the possibility of being buried alive. That many are haunted by the apprehension of such an event is shown plainly in the conditions so often found in wills, where certain tests are provided for, such as the opening of a main artery or the preservation of the body above ground for a stated period.

One who describes himself in the current dictionaries of biography as a "scientist"—on the strength apparently of his association with the Psychical Researchers—has lately written a book on death in which all the horrors of premature interment are duly dwelt upon. He tells us of the great French "expert" who collected the records of 181 accidents of this order, including 52 who were buried alive, four who were vivisected on the supposition that they were dead, 53 who awoke after they had been laid in their coffins and 72 who insisted on living after having been officially pronounced dead. He quotes another authority who by the force of genius has made the discovery that 1 per cent of all burials are premature. And he tells a blood-curdling story of a medical student's violent encounter with a "subject" who refused to lie still upon the dissecting table, besides many other instructive anecdotes all tending to show that when the poets and philosophers speak of death as a certainty their observation must be interpreted only in a general sense.

The worst of all is that "at the smallest average one person is buried alive in the United States every twenty-four hours." To think it may be our turn

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

Maber and Mahan will fight, at the California Athletic Club on June 28. Slavin and Kilrain will fight in Honolulu on June 16. The purse is $10,000, of which $2500 will go to the loser and Slavin has contracted to knock out Kilrain in ten rounds.

Of the $10,000 bonus asked by Joseph MacDonald for the building of a theater on the corner of Fourteenth street and Broadway, under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE, $8000 has been raised to date with the expectation that within a couple of days the remainder of the amount will have been subscribed.

John C. Westphal has contracted for the erection of a three-story building on the east side of Washington street near Fourteenth street, which will cost when completed more than $25,000.

J. W. Farmer, a capitalist who has been living in Oakland for some time past, died at Vallejo yesterday at the age of 71.

Yesterday afternoon, at the executive session of the Associated Charities, Colonel W. H. O'Brien was elected to fill the position of general secretary, vice Otto Von Lenthe, resigned.

Fred W. Lange of this city and Miss Annie Son of Mariposa county, were married by the Rev. Benjamin Akery at 1145 Chester street last evening.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Lange, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tyack, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lange, Miss Emma Wells, Miss Tiny Wells, Miss Alvina Lange, William H. Lange, George Berry, William Hammer. The couple were married in their new home, which they had furnished.

The Albany Club was organized last evening by a number of Oakland young men and Henry Cahn was elected president and Aaron Jaffe, secretary pro tem. The following charter members enrolled their names: Henry Cahn, Aaron Jaffe, Louis Scheeline, Alfred Friedman, Simon Landecker, Paul Carroll, Milton Wolfson and Isaac Thelene.

Miss Juliet Wilbur Tompkins of San Leandro, daughter of the late Edward Tompkins and a niece of the late Governor H. H. Haight, will graduate at Yassar this year.

A family party consisting of Mrs. H. D. Bacon, Miss Bacon, Mrs. Frank Soule, Miss Mamie Soule, Master Leach, Douglas Soule and nurse have gone to Yellowstone Park and Puget Sound for their vacation.

The death of Miss L. Tracy occurred yesterday at 967 Alice street, where she has been conducting a seminary for young ladies for a number of years. She deceased was over 76 years old at the time of her death.

COUNTESS GRANARD ECLIPSES HER RIVAL

Takes Place of Mrs. Harcourt as Chief Hostess of the Liberals.

ROYALTY PRESENT
AT HER DINNER

Mrs. Sam Newhouse Falls
While Skating and Breaks Arm.

(By CHESTER OVERTON.)
LONDON, June 3.—The Countess of Granard is now securely established as the chief official hostess of the Liberal party and has entirely eclipsed Mrs. Lewis Harcourt, nee Burns, in that capacity. Her royal dinner party in honor of the king's official birthday was made especially gorgeous by the presence of a number of Indian princes wearing wonderful barbaric costumes and jewels.

One dusky potentate, the Maharajah of Bikanir, bemoaned the loss of a magnificent pearl shaped diamond, which dropped from his turban during a shopping expedition that day. It was returned nearly a week afterward by a humble messenger who found it in Pall Mall.

The royalties present at the Countess of Granard's dinner were the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Prince and Princess Christian of Denmark, Princess Henry of Battenberg and Prince Alexander of Teck. All the colonial premiers came to the reception.

WILL STAY HOME.

Lady Granard, who was among the first to offer her beautiful home, Forbes house, to the government to house the coronation guests of the nation, will not be obliged to turn out after all. She had been asked by King George to entertain the Duchess of Aosta of Italy. This does not prevent her from inviting relatives and friends to visit her for the coronation week.

The Duchess of Aosta was the beautiful Helene d'Orleans, and as a girl was very much in love with the late Duke Clarence, who was not allowed to marry her owing to religious differences.

Dowager Queen Alexandra has always shown great affection for the lucches, who is still very handsome.
Lady Naylor Neill and is one of the Americans who will donate her house to the government for coronation week. It will be occupied by the French mission. Lady Leylands' magnificent dwelling is exactly opposite the French embassy and was chosen for this reason.

Prince Henry of Prussia will occupy Lady Hindlip's house in Hill street, Mayfair. Lord Ridley is giving his house in Carlton House terrace to the Serbian mission. Prince George of Saxony is to be quartered in Lord Iveagh's house in Grosvenor place. Lord Iveagh is the millionsaire of St. Louis. His wife is seriously ill and will not take part in the coronation festivities.

BREAKS HER ARM.

Mrs. Sam Newhouse, the pretty American who has been a regular visitor during the London season for many years, has been compelled to cancel all social engagements for the present. She fell while skating in the Princess ice rink and broke her arm. She is suffering great pain, but she will be able to witness the coronation procession.

Americans, as usual, have been much to the fore in the past few days.
Mrs. Cecil Bingham gave her first big dinner party since her marriage. The American guests included Mrs. Spender Clay, daughter of William Waldorf Astor; Mrs. William Leeds, whose famous pearls are about the size of a pigeon's egg and create a great sensation; Mrs. Walter Burns, Cund and Lady Lister Kay, a sister of Mrs.
George Cornwallis West.

At the first performance of Puccini's
"Girl of the Golden West," Mrs.
Berkeley Martin Jones attracted lively attention. She wore a wonderful green gown, the corsage embellished with immense emeralds and a pair of long emerald green ostrich plumes tipped with diamonds.
Mrs. Leggett, another popular American, has become a great friend of the Duchess of Rutland, whose daughters, Lady Diana and Lady Marjorie Manners, she frequently chaperones.

MRS. DREXEL.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Lady Essex and Mrs. Robert Grosvenor have all been entertaining but every one misses Mrs. Anthony Drexel, who is still on the other side and apparently not eager to come to London, where her marital troubles have not yet attained publicity. Her son, Anthony Drexel, Jr., and his wife, who is Miss Marlorie Gould, are not expected here this season. Howard Gould, who has been staying in London, left with a small party for Scotland to get some salmon fishing. He has rented a sporting place at Dunelm. London sees very little of him. He cares nothing for social life.

Mrs. James McDonald was considered the best dressed woman at the garden party given by Lord Far-quhar to aid the League of Mercy, but did not achieve her ambition of being privately presented to Queen Mary, who was present and was completely monopolized by Mrs. George Alexander the enterprising spouse of the popular actor-manager.

part of the day. One of these will be for the morning, from 10 o'clock until noon, but, at the same time, any person entering during the morning will not be obliged to retire from the park at noon. On the contrary, he or she may remain there the whole day, or until the lights in the inclosure are extinguished for the night. But it is desirable for the people to know that a morning admission ticket will not secure admission in the afternoon.
The same limitation is placed upon the other tickets for the other parts of the day. An afternoon ticket will not secure admission for the evening performance, neither will an evening ticket of admission enable the party to enter the park either during the afternoon or morning.

USE OF CONCESSIONS.

There is something else also which should be understood by patrons and that is that the concession tickets which will be issued to a guest who enters in the morning will not be good in the afternoon or evening, neither will an afternoon concession ticket enable the holder to enter any of the concessions to which there is free admission in the evening. The tickets for one section of the day are not good for any other part of the day.

This plan has been devised for the reason that, under other circumstances, there would be a holdover number of concession tickets from one section of the day to the other and, as a consequence, there would be danger of a number of the concessions being overcrowded, and the certainty that many of the patrons would be denied the right to use their tickets at the time at which they originally intended to use them.

BALLOON ASCENSION.

The grand balloon ascension is one of the latest of the new features provided for the outing on TRIBUNE Day. It will be made by Prof. Hamilton, one of the most daring of the aeronauts of the country. He will ascend to a great height and then cut himself loose in a parachute. At the same time, he will drop a number of smaller parachutes from the heavens and the guests, young and old, will make a scramble for them as they reach the earth, for the reason that among them will be those containing the prizes referred to in the earlier portion of this article.

VAUDEVILLE PERFORMANCE.

The vaudeville performance which will take place during the intermission between the two parts of the program rendered by Conway's band, will be of a superior character. Garvin Gilmaire, director of the late big show given by the Eagles in this city, will give some of his famous impersations of certain great actors, assisted by Miss Mae Reed, operatic soloist. Miss Birdie Calish, the "California May Irwin," will appear in darky songs and original specialties, including her popular rendition of the "Grizzly Bear" with her troupe of human "dancing bears." There will also be buck-and-wing dancing by the

DECISION BRINGS ON UNSETTLEMENT

The Prices Fluctuate Violently
Following Tobacco Trust Dissolution.

NEW YORK, June 3. — The Supreme Court's decision in the American Tobacco case and the adoption of the "open market" policy by steel and iron manufacturers early this week brought about a period of unsettlement on the stock exchange during which prices fluctuated violently. Every selling resulted in severe losses in all classes of stocks.
The downward movement was checked by the appearance of a well sustained demand, and towards the close of the week the market showed the effects of a more confident feeling. Many stocks advanced to the highest point of the year.
Announcement of the Hill financing project did much to bring about a change in sentiment. It was believed that the Supreme Court's recent decisions in cases affecting corporations had clearing the way for large transactions of this nature.
The decision of the Hill management to launch such a large undertaking at this time, moreover, was taken as an indication of confidence in present conditions. April railroad earnings showing that effective steps had been taken to curtail expenses and further indications of good crop prospects also gave impetus to the buying which led to one of the most significant demonstrations of strength in the market of the year.

BURGLAR APPROPRIATES $400 RING FOR HIMSELF

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3. — When a burglar who entered the home of Mrs.
Wesley Steele, 518 Balboa street, got his hands on a $400 diamond ring, he contented himself with it and failed to look for further booty.
The police have been asked to find the ring, which it is expected will be disposed of in one of the pawn shops.

CHINESE SEND MONEY TO STARVING IN MEXICO

CHICAGO, June 3. — The Chinese of Chicago have started a relief fund for their countrymen in Mexico, who are said to be starving. The first $1000 of the fund will be sent today to American Ambassador Gilson at Mexico City, who has been asked to distribute the fund.

THE TRIBUNE Day may be availed of by the managers and inmates of the various orphanages and homes and other institutions in which children or infirm people are housed, because these people, like the rest of mankind, need enjoyment and recreation, though it is not always within their reach. Tickets will be furnished the managers for use by the inmates, with the hope that they, as well as the rest of the people differently cir-cumstanced, may experience a day of pleasure unalloyed.

Admission tickets may be secured
at the following places:

Eight and Franklin streets.

CAPITALISTS PROJECT LONG-GAS PIPE LINE

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., June 3. — A pipe line from Santa Maria, a town in the natural gas belt of San Luis Obispo county, to this city, is projected by a group of capitalists, representatives of which have applied for a franchise from the board of Supervisors. The plan is to pipe natural gas for use as fuel and light by business houses and by private homes. The project is for the line to pass through the towns of Nipomo, Beros, Arroyo Grande and Guadalupe on its way to this city.

TAFT DENIES SHERMAN ACT IS ANTIQUATED

WASHINGTON, June 3. — President Taft was asked today by some callers whether he thought the Sherman anti-trust law was antiquated. "No," replied Taft. "They are just beginning to make it useful."

Try This When Your Hair Is Dusty

(From the New York Herald.)
"When the hair is dusty and dull, and you want to clean it quickly, just sprinkle through it a little dry shampoo powder made by mixing four ounces of orris root with four ounces of starch.
"Then brush the hair thoroughly and not only will it be clean, but it will have a rich and glossy lustre that can be given in no other way. So little time is required for this dry shampoo that it can be done profitably whenever the hair is dressed.
"Therex is excellent for the scalp and gives the hair new life and vigor. The regular use of this mixture heightens the natural color, while washing the hair with water causes it to lose color and become dull and brittle."

Thrilling 'Curse of Gold' to Hold the Boards When Local Elks Make Merry

Some of the Principal Characters in "The Curse of Gold," to Be Produced by the Oakland Elks. Top Row—From Left to Right, Milo Hickox, Fred Bardo, E. James Finney, Dr. C. L. Tisdale, Arthur Montgomery, Max Horwinski. Bottom Row—J. F. Anderson, J. B. John, Edgar Sinclair, Fred Hooper, Al Moffitt.

What promises to be a "scream" in the line of entertainment will be the five-act melodrama, "The Curse of Gold," or "The Farmer's Revenge," by Max Horwinski, to be played one night only June 6, at the Macdonough theater by the famous "171 Stock Company," under the auspices of the local lodge of Elks.

PRaise for Reciprocity TICKLES THE PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, June 3. — One of the many letters which came to the White House commending the President's efforts in behalf of Canadian reciprocity contained a sentence which was particularly pleasing to Taft.

From the first act, where Dalton and his villainous accomplices abduct the beautiful Nellie, the farmer's daughter, until the last act, when Nellie is heroically rescued from an onrushing train, the family are happily reunited and the villains are annihilated, the audience will be spellbound by this, the most pronounced dramatic success of modern years.

BEATS 'EM ALL

As has been truly said of "The Curse of Gold," it is "more sad than 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' more thrillingly realistic than the 'James Boys,' more humorous than 'Peck's Bad Boy,' has more literary merit than 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' more hairbreadth escapes than 'Sherlock Holmes,' is more exciting than 'Michael Strogoff,' more instructive than 'Ten Nights in a Barroom,' and is more pathetic than 'The Two Orphans.'"

Then, besides the stupendous play, a host of clever specialties will be given including monologues, baritone solos, quartet selections, dances all by prominent local Elks.

WOMAN LIVED ON INDIAN DIET

Witnesses Tell of Last Days of Famous Mrs. Ole Bull.

ALFRED, Me., June 3.—Bread made of wheat, red pepper, raw yeast and milk formed the diet recommended for Mrs. Ole Bull by an East Indian doctor, who was called in during her dying days, according to the testimony of Miss Sierl Swander of Brooklyn, in the action brought by Mrs. Ole Bull Vaughn to contest her mother's will. She also testified that the patient was given three different kinds of Indian medicine against her will.

Miss Swander said she herself was a believer in Raja Yoga, as taught by the Hindu priests.

The witness entertained Mrs. Bull in Brooklyn when Miss Margaret Noble, known as Sister Nivadia, a priestess of the Hindu cult, was Mrs. Bull's attendant.

One day, the witness said, she heard loud voices in Mrs. Bull's apartment, and heard her say, apparently to Miss Noble, "I shall go crazy if I can't do as I want with my money."

EXPECT MANY NORTHERN BUYERS

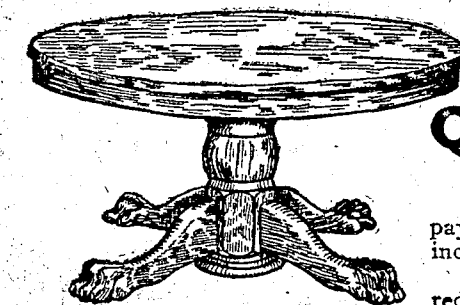

The New Tract Will Have Fine Large Lots and Good Streets.

The Fuller & Todd tract in East Oakland is rapidly being gotten in shape for the market. The tract is situated on East Fourteenth street and Seventy-fifth, Seventy-ninth and Eightieth avenues. At the front of the tract is the East Fourteenth car line and immediately in the rear of the tract are the electric extension of the Southern Pacific Company's Melrose line, the San Jose boulevard and the survey of the Key Route. The Melrose extension is now being built. "As you see," said Mr. H. M. Fuller, the president of the owning and selling company, "we have unsurpassed transportation facilities to either San Francisco or Oakland. With that for a foundation we are making one of the best subdivisions in East Oakland. We are to put in six-foot cement walks, stone gutters and curbs, wide streets, well macadamized, are to give forty-foot lots. This will make a subdivision suitable either as a home site or an investment. With our many friends in the north end of the State we could sell out our tract there, but we have agreed to hold at least a third of our fine tract for sale to people down here who will build right away."

SENATOR CLARK AND FAMILY LEAVE FOR THE CORONATION

ANDREE and HUGUETTE CLARK, the little daughters of Senator Clark of Montana, and KATHERINE MORRIS, a little friend, on their way to London to attend the coronation.

NEW YORK, June 3. — All the outgoing ships are crowded with people going to attend the coronation festivities in London. Senator Clark of Montana and his family were among the passengers sailing on the Adriatic on May 17, for the coronation. Senator Clark's two little daughters, Andree and Huguetta, the only children of his second wife, attracted a great deal of attention en route. They live in Senator Clark's palace on Fifth avenue, which was only recently finished and which cost $7,000,000. Little Katherine Morris, a friend of the Clark children, also made many friends on board ship.

SPOKANE TO SPEND MANY MILLIONS

Municipal and Railroad Work Will Demand Large Sums of Money.

SPOKANE, Wash., June 3. — More than $17,500,000 will be expended on municipal and railroad work and building operations in Spokane this year, and of this amount the city's share is approximately $8,000,000. The Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the Northern Pacific, and the third division of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation companies have plans for work costing $6,500,000 and architects and contractors estimate that fully $5,000,000 will be invested in new buildings before the close of the year.

Municipal work in progress or confirmed amounts to $1,721,280 to date, and in addition there is $3,938,280 for bridges and buildings, as follows: City Hall, $545,000; South Central High School, $450,000; Monroe street bridge, $450,000; Latah bridge, $245,000; reservoir, $150,000; fire stations, $40,000; isolation hospital, $25,000.

The grade separation plans in preparation by the engineering department of the Northern Pacific Railway Company involve the expenditure of $3,750,000. It is expected this matter will be decided within the next sixty days. The Milwaukee and Harriman systems announce that about $3,000,000 will be invested in union station and terminal facilities in and near this city.

The influx of settlers into the farming and orchard districts immediately tributary to Spokane during the last six months will mean the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 for buildings and improvements, while from seven to ten times that amount is being invested in the country called the Inland Empire, and as much more in the various towns and cities.

Bankers in Spokane and throughout the district have reports from growers, estimating that the grain, hay, root and fruit crops will be fully $150,000,000 in the Inland Empire this season.

PASTOR TO STRIKE IF CLOCK DOES

Rev. D. R. Kennedy Declares That Chimes Disturb His Children.

SUFFIELD, Conn., June 3. — According to a statement by the Rev. Daniel R. Kennedy, pastor of the First Congregational Church of this place, the church will be without a minister if the town clock is allowed to strike. The clock, a memorial gift of Mrs. Cornelia D. Newton, is placed in the steeple of the church and for the last month has not been striking the hours.

Somebody found that the clock was not striking on orders of Rev. Mr. Kennedy, as it disturbed the sleep of his two small children. Northward a communication was sent to the church committee asking that the striking apparatus be wound up. If this is done, the Rev. Mr. Kennedy says he will resign. He goes away for his vacation this month, and developments are expected on his return.

DANGERS OF FAT

HOW FAT AFFECTS THE BRAIN

Just how fat affects the brain, and finally destroys the brain, is not exactly known; however, it is known that the degeneration of brain tissue, due to this cause, is of frequent occurrence. Head pains, and head heaviness, which are often experienced by fat people, may indicate that this degenerating process is imminent. The return of this fatty tissue to normal brain substance, may and probably will result if the overproduction of fat is stopped in other parts of the body. Thousands of fat people have depended entirely for reduction to normal weight, upon Marmola's Prescription Tablets, which are made after the exact formula of the famous liquid Marmola Prescription. While taking these tablets for the reduction of fat, no dieting nor exercise are necessary, as a reduction of 10 to 16 oz. a day is accomplished by prevention as well as elimination of fat. Marmola's Prescription Tablets are sold at all druggists or the Marmola Co., 74 Monroe Ave., Detroit, Mich., at the uniform price of 75c for a large case. They remove the fat already formed, prevent its reforming, clear the complexion and tone up the entire system.

Her Teeth Are False BUT YOU WOULD NEVER KNOW IT

There's no secret about "false" teeth of the ordinary kind. Anyone can distinguish them from natural teeth at the first glance. The beauty of Alveolar Teeth is that they don't look artificial—even dentists are often deceived by their natural appearance—and they are as solid in the mouth as if they had grown there.

Now, if you have as many as two teeth left in either jaw we can replace all the missing ones by our Alveolar Method without the aid of plates or bridgework. They are put in to stay and will prove just as serviceable as the teeth nature endowed you with. There is no pain in connection with this work, no cutting or boring into the gums, nothing to dread and no ill after-effects.

If only a few of your teeth are missing, don't have a bridge put in, or if only a few teeth remain, don't allow them to be extracted in order to make room for a cumbersome plate. Let us save what natural teeth you possess and replace those you have lost so that no one will ever suspect that they are artificial.

Our practice is not limited to Alveolar work alone. We have specialists in every branch of the dental art, and our charges are extremely reasonable, considering the very high quality of our work.

We do crowning, filling and extracting; also plate, bridge and inlay work of every description. We cure diseased gums, make loose teeth tight, correct irregularities and perform the most difficult operations known to dental science.

All of our operators are experts who have had years of training, and we can assure you prompt attention and the most satisfactory workmanship. Our absolute guarantee protects you and we investigate for yourself. We are ready to show you, and a consultation costs nothing.

ASK FOR OUR FREE BOOK

Let us tell you more about our system of dentistry. Call, or write today for the free illustrated book which explains all. We shall be glad to examine your teeth free of charge and will estimate the cost of your work without obligating you in any way. Cut out the coupon below and use it.

IF You Want Something You Don't Have Try Tribune Want Ads

HAIR REMOVERS ARE DANGEROUS

Physicians Say: "Don't Use Poisonous Depilatories."

The extravagant claims recently made by unscrupulous manufacturers of hair removers in sensational advertisements unquestionably justify physicians in cautioning the public against the use of these depilatories. How many people have been enticed into using these dangerous preparations, with consequent injury to themselves cannot be estimated, but only guessed at.

The preparations above referred to are usually in the form of creamy pastes which are to be spread upon the skin to remain until they dry. These contain Sulphide of Barium, an insoluble salt which cannot be dissolved; therefore cannot be absorbed by the skin. The very fact that you are told to leave the paste on the skin until it dries, and then to rub it off with a knife is proof positive that it is not absorbed, but that it is to be rubbed off. If it were absorbed, it would produce eczema or blood poisoning. Remember, no matter what claims are made to the contrary, no poisonous, pasty compound or so-called "cloud cure" ever did or ever will kill a single hair root, and we can prove it.

Beware of the fake free advertisements and others who by word of their advertisements, try to give the impression that newspapers and other reputable publications endorse their worthless preparations. Don't be deceived by them. DeMiracle is the only preparation which is so endorsed. DeMiracle is sold at all good stores, or the honest dealer will order you a substitute on which he makes more profit.

We will send you a 32-page booklet containing full information concerning this remarkable treatment, as well as testimonials of prominent physicians, surgeons, dermatologists, and hair removers. You should read this booklet before you try anything. Write to the publisher, Mr. J. C. 10, 1905 Park Ave., New York, simply saying you want this booklet, and it will be mailed, sealed, at once.

All readers of this paper who are afflicted with superfluous hair growths are strongly advised to write for information concerning this wonderful method, which is endorsed the world over by eminent authorities, who have made a lifelong study of this subject.

AMERICANS OBTAIN GUATEMALA MINES

Governor Spriggs and Associates Secure Control of Wealth.

NEW YORK, June 3.—L. A. Sarskey, secretary of Governor A. E. Spriggs, of Montana, and long a business associate of Senator W. A. Clark, has received a cablegram from Governor Sarskey, who is in Guatemala City, announcing that the national assembly of Guatemala, just before its final adjournment, has granted to the American company, the Guatemala Mining and Development company, of which Governor Spriggs is president.

This means, Sarskey declared, that a group of American capitalists, headed by Governor Spriggs, have obtained practically the entire mineral wealth and franchise rights of the republic of Guatemala, as long as they continue profitable.

The agreement requires only that the American syndicate shall pay the government ten per cent of the net profits. It gives the exclusive right to explore the lands within the government of Guatemala that show signs of minerals.

Sarskey is authority for the statement that the national assembly has practically turned the entire republic over to the American company. In addition to receiving the right to take up public lands, the company receives exclusive right to use all waterways, to construct and control roads, railroads, bridges, telephone and telegraph lines and all public utilities.

"Our charter is as broad as it possibly can be," said Sarskey.

PLANS COMMISSION ON PUBLIC MORALITY

SPOKANE, Wash., June 3.—Commissioner Hays, head of the department of public safety, announces he soon will submit an ordinance to the city council to create a commission on public morality, composed of five prominent citizens of Spokane, who shall serve without pay. The idea is to conduct a thorough investigation into all matters relating to public morality, to prosecute violations of existing laws and to recommend new legislation, if needed. A secretary is to be engaged, and permanent officers maintained at the city hall.

BANDIT FATALLY HURT IN REVOLVER BATTLE

DENVER, June 3.—Trilled to their room in a hotel, two highwaymen made a stand against three detectives, and the battle which followed one of the bandits, James Lynch, was perhaps mortally wounded. The other man was taken into custody. Both admit holding up several street car conductors and pedestrians recently.

HER HANDS AND ARMS MADE MARVELOUSLY BEAUTIFUL IN A SINGLE NIGHT

Free Prescription Did It.

Grace Benson says: "Had anyone told me such wonderful results could be accomplished so quickly, I positively would not have believed it. My arms and hands were covered with freckles; my neck was dark and wrinkled from the use of high collars; my hands were tanned and the knuckles red. All these defects were removed by one application of a free prescription, which I am pleased to give to anyone. It's just as simple as it is effective. Go to any drug store and get an empty two-ounce bottle and a one-ounce bottle of KuluX Compound. Pour the contents of the bottle of KuluX into the two-ounce bottle, add one-quarter ounce of witch hazel and one-quarter ounce of rose water, and you have the free prescription. Use this prescription at your own home, then you know you are getting it right. Apply night and morning. It makes the skin soft and beautiful, no matter how rough and ungainly your hands and arms are. One application will astonish you. I have given this prescription to thousands of women and they are all just as enthusiastic as I am. Try it on your neck and shoulders and you will be agreeably surprised."

OAKLANDERS ARE HOSTS AT BIG PIEDMONT DANCE

MISS ROSEMARIE ZILZ, who has just returned from Europe, and who was the guest of honor at a dance given by her sister, Mrs. Ellis Randall, Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Randall entertained at a dance at their attractive home in Piedmont Thursday night in honor of Mrs. Ellis' youngest sister, Miss Rosemarie Zilz, who has just returned from Europe, where she has been studying for the last eight years. The Randall home was prettily decorated in pink roses and asparagus ferns, pink and white being the predominating colors. Miss Rosemarie Zilz carried out the color scheme in a girlish frock of cream silk gauze embroidered in baby pink roses over a deeper cream silk, and the refreshments also were in pink and white. Before the party ended Miss Rosemarie entertained the guests with a recital, "The Soul of the Violin," for which Victor Anderson gave a violin obligato.

Among the guests were: Miss Nell Moffitt, Miss Genevieve White, Mrs. G. Withall, Miss Withall, Miss Ray Sweeney, Miss May Sweeney, Miss Mary Downey, Mrs. John Henrietta, Miss Rosemarie Zilz, Miss Jessie Tinsdale, Miss Hamburg, Miss Carrie Perkins, Miss A. Perkins, Miss T. Christian, Miss B. Robinson, L. G. Bolton, Dr. A. A. Abergast, Dr. Bruce Foulkes, B. Ironside, A. Costrod, John Henrietta, F. Henrietta, Victor Anderson, Mr. Perkins, L. Stone, Oliver Albright, Reld Robson, Frank Thompson, James Gaffney and many others.

50,000 TEACHERS COMING TO COAST

San Francisco Prepares Great Welcome for Army of Educators.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—San Francisco is making elaborate preparations to receive and entertain over 50,000 educator delegates from every state in the Union, Canada, Cuba and the Hawaiian Islands in the Forty-ninth Annual Convention of the National Educational Association, which will hold their annual meeting in this city from July 2 to 14 in the most important gathering in the history of the association. The citizens through the San Francisco Convention League, have appropriated $25,000 for this purpose.

The navy department has ordered the Pacific fleet to boom a salute to the teachers on their arrival and remain anchored in San Francisco Bay during their stay. Thousands of Uncle Sam's troops, just returned from the Mexican boundary line, will engage in mimic war. The city will be in gala attire for two weeks.

Every railroad in the United States and Canada has granted the lowest rates ever offered over their lines for any occasion. The Governor of California, the Mayor of San Francisco and prominent educators all over the country will welcome the visitors at the Greek Theater at Berkeley, Monday July 10.

A woman, Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, of Chicago, President of the N. E. A., will preside at all the sessions, and will be the dominant figure during convention week. The Convention is of particular interest to California and other Coast and Mountain State teachers who will act as hosts to the Eastern guests. Ten thousand are expected from California alone; four thousand from Washington; thirty-five hundred from Oregon; and large delegations from all the Mountain States.

COTTON OPERATORS OFF FOR SCENE OF BATTLE

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—W. P. Brown, the cotton operator, left here last night for New York, and while he is non-committal, his close friends are of the opinion that he will play a leading part in the operations now pending in the summer months in the New York market. For several months Brown has not taken an active part in the trading.

POLO LINE-UP TO BE SAME MONDAY

NEW YORK, June 3.—That there will be no change in the lineup of the English and American polo teams when they face each other on Monday in the second match for the international cup was the statement of the commanding officers of the teams today.

'HANGMAN'S GROVE' PASSES IN TEXAS

Last of Famous Trees Falls Before the March of Progress.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 3.—"Hangman's Grove," one of the historic spots of Texas possessed by Houston, has passed. The last giant tree, the last standing of a group of great oaks, which in the pioneer days of Houston provided a natural gateway for the highway of offensive persons, has succumbed to the march of progress, and "Hangman's Grove" of pioneer days is to become a residence property.

This little grove, then, for remote from the settlement of Houston, today is in the center of the fashionable residence section of the city. But few know the gruesome history of these giant oaks in Gray avenue, although the secret of their long standing on a desirable residence section now is out. Since it has been announced a residence is to occupy the site many old residents of Houston have told of the efforts of owners to sell the site, but of their inability because of the ghastly history connected with the spot.

By peculiar coincidence, the last giant oak in this week fell under the axe of the efforts of owners for the last hanging on this spot 37 years ago. Its broad hanging limbs ten or twelve feet from the ground were marred by the great rents in the bark where ropes tied about them had sunk into the bark as the limbs grew and widened. The last vestige of this long ago disappeared in the shape of souvenirs, but the rents remain and mutely tell of the gruesome happenings two score years ago.

GERMANY LOSES LAND TO POLAND

Perennial European Struggle Results in Change of Ownership.

BERLIN, June 3.—The perennial struggle between Germans and Poles for the ownership of the soil in the eastern provinces of Prussia finds a striking illustration in the fact just made public, that about 45,000 acres of land in the provinces of Posen, East and West Prussia, and Silesia have passed from German into Polish hands within a year. This occurs twenty-five years after the Prussian government suggested the

PLANS AUTO TOUR OF BOUNDARY LINES

SPOKANE, Wash., June 3.—What promises to be one of the most unique automobile trips yet undertaken in America is planned by F. O. Berg of Spokane, who contemplates making a circuit of the boundary lines of the United States, starting from this city the middle of June. Accompanied by his family, Berg will drive to the Washington-British Columbia line, thence along the Pacific Coast to San Diego, Mexico, Texas and Louisiana to New Orleans, thence through Alabama and Florida, continuing the trip northward into New England, visiting Washington, Philadelphia, Baltimore, New York, Boston and other large centers. From New York the route follows the northern boundary westward to Spokane.

great system of colonizing Germans in the Polish provinces, a policy that has cost something like $90,000,000.

The efforts of the government have been partially counteracted by Polish activity in buying land. There are special Polish banks for assisting Poles in acquiring parcels of land, and their work has been so effective that for some years most of the land bought by the Prussian Settlement Commission for "dividing up among German peasants has been acquired from Germans themselves.

In order to enable the commission to carry forward its settlement plans in a systematic way and extend the borders of German settlements already established, the Diet, or Prussian Legislature, passed in 1908 a law permitting the commission to dispose of Polish landholders, within certain limits, under the law of eminent domain. This law, however, has never been enforced. The continued acquisition of German lands by Poles has called forth a strong demand that it be put into operation at once.

OAKLAND IS A CITY OF ATTRACTIVE RESORTS

PEOPLE ARE PLEASURE LOVING

SOME OF OAKLAND'S LATEST RESIDENCES SHOWING VARIED TYPES OF ARCHITECTURE.

"Grooms" Haven't a Look-in at This Work-and-Play-Hard Community.

Many and Diversified Are the Amusements Afforded All Residents.

Places of amusement are as potent factors in the vitalizing of a large city as are its commercial enterprises. The latter supply the population with the multifarious occupations which make for the advancement of the municipality, and the former afford the relaxation requisite for the humbling of passions roughened and irritated by the hurry and strife of this work-a-day world. The cities of the past whose names and renown have been handed on by subsequent centuries are those in which the people were joyous and gathered together for play as well as for toil. The works of the artist and the artisan of those dead and gone days are preserved and emulated by the present generation of men, but scarcely so much as are the pastimes which gladdened their hours of leisure. Ancient Athens had its Olympian games and its Pantheon. Rome, the eternal, had its coliseum, its chariot races and its gladiatorial combats. Babylon had its hanging gardens and its clustered olive groves. In these days of a more advanced civilization the most desirable of the sports of humanity's tardy ancestors have been discarded and replaced by those adapted only to a rougher life not so long ago and embodied in the pastimes which fill the holiday hours of the present. For instance, the blood and sweat of the chariot race has been superseded by the blood and oil of a 77-mile an hour auto race, but that is another story, and comparisons are not always pleasant even though true.

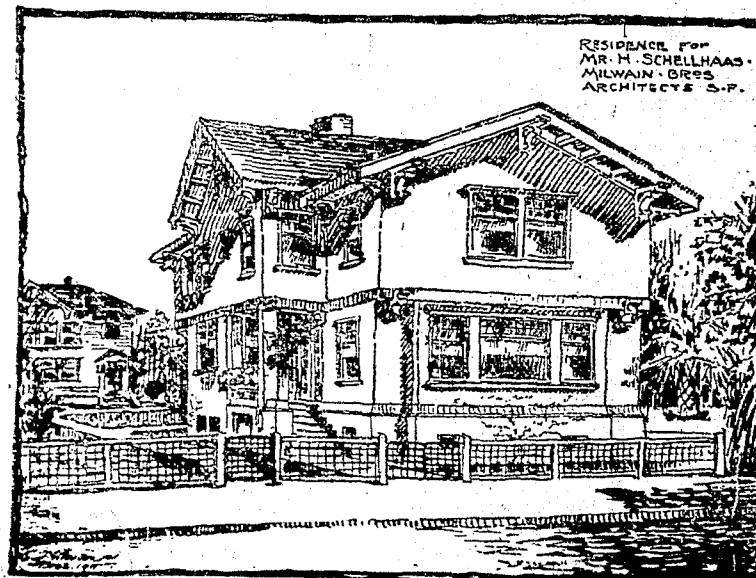

Oakland, often spoken of as the "Athens of the Pacific," is establishing for the benefit of the people, breathing places of verdant beauty, theaters, libraries, observatories, institutions, convention halls, public institutions of learning, playgrounds, parks, and other conveniences tending to make life well worth living, and well worth living well. Some of these places are privately owned and are open to the public at nominal price, but by far the greater portion are owned by the municipality and are free to the people by right of their collective ownership thereof. Each serves its purpose well, adds to the attractiveness of this city as a residential point, helps swell the population and make plethoric the composite pay-roll of the commonwealth. Near by are yet other mental and physical enjoyments in which the people of this city share.

SHADED GROUNDS OF COLLEGE.

Adjoining on the north is Berkeley, home of grave professors, snappy college lads of freakish apparel, and site of the University of California, one of the most attractive and efficient institutions of learning in the world. Ivy-clad buildings of classic design dot the grounds of this venerable Alma Mater and are approached by graveled walks which wind beneath ancient oaks. Clustering ways of arching green lead to shaded retreats, cool and airy, "hung with silence and the amber tapestry of noon." Hardly a pensive brook winds its way toward the sea. The hush and shadow of the aged things of earth are all about. But beyond, in the glad light of the sun, clear eyed, clean minded, vigorous youth passes onward toward the goal of the ideal.

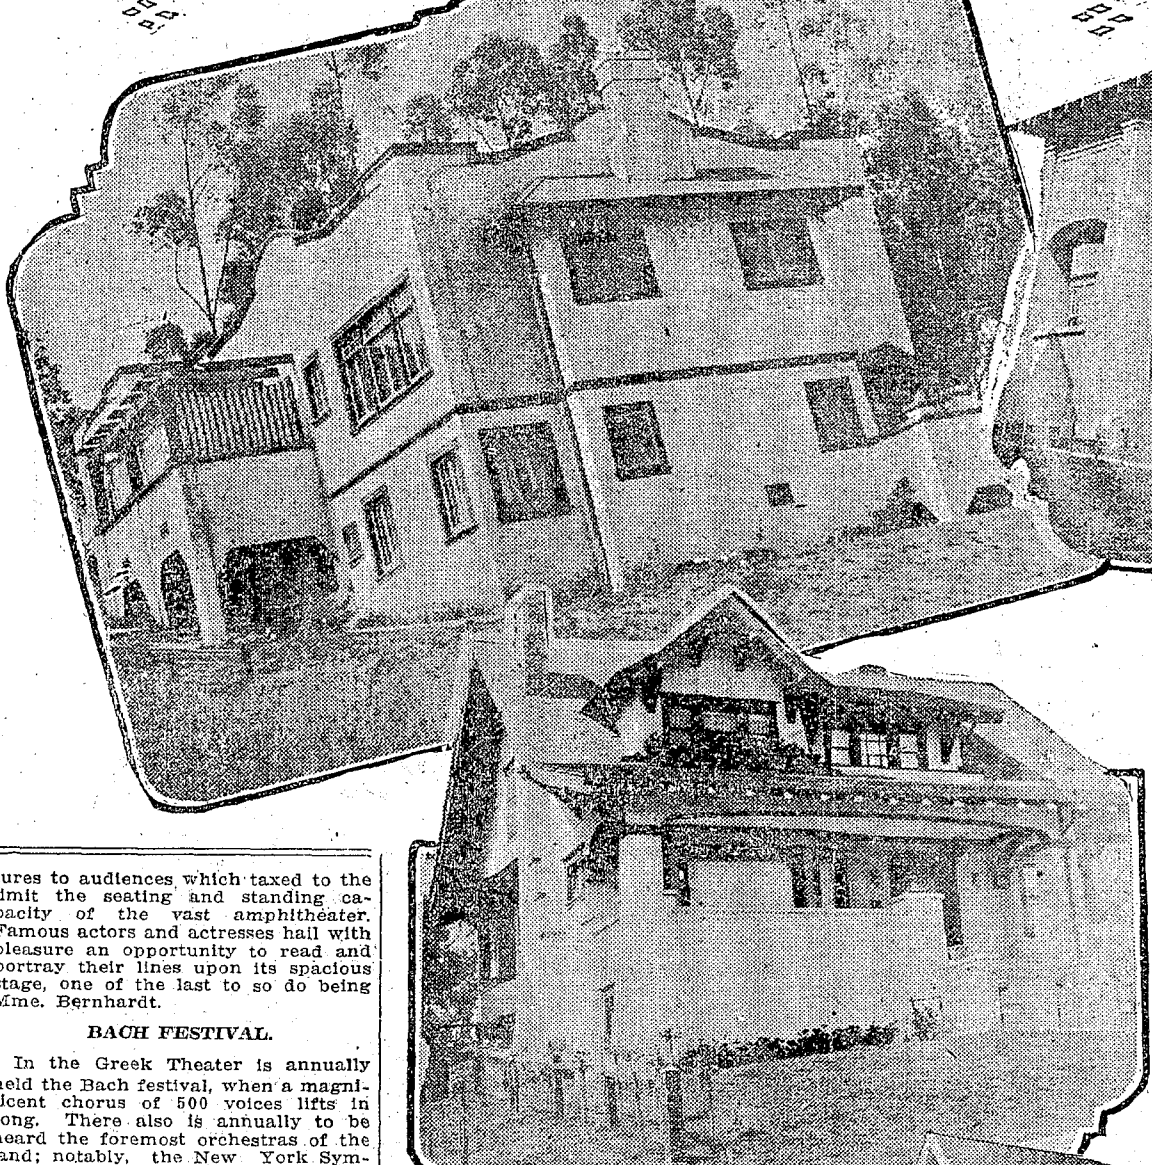

Situated on a pine-clad hill is the Greek Theater, the gift of W. R. Hearst to the University. There is held each Sunday afternoon a "Half Hour of Music," both vocal and instrumental. These concerts are very popular and are attended by thousands of about-the-bay folks. The theater is often the scene of notable gatherings at which noted men and women are the drawing attraction. Former President Roosevelt there recently delivered the Earl series of lectures.

BACH FESTIVAL.

In the Greek Theater is annually held the Bach festival, when a magnificent chorus of 500 voices lifts in song. There also is annually to be heard the foremost orchestras of the land, notably, the New York Symphony and the Chicago Symphony orchestras. On such occasions the capacity of the theater is always taxed to the limit. To watch the kaleidoscopic movements of the crowd at such a time is a never-to-be-forgotten sight. Tier on tier of animated faces raise from the level of the stage to the top of the open-air enclosure with its blossom crown of roses and woodbine, the varied hues of dresses and hats of the ladies blending into one gorgeous bouquet of color. The sound of modulated voices fills the air like the murmuring of the Pacific on the beach upon a placid day. The song of birds joins in the lit of orchestral music, and pervading all is the balm and warmth attendant upon perfect days.

Another point of interest in the University grounds is the Stadium, scene of class rallies and of physical contests of diverse sort. It embraces a field of unusually comprehensive proportions, and affords seating capacity for approximately 8000 people. Therein are held many of the intercollegiate games.

GROUP OF PLEASURE PLACES.

Near the dividing line of Alameda and Contra Costa counties, and readily reached by the cars of the Oakland Traction Company, is East Shore Park, a pleasure resort much frequented by the residents of Oakland and vicinity. It is a most enjoyable spot for an outing and is particularly attractive one for children. There is a shallow bathing pool with bathing suits to be had for the renting, a merry-go-round, sand pila, a running stream of just the right depth and temperature for the kids to wade in. There are tennis courts, tables for lunching purposes under the trees and a spacious dancing pavilion.

Piedmont Park, to be reached by the cars of the Oakland Traction Company within fifteen minutes from Twelfth and Broadway, is an even more delightful place for an outing. Verdant lawns, dotted with shrubs and flowering plants, give back from either side of a winding stream which is tree shaded and flanked by cool vistas and quiet retreats. The cuisine at the pavilion in the park is excellent and the bill of fare diversified.

OTHER PARKS.

Idora Park, Oakland's replica of the amusements and the delights of Coney Island's Dreamland, dates its inception to the time about a decade ago when the progressive spirit permeated this city, dispelling the languor of rustication and starting the municipality upon the road to its high destiny. The improvements made at Idora Park have kept pace with the city's advancement, until now in the aggregate they have a value of approximately $1,000,000. The attractions there are diversified and are enjoyed by thousands of persons—both young and old—daily.

Shellmound Park, in the vicinity of Emeryville, is a favorite point for holding picnics and is much frequented by fraternal organizations and other societies. Within the enclosure is an excellent rifle range which is patronized by the various gun, rifle and pistol clubs of the about-the-bay section.

AQUATIC SPORTS.

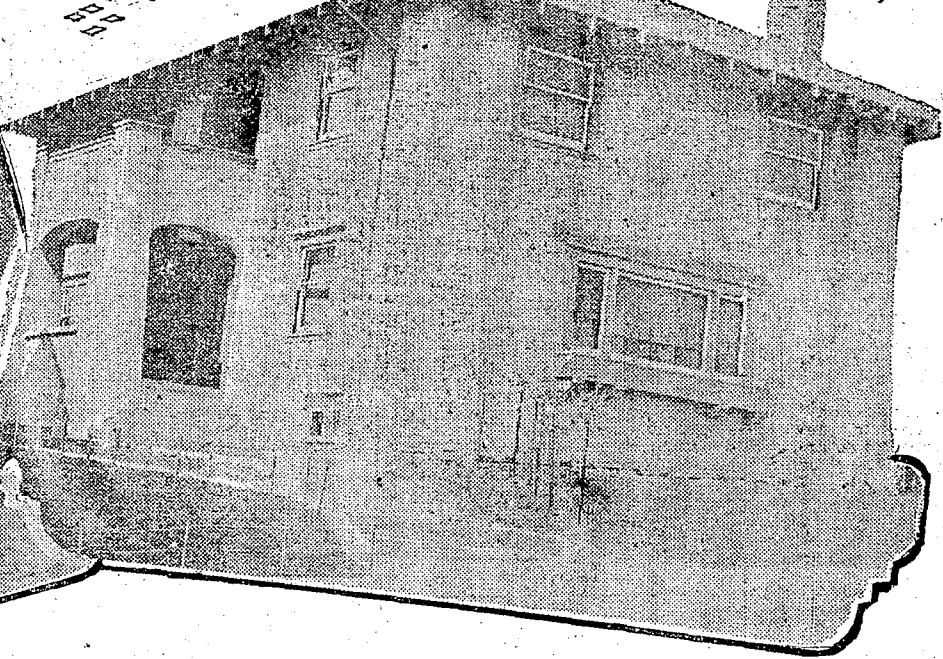

In the way of aquatic sports Oakland offers a varied program. The city is the home port of the California Yacht Club, a popular organization with large membership, whose hospitality is proverbial in yachting circles. Sailing craft of light draft are used on Lake Merritt, located in the very heart of the city, as are also canoes and small power boats. This beautiful sheet of water is several miles in extent and is being made additionally attractive by the parking of the lands giving back from its shores.

The estuary, a tidal canal which separates Oakland from Alameda, is particularly well adapted for canoeing and for boat racing purposes. On its placid waters is held annually the eight-oared shell race between the rival "varsity" crews of California and Stanford. The course rivals that on the Thames river near New London, where is held each year the famous Harvard-Yale "varsity" race. Although it is but recently the rival universities of this State have taken up the sport of rowing and lent moral and financial support to a "varsity" team, the results are beyond the expectations of even the most sanguine. So much so in fact, that the day is not far distant when either California or Stanford, and possibly both, will send a crew east to try for rowing honors with the crack eights of Harvard, Yale and Cornell.

Oakland real estate men assert that the varied amusements to be had in this city and vicinity tend to induce an increase in population and in property values. Such places of recreation, they say, together with the magnificent local public library, the Chabot observatory, the very interesting public museum and the public parks lead an attraction and a worth to this municipality not to be valued in dollars and cents.

Oiled Macadam to Be Placed On All Streets in That District.

The large concrete storm sewer in course of installation at the Fremont tract, East Fruitvale, is rapidly drawing near completion and is a monument to the thoroughness of the Realty Syndicate in work of this kind.

This tubular work of concrete, measuring four feet in diameter, cuts across the north portion of the tract, in some places at a depth of more than twenty feet, drains the adjacent foothills and canyons to the northeast of the property. For a distance probably 100 yards it follows the west side of High street, which it crosses, winding its way to the bay in what was at one time an old creek bed. Thoroughness does not stop at the sewer, but will be continued in the street work. Already straining and panting mules, shouting drivers and creaking scrapers and wagons have placed the streets on their approved levels.

The coming week will see the laying of the crushed rock for the macadam streets, and to keep pace with their slogan, "Thoroughness," the Realty Syndicate has decided to make the street work oiled macadam instead of merely macadam as was originally intended.

ORDER OF NURSES TO BE MEMORIAL

Viscountess Gladstone Would Found Institution in Africa.

CAPE TOWN, June 3.—On the occasion of the anniversary of King Edward's death Viscountess Gladstone has written to the press throughout South Africa appealing for funds to establish an Order of Nurses, as a memorial to the late King Edward. The bringing of skilled nursing to people who are wholly or partially unable to pay for such service is, says Lady Gladstone, one of the most pressing needs of South Africa.

The project has been carefully considered by a committee composed of Lady Gladstone, Mrs. Botha and Mrs. Merriman, and also Sir Star-Jameson, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Ritz, Mr. Beyers and others. The mayors and other authorities throughout the union will open up subscription lists. For the execution of the scheme $500,000 is required, and branches of the order will be established at suitable centers in each province.

The colored and native subscriptions will be kept separate, and will be devoted to the training of colored and native nurses at Lovedale.

$100,000 IS VALUE OF HOMES

Many Handsome Residences to Be Erected On Fourth Avenue Heights.

The Fourth Avenue Heights tract of the Wickham Havens Company has had one of the most successful sale records ever made on the east side of the bay since the property was first placed on the market two months ago. Over $200,000 worth of homesites have been sold and the homes that are building and have been planned approach a total of $100,000. The success of this new residence section of Oakland has been due to the natural beauty of the region and the aim of the company to place a home there within the reach of any business man.

The prices of lots and the building restrictions have been lower than any property in the Piedmont hills or any tract Wickham Havens has ever offered. It is now announced that on the lots remaining the prices will be advanced $100 on June 5. This is the first advance that has been made in the prices of the lots since they were offered to the public.

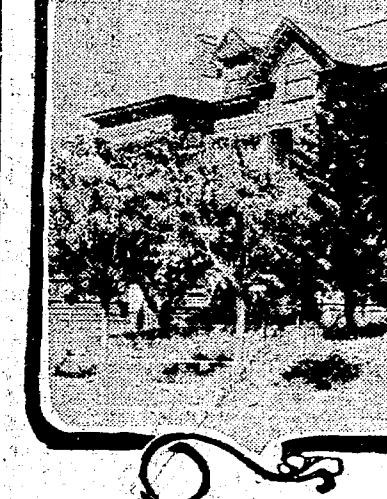

Sales Manager Edgar A. Jones says: "It has been our custom to advance prices when the sale of property created automatically a higher value, but we have deferred in Fourth Avenue Heights because it was planned for the man of average means. The heavy sales and the magnificent homes now planned render the intrinsic value of the remaining lots far above the opening prices."

COLLIER AT VALLEJO.

VALLEJO, June 3.—The collier Justin arrived at Mare Island yesterday unexpectedly from her station with the cruiser fleet at San Diego. It has developed that the boilers on the collier are in bad shape, and a board of examiners was appointed at once by Commandant Mayo to thoroughly inspect the machinery.

SALES OF REALTY MANY

The Local Real Estate Market Is Characterized by Great Activity.

Has Never in Current Year Been So Satisfactory as at Present.

The Oakland real estate market is showing an activity and a broadness that is gratifying to all the dealers. Every class of property has been represented in the business of the last few weeks. George W. Austin, president of the Oakland Real Estate association, says:

"The market has not before been in such an entirely satisfactory condition this year as it is at present. Every class of transaction is receiving its share from the selling of homes and homesites to the negotiating of big business deals. The actual work in connection with the new city hall, the voting of the school and auditorium bonds, the waterfront developments, and the erection of new hotels and business buildings seem to have awakened the general public and the investor to the great future before Oakland."

Recent sales concluded by Austin include the following:

- House and lot 60x90, 661 Twenty-seventh street near Grove street, for E. K. Townsend, to the Union Trust bakery.
- House and lot on Thirty-eighth street near Diamond for H. S. McKean to Julia Novitsky for $3000.
- Lot 75x133 on east side of Union, between Fourteenth and Sixteenth, for Mrs. Mary Moody to John Anderson.
- Lot 47x100 on east side of Telegraph avenue, for Harry Williams to E. Van Loan for $5500.
- House and lot, 1013 Myrtle street, for R. P. Hoee to Mrs. R. G. Swartout, for $4250.
- House and lot, 4600 East Eleventh street for Mrs. R. O. Hoskins to Allan James Hewitt.
- House and lot, 1400 Twelfth street, for Arthur S. Peters to William H. Nethercott.
- House and lot 1402 Twelfth street, for A. S. Peters to Joshua A. Parker.
- Lot 60x100, southeast corner Thirty-fourth and Peralta, for estate of Joseph J. Coghlan to Walter P. Austin.
- House and lot, 1014 Thirtieth street, for Mrs. Rosie Detmer to C. W. Fowler for $2300.
- House and lot, 1263 Eighth street, for J. Anderson to Mrs. Mollie Haslett for $2625.

MANY PERSONS VISIT THE FREMONT TRACT

Hundreds visited the Fremont tracts last Sunday and the one previous and the Realty Syndicate's sales manager is making preparations to care for a greater number today.

The car ride to the tract is a pleasant recreation, and the quietude and pleasantness of the spot, nestled snugly near the friendly foothills, leaves a friendly impression on the visitor when departing, a feeling of a well-spent afternoon.

The entire sales force will be at the tract today to assist all who wish to be shown over the property. However, if visitors do not wish the assistance of a salesman they can make themselves their own salesman by tearing off the tag on the lot of their choice which gives the price and the terms. All unsold lots are tagged with a card giving the price and the terms tacked to a stake driven in the lot.

PASTORS GATHER FOR CONVENTION

Several Trainloads of Church of Brethren Delegates Arrive.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 3.—Several trainloads of members arrived last night and today to attend the World's Conference of the Church of the Brethren, and the high water mark will be reached tomorrow, when sessions will be conducted in the City Auditorium and two large theaters.

Two questions of importance to be taken early in the business session next week are those of members of the church voting and acting as land agents.

In the past it has been the policy of the Brethren not to vote. But lately many of them have voted and a re-statement of the position of the church may be made.

It is said much harm has been done by brethren ministers engaging in the land business, which the standing committee characterizes as "considered even by the world a questionable vocation."

The standing committee of the conference has agreed upon the Southern Pennsylvania district as the place for the 1912 conference, and Washington, D. C., in this district, has invited the church to meet there. The recommendation must be passed upon by the delegates next week and the selection of the town or city is left to the committee.

BUILDERS BUSY IN ALAMEDA

Educational Facilities Bettered by Construction of Two Large Schools.

Plans Are Nearing Completion for Erection of 4-Story Hotel.

ALAMEDA, June 3.—The buildings erected in the city during the last year are larger than those built in 1910. Two new school buildings have been erected this year. The Haight school on the north side of Santa Clara avenue, east of Chestnut street was completed this week, and is one of the most modern institutions in the bay cities. It is artistic and commodious and has a large assembly hall with a stage and other features.

The Washington school, at the southeast corner of Santa Clara avenue and Eighth street, will be completed next month. The entrance to the new building faces on Eighth street. Klenck & Muller are the builders of the new structure.

Plans are being furthered for the large hotel to be erected at the southeast corner of High street and Encinal avenue on a site owned by Councilman Fred L. Krumb. The hotel will be a four-story structure and will combine apartment house features.

Local realty dealers are making sales of improved property daily. Rental in the city is brisk. Lewis & Shaw sold three lots in Oak Park tract this week. The buyers were F. G. Colver, M. E. Hall and B. L. Walker of San Francisco. The owners of the property are contemplating the erection of bungalows on the sites.

Realty brokers are anticipating a ready market for Alameda property now that the electric railway of the Southern Pacific Company is completed and in operation. "We ought to sell everything in sight," said George McGrath of the firm of McGrath & Son, today. "Prospective buyers have been waiting for the completion of the new line before investing their money here. Now is the time to buy."

Following are the building permits issued today by Building Inspector John Davies:

Owner, E. J. Evans; builder, owner; repairs to 2252 Alameda avenue; cost $450.

Owner, M. Lynch; builder, Arada & Nelson; repairs to 3115 Alameda avenue; cost, $100.

Owner, J. Wightman; builder, Arada & Nelson; repairs to 925 Chestnut street; cost, $377.

Owner, J. R. Sloan; builder, owner; addition to 3048 Euclid avenue; cost, $500.

The report of Building Inspector John Davies for May is as follows:

21 one-story dwellings	$32,055.00
10 two-story dwellings	12,740.00
2 two-story dwellings other than dwellings	1,135.00
13 additions and alterations	5,377.00
Total	$50,307.00

The corresponding month of 1910 was as follows:

19 one-story dwellings	$17,400.00
3 two-story dwellings	13,270.00
Five buildings other than dwellings	525.00
18 additions and alterations	5,470.00

DAAHL THOMS AWNING CO.

573 Eighth Street Oak and Latest Homes Equipped with Awnings and Sleeping Porches

A modern home is not complete unless supplied with canvas awnings for the windows and porches. They more than save their cost the first three months they are in use. In fact, the cost of an awning does not exceed one-sixteenth part of a cent per day and is therefore within the reach of everyone. Shades are all right, but the sun hits the glass just the same and heats up the room inside. Awnings keep the sun away from the glass and the result is a cool and comfortable home. If you have a porch or intend to build one you ought to equip it with awnings or curtains as you really cannot sit outside on a windy day without them. Let us fix up a cozy corner for you on your porch and you will be surprised how much better you will feel and how much more you will live out of doors.

PANORAMIC VIEW IS GRAND

Kensington Park Is Attracting Great Deal of Interest in Berkeley.

Kensington Park, one of the most beautiful residence sites, is attracting a great deal of attention owing to its splendid location and improvements.

This beautiful tract is located in the northern part of Berkeley and is the center of a wonderful amount of activity and railroad construction, which means quick and easy transportation from San Francisco, Berkeley and Oakland direct to the entrance gates of this park.

The views from Kensington park are most superb and can be enjoyed from every lot located within its boundaries.

In an interview with the Dodge ver Mehr Company, who are the agents for this tract, they state that their sales during the past week have been most satisfactory, over $20,000 worth of lots having been sold.

"We expect to put in the finest kind of street work that has ever been put into a place of this kind. Our sidewalks are fourteen feet with a five-foot cement walk. The entrance shelters at the main entrance on Arlington road are to be a particular feature and considerable expense has been gone to to make these more beautiful than any other entrance gates of their kind. We believe the people who view this park and buy in it can see the wonderful feature which exists both for the investor and home-seeker."

OLD HEN ADOPTS 8 LITTLE PIGGIES

Foster Children Ate Her Eggs, So She Took Them in Place.

WINSTED, Conn., June 3.—Eight little pigs are the foster children of a white hen on the farm of Emil Carlson. This spring, Carlson says, the hen formed the habit of laying in the pigpen. The pig was fond of eggs and did not object.

When the hen decided to set she found nothing to sit on until a litter of pigs arrived. These she promptly adopted, and when they went to sleep, piled in a heap after the manner of young pigs, she climbed to the top of the pile and, spreading her wings, did her best to cover the twelve.

ROACHES LICK GLUE OFF STAMPS

Bug Problem Worries Postoffice People and Causes Much Loss.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Postmaster General Hitchcock is receiving complaints from all sections of the country that the glue on stamps is worthless and that they will not stick.

According to officials of the department, the glue is damaged by water bugs that nibble it off the stamps. The Washington post office is infested with these insects, and, as many stamps are kept ready for sale on desks and in drawers, the bugs have easy access to them.

The department has no scheme for combating the bugs. Insecticides, if placed in the glue, must poison people who moisten stamps with their tongues.

When damage is discovered in the post offices the stamps are destroyed.

ARTISTIC MASTICK PARK BUNGALOW

in Alameda, to be built by C. C. Adams

This beautiful bungalow is being built on the north side of Pacific Avenue between Eighth and Ninth streets on the old twenty-six-acre home of the late Judge E. B. Mastick, who selected his homestead on account of its beauty and location.

The lot is forty by one hundred and twenty, with two olive trees in full bearing in front, that would take fifteen years to grow, and are not to be disturbed. The frontage is due south, the width of the lot giving a ten-foot driveway on the west. The lot east is a north-west corner, forty-two and one-half by one hundred twenty.

The exterior of this original bungalow with its long rambling roof, wide cornices, massive beam effect, its battered casings and graveled dash outside chimney, is extremely pleasing to those familiar with the modern California bungalow construction.

The interior arrangement is planned for comfort, restfulness and a minimum amount of housekeeping.

The reception hall, the living-room and dining-room floors will be quartered oak. The living-room is 16x18 and the dining-room 16x16, with a buffet of unique design and finish.

built in, six feet wide. The living-room is made the dominating room with its large windows and open fireplace of rock. The kitchen is of the buffet type, with its cool closet, drawers, bins and lockers.

The basement will be of cement and plaster. The bath will be tiled and the hardware throughout will be of solid brushed brass.

This bungalow will be provided with the Electric Weld No. 30 Combination Heater and Broiler manufactured by the John Wood Manufacturing Company, and will give hot water for a bath for a cent. The electric light fixtures are in process of planning, will be of unique design and will be supplied from the manufacturer direct, Mr. Otto Bechtle, of Alameda.

The bungalow will be complete with lawn, fence, duplex shades to match the color effect of the interior and exterior. It can be sold for $4500 with a first payment as low as $500 and the balance at $40 per month. Anyone desiring the place could have all matters of decoration to his liking.

For further information see C. C. Adams at 813 Pacific avenue, Alameda, or phone Alameda 2482.

The idea for a home that may last a life time, is not only in the architectural beauty of design, but the construction thereof. One that will be of the most substantial material and the best of workmanship. For the convenience of its readers THE TRIBUNE calls attention to the different lines represented by the various advertisers on this page, who are worthy of recognition and patronage.

DON'T SACRIFICE SAFETY FOR SPEED---GET BOTH

Those two things are seldom combined. "Haste makes waste," as the old saying goes. Hurry a man and you worry him. And a hurried and worried man is a poor one to rely on for accurate, complete, trustworthy work.

Yet there are times when you need an abstract or title quick. Come to us for it. You'll get it "on time" and in fallibly accurate.

The reason is simple—we have a set of complete, systematized, accurate records that make quick and correct work easy for us. Without such records, speed and safety would be out of the question for anybody. For your own satisfaction, come in and learn the details.

Is Your Home Comfortably Heated?

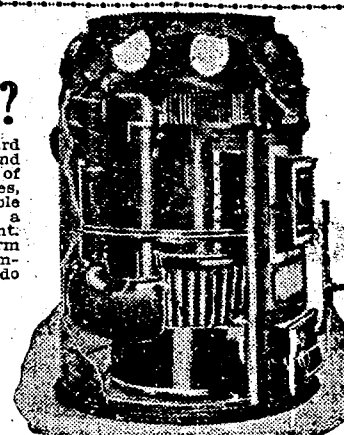

My desire is to elevate the standard of warm air furnace installations, and to educate the public to a knowledge of the necessity of pure air in their homes, which can be secured at a reasonable cost only through the medium of a properly installed warm air heating plant. I firmly believe in a high-grade warm air furnace properly installed, and employ none but first-class mechanics to do this work.

OAKLAND POOL TOURNEY IS BRINGING OUT CLEVER MEN

Gregory Fails Again and Oaks Are Trounced by Beavers in the Northland

SEALS HANG DOGGEDLY TO HEELS OF M'CREDIE'S MEN

San Francisco Bats Agnew for 13 Bingles; Browning Has Evidently Gone Back

By BERT LOWRY.

It was the same old story over the bay and the same old story in the north, which means that San Francisco trimmed the Angels good and plenty and the Beavers walked all over the Oaks.

The victory of the Ewings was a six to three one while the best the Oaks could get was one lone tally while the Beavers were ringing the bell five times in the nine innings of the play.

In another column will be found the tale of how the Oaks slipped a little further away from the Seals and Beavers in the race for the bunting of the Pacific Coast League.

As for the game over the bay, it was a mighty good contest to look at for there was plenty of free hitting, some clever baserunning and lots of brilliant fielding.

After the grand game of ball young Agnew pitched against the Seals last Tuesday morning Manager Dillon thought he was able to come back and trim the Ewings, but alas and alack his curves were easy, very easy for the Seals and thirteen times they slammed them to different corners of the lot, these thirteen bingles netting six runs.

BROWNING GETS HIS BUMPINGS TOO.

Frank Browning was the hope of the Seals but it looks as if his arm has lost its effectiveness against all the teams of the league except the Beavers. Try as hard as he would, the Angels slammed him and slammed him hard and it was nothing but grand spectacular fielding that cut off hit after hit and run after run.

At last though the slugging, became too dangerous for the boss of the Ewings and he offed Frank to the store suit of clothes.

Los Angeles as usual was the first to the bat and right off the reel began to slam the ball but brilliant stops by Weaver of the drives of Daley and Moore and another by Mohler of Bernard's drive pulled Browning out of trouble.

In the second, more brilliant fielding saved his bacon for three bingles netted the Angels nothing. In the third they managed to squeeze one over. Agnew was out, Browning to Tennant, but Akin punched one over the infield for a safety. Moore was hit by a pitched ball.

These two tried the double steal and the Seals' catcher, tipped Akin at third. Bernard then hit past third and Moore registered.

BROWNING IS FINISHED IN FIFTH.

Smith started the fifth with a liner to right and on Agnew's punt went to second. Akin slammed a double to right scoring Smith and he came home when Bernard hit safely to right after Moore had gone out Weaver to Tennant.

That was the end of the Angels' scoring and it was the end of Browning in the game for he was replaced by Suter when the sixth opened and the Angels simply ate out of Harry's hands.

San Francisco skipped the first without damage in the hit or run column but in the second they gathered two. After Tennant had lined out to Bernard, Melchior poled one to leftfield and went to third on Mohler's single, Ernie making second on the throw in. Powell grounded out to Dillon and when Schmidt drove one into center Melchior and Mohler spiked the pan.

In the fourth a regular bombardment of Agnew's curves netted the Seals two more and again in the fifth came one tally on more hits and their final score came over in the seventh on three more hits. That's about all. The score:

WANDERERS MEET ALAMEDA AT CRICKET

Crack Teams Scheduled for Dow Grounds; Golden Gates to Play Barbs.

Two games that are likely to produce good contests are on the schedule of the California Cricket association today. At Croil's grounds the Golden Gate and Barbours clubs will play. At the Dow grounds, the Wanderers and Alamedas are to clash.

The Golden Gates are playing well this season, and the victory gained by the eleven over the champion Wanderers two weeks ago greatly stimulated the members of last year's team. The Barbours are not as strong an aggressive club as they were in the field in years gone by, and they will have to be at their best to stand off the aggressive Golden Gate players.

When the Wanderers and the Alamedas meet at the Dow grounds the two teams that are generally expected to be fighting it out for the championship will be seen against each other. Alameda has a good team and was champion of the championship last year up to the last game. The Wanderers are not a team that are generally expected to be fighting it out for the championship will be seen against each other.

The following are teams that will play in Alameda—Hood, Lafferty, Logan, Price, Evans, Stahl, Crill, Vaz, Ward, Wilding and Lewis. The Wanderers—Dr. Seager, Charlton, Stuart, Hughes, Hyland, Dustin, Phillips, Clements, Radston, Willis, Markham, Golden Gate—Doy, Marsh, Bird, E. Kaufman, Priest, A. Palco, C. Palco, Major, H. Kaufman, Chester, Nelson.

Barbours—Newman, Young, Tyler, Kellett, Johns, Anstey, McEllicott, Golden, Thomas, McCall, Marsh.

DIAMOND GOSSIP

By THOMAS DELURY.

The week ending this afternoon in Coast League baseball has certainly been a strenuous one and the ball players will more than welcome the coming of tomorrow with its day of rest.

Finishing up with double headers a week ago today the teams were called upon to hurry to forest cities and begin double headers on Tuesday.

San Francisco came from Portland after winning on Tuesday and with little time to spare began playing the Angels. Oakland went north and played with the Beavers while the Ewings jumped home and tackled the Senators.

With this the teams have played first-class ball and the fans while dissatisfied in most cases over the relative standings of their favorites are well satisfied with the calibre of ball dished up by various teams.

Next week the Senators will be the opponents of the Seals in this part of the league, two games being played on this side of the bay with the other five on the other side.

Ewing's men are more than holding their own in the race for the flag and with that pitching staff getting better will surely be contenders in the race for the pennant.

Of course, the injury to Vitt is going to work more or less havoc with the team but Ewing was fortunate in finding such a clever youngster as Weaver as an infield utility man.

Sacramento is still making efforts to bolster up the team and has called upon John L. Taylor for reinforcements. Nebraska, an infielder, who showed well here during the training camp, is being sent to Sacramento to join the team.

Another acquisition to the club will be Jackie Warren, who went to Tacoma at the opening of the season through a regular cause from the Senators.

He has been hitting the ball with a regularity up north and has shown flashes of ability in the field that makes him worthy of a trial in the faster Coast League.

It is supposed that he will replace Van Buren for while the latter is getting better and moreover he seems to have lost all of his old time speed in the field and on the bases.

Henry Berry, big gun of the poor down traded Angels is in the line of duty for his team. It is reported that he has signed up with the Angels who are slayers from A to Z and then back again.

Berry refuses to tell us who they are until he gets them, but he is sure to get them, they will deliver the goods and will put his team up on top in a short time. Maybe that is true, but he will be satisfied if the new men win a majority of their games.

The Chicago White Sox have been hitting the ball all the way from 12 to 17 times now he has had the chance to show his power and each time he has failed to deliver the goods. Can it be possible that Ewing has slipped his belt and that the pitchers of the big league are getting wise to him?

George Weaver took McCardie's place at short for the Seals while McCardie was in the hospital. The substitute played a fast, clever game at the difficult station and barring a little wildness in leaving the bases over the head, got away with every play in fine style.

The crowd was much better than the balance of the week and were for the Seals to a man. Still they did not overlook the clever playing of the Angels and when given a chance cheered Dillon's men as well as they did the Seals.

Claude Berry is on the hospital list. Friday afternoon he received a nasty crack on the ankle and went down. He is expected to be out in a few days.

HIGH SCHOOL RUGBY TEAMS BEGIN TO WARM UP

Oakland Players Getting Into Condition for Season; Coach Secured.

By L. N. COBBLEDECK JR.

With the closing of the high schools and universities about the bay cities athletes such as baseball, basketball and track, are practically at a standstill. But in anticipation of the fall football season, the "prep" schools have turned out fast Rugby squads to smooth off any of the rough players in the new candidates' football ability. Oakland High from early spring practice work and able coaching has turned out a squad from new material that will undoubtedly prove to be the champion team in the northern part of California.

In the three games played, the Oakland lads have played the spring with the best San Francisco high school fifteens, Oakland High has won two and tied Lowell in the first game, with no score. On May 20, the San Francisco Polytechnic high school team was defeated by 3-0, and Mission, who had the championship team of San Francisco last season, was also defeated last Saturday by the score of 15-5.

OAKLAND HIGH'S CHANCES.

With its candidates in first class condition, Oakland High will cause Berkeley and Everett a lot of worry before they hook up in their annual games. Last year without a coach and proper training grounds, Oakland high school beat three points by Berkeley High, which school boasted of four different coaches and fine field. Mayor Muir has already had a regulation size football field started on the filled land at Twelfth and Folsom, and a lot of money will be spent to include many showers, rubberdown tables, and lockers, will also be provided. The field will be 300 by 150 feet wide, with goal posts and tackling dummies provided.

At the completion of the last inning yesterday, the Angels batted, Suter had pitched 27 innings without losing a pass, a mighty clever record for him who was considered as wild as a hawk a few weeks ago.

BEAVERS HAVE NOW WON FOUR OF THE SIX PLAYED

Oakland's Pitchers Fail to Stop
Onrush of McCredie's Men
After Flag.

PORTLAND, June 3.—McCredie's Beavers clinched the series by defeating the Oaks through the great pitching of Tom Seaton, who held the visitors to four hits and one run this afternoon while Portland whanged the offerings of Gregory to all corners of the lot and tallied five runs.

As usual, the eighth inning, which has cut so much figure in every game played here since the start, was the only score Seaton allowed, and he came right back at the Oaks in the ninth, fanning out Monte Fryl, Bert Coy and "Izzy" Hoffman, the only three batters who faced him, and all three swung at the third strike. Hoffman was the only one of the trio to foul off any of the pitches made by Seaton.

At the end of the eighth inning Knight hid the old ball which had been in play and Finney tossed out a new ball, which the Portland players immediately soiled as much as they could, and the Oaks tried to argue for another new ball, but ineffectively. Finney was continually in trouble with the players and the big Saturday crowd of fans roared him unmercifully.

FANS ROAST UMPIRE FINNEY.

Portland is getting something of a reputation for umpire baiting. The Beavers scored in the first inning when Shadbourne singled and took second on Hoffman's fumble. He scored a moment later on Ryan's first hit.

In the fourth Rappa doubled and took third on Sheahan's sacrifice and scored on Peckinbaugh's hard grounder to Cutshaw, who fumbled until too late to make a hit at the plate.

In the fifth Rodgers singled and Ryan doubled, but Rodgers was held at third. He scored, however, when Happs hit a long fly to Zachar.

In the sixth the Beavers drove Gregory from the hill from two successive bingles, though only two runs were scored. Peckinbaugh opened with a hit and stole second. He took third on a sacrifice fly to Hoffman. Seaton then drove one to deep left, but was thrown out at third trying to take three bases.

Chadbourne followed with a single and stole second and when Rodgers hit safely Chadbourne scored. Seaton then dickered Gregory and substituted Knight. Ryan ended the inning with a chance to Cutshaw.

ABLES AND STEEN TODAY.

In the eighth Peckinbaugh made a great catch on a fly to center after which Hoffman doubled to center. Wares fanned and Tiedeman singled, scoring Helling with the Oaks' lone run.

Today's victory gives Portland four out of six games played.

Tomorrow Akins will pitch for the Oaks against Steen for Portland.

AUTO SALESMEN OF CLEAN-CUT TYPE

Regal Agent Makes Comparison As Against Those of a Few Years Past.

"Automobiles are no longer sold over the bar between drinks," says William P. Jones, the local agent for the Regal Motor Car Company. "The automobile salesman has dropped the sports slang and he has put away the red tie with the enormous sparkler. The change has benefited him greatly."

"You may think that to say automobiles were sold over the bar is a crude way of putting the fact, but the crudity is only a matter of degree. The first automobile salesman made his sales just that way for a bar is a bar whether it has a sawdust floor, marble pillars or walls hung in tapestry and reflected in French mirrors. He smelled of gasoline and talked like an exhaust valve."

"He was the swaggering, easy-spending, speed-mad fellow who gave us the joy ride. He furnished the newspapers with stories of boudoir pedestrians and the farmer's animal kingdom, until the long arm of the law reached out and nabbed him by the neck. He was shaken until his teeth chattered."

"The cleanest cut, the cleverest, the most energetic young business men of the day are in the automobile industry today. They are the men who are on the road. Today selling an automobile is an earnest endeavor to show, by comparison, that the one you are handling is the one that represents the best value for the money it is sold for. The automobile business is reaching a really competitive basis and the wide-awake, conscientious, indefatigable business man is fitting his peculiar talents to the selling of automobiles made by the reputable concerns."

"Just put this fact away as a truism: If a science of salesmanship has been developed within the last six or eight years, as we are told in numerous trade talks in the magazines and newspapers, the credit must be given to the automobile industry which has forced the con-

FRANKLIN SPECIAL SPEED CAR HERE

Torpedo Roadster Model of Air Cooled Car Makers Create Impression.

The Franklin special speed car, a two-passenger runabout, the first model of which was received but a short time ago by the John R. Taylor Motor Car Company, is creating an impression of the most favorable sort with motorists to whom a car which is fast and of the latest distinctive design appeals.

It is sturdy looking, yet beautiful in lines, finished in a Franklin gray body color with light gray striping, powerful on hills, even of the steepest grades, and its makers claim it to be the fastest car of its type of built.

The new speed car will unquestionably find its way into the hands of many owners in this vicinity.

Another shipment of Warren Detroiters were unloaded last night by the J. R. Taylor Company. They include two new four door two-passenger roadsters and two five-passenger touring cars. The roadsters are without doubt among the prettiest in lines of any similar models received on the coast this season. They are mounted on the "30" chassis, are exceptionally fast and can negotiate hills of any grade.

How to Fit Spark Plugs

"In fitting a spark plug on a cold cylinder be careful that you do not screw it too tight. The principal cause of the breakage of the porcelain insulator on spark plugs will then be in many cases overcome," said Charles E. Spittler of the laboratories of that name. "The expansion of the metal while heated has a crushing effect on the light spark plug, with the result that the thin and brittle porcelain is often times readily fractured."

MITCHELL IN USE FOR SIX YEARS

Has Traveled 67,000 Miles and Shows No Signs of "Oslerism."

In the rush of new styles and new ideas in the automobile industry, the public today is apt to lose sight of the significance of the performance of old machines, but an interesting record has come to light in Long Beach, Calif., where a Mitchell car is just entering its sixth year of strenuous service and shows no signs of being "Oslerized" yet.

This machine is a touring car and is owned by C. Schlemmer, one of the first purchasers of Mitchell cars on the Pacific coast. It has traveled over 67,000 miles to date, approximately 18,500 miles a year. "Before the end of the present year the Pioneer machine will have gone far enough to have circled the earth three times at the equator and when one reflects that this record has been made over sagebrush and sandhills where the trail was often unbroken, it is easy to see that it "means something."

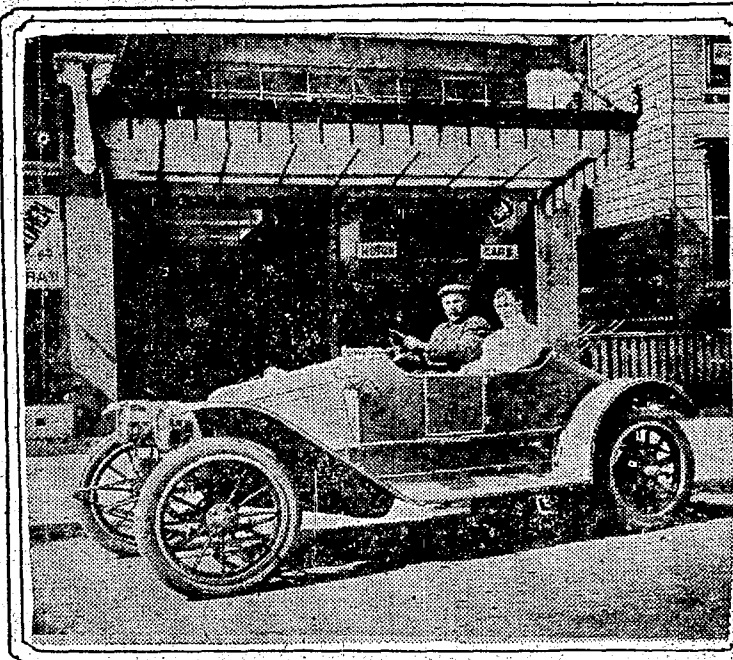

On one occasion the car was driven straight through the brush of the Lost Hills at top speed for 35 miles when the lives of its occupants hung in the balance. It has also crossed the Mojave desert a number of times, a trip where a bad breakdown might have meant a lingering and tortuous death.

"There are today over $30,000,000 worth of Mitchell cars in use in this country and if the truth were known I do not doubt that there would be many instances where this record would be equalled or surpassed," said E. L. Rescock, manager of Osen & Hunter Auto Company, yesterday. "That the owners of these cars are satisfied and that the cars are a credit to their maker is evidenced by the fact that our business increased 98 per cent last year and is keeping up that pace during 1911."

"The present Mitchell cars differ from the earlier models only in detail and not in fundamentals. Of course we are always working toward simplification and standardization and there will always be more or less "fashion" in body types. But the fact remains that what a Mitchell of the past has done a Mitchell of today can do."

COLE CAR CREATES MUCH INTEREST IN INDIA

P. S. Hartog, agent for the Cole in the East India Islands, who was recently in San Francisco to take delivery of Cole demonstrating cars, has just arrived with the machines in Batavia, East India, according to advices received from him by the Pacific Motor Car Company. "No American car introduced to the East Indies has created greater interest than have the new Cole demonstrators," writes Hartog. "The arrival of these machines had been anticipated for some time, and as a matter of fact we had booked orders for five on catalogue descriptions before a single Cole car had been seen in the islands. I am now booking orders every day and will have to soon hang up a 'sold-out' sign, unless I can increase the allotment for which I contracted with the Henderson Motor Car Company. American-built cars generally are received with high favor here. The 150 or more which are now privately owned here are all giving satisfaction."

JOY COMES IN DRIVING OWN CAR

Exhilaration From Motoring Then Increased Ten-fold, Says Actress.

"Exhilarating as is the joy of motoring to a woman it is increased ten-fold for she who drives her own car," says Miss Izetta Jewel, leading woman with Ye Liberty Stock Company. "I have ridden in motor cars ever since the first models were put on the market and have driven a machine of my own for nearly four years. While I have piled up a tremendous mileage during that time and have many times made journeys of great length and exceedingly perilous, the initial keenness, excitement and joy is renewed every time I take hold of the wheel and feel the car rolling along under my control."

There are many in the city who regard Miss Jewel's remarks as decidedly authoritative, as the actress could probably lay substantial claim to the title of the pioneer woman motorist of the Pacific Coast. For, it was in Oakland four years ago that Miss Jewel learned to drive an automobile. Since then she has owned three cars, the present machine being an E-M-F "30" which she purchased from the New York branch of the Studebaker Corporation in January, 1910.

"The simplicity of operation and its economical upkeep, together with its light weight, were the reasons for my selection of the E-M-F," explains Miss Jewel. "In every way the car seemed to me to be eminently suited to woman's use."

Many times Miss Jewel has made journeys in her car which have been more or less notable, but it is for trips she has made on the Pacific Coast that she is most noted. Accompanied by her mother, sister and a woman friend, Miss Jewel, two years ago drove a Studebaker "30" from Portland, Ore. to Vancouver, B. C., the first woman to ever drive a motor car over that road. This event occurred during the Seattle Exposition and attracted considerable attention at the time. The mountainous nature of the country made the trip then one of the most dangerous in that part of the country.

Motoring comes quite natural to Miss Jewel, her mother, who is in San Francisco at the present time, was a pioneer woman cyclist. The latter belonged to the Century Club in Philadelphia and was an expert rider. Mrs. Jewel, too, has her own ideas of the benefits of bicycling, just as Miss Jewel now has of the benefit of women driving their machines. She was a promoter of the fashion of wearing short skirts which was finally adopted by woman cyclists of the country, but which style met with a good deal of ridicule when it was first suggested.

Moline Car Wins

The Moline Motor Sales Company of this city have just been advised by wire from the Moline factory that their car was victorious in the Chicago reliability run, just ended. It follows:

"Moline Motor Sales Co., 12th and Oak Sts., Oakland, Calif., in the Chicago economy run, yesterday, Moline touring car, carrying five passengers, driver W. J. Boone, won first place, making one hundred eighty-six and three-tenths miles on nine gallons of gasoline on twenty ounces gasoline, or nineteen and one-half miles per gallon; Moline toy tonneau, carrying four passengers, driver F. C. Salsbury, took second place, roadster division, account losing road. This car covered two hundred one miles on exactly ten gallons, an average of twenty miles per gallon."

MOLINE AUTO CO.

The Automobile Appeals

The automobile has appealed for help to the motorcycle and not in vain. In Syracuse, N. Y., the members of the Automobile Club, in front of a darkly upon automobile speeding and also upon owners who drive with open mufflers.

It was to stop this practice that the motorcycle was called in. There is just about one machine in existence that can overtake a speeding automobile, and that one thing is a motorcycle. So, the automobile club employed a motorcyclist, who patrols the streets of Syracuse. Whenever he observes an automobile who is speeding or careless with his muffler, the motorcyclist dashes in, overhauls the offender and presents him a club card bearing the printed request that he refrain from these practices in the future. The novelty, the politeness and the unexpectedness of the attack are combining to bring results.

AMERICAN ENTERS LOCAL FIELD

Famous Underslung Car to Be Sold by Well Known Local Men.

The American Motor Sales Agency, with W. J. Parry, formerly with Osen & Hunter and F. E. Romie as managers, has been formed to handle the American car in the county. Both are well known here.

The American has long been featured by its underslung frame construction. Previous to this season it has been made in but one model and that a fifty horsepower. A "30" is added this year selling at $2250.

Although represented in northern California for but a few months, the American has already become the car owned and driven by the following well-known people: George Metcalf, Lester Reiff, Harry Friedman, A. M. Shields, W. Hamerton, R. S. Wasson, D. H. Gulick, Harold Ward and Paul Kellogg.

MONOGRAM OIL USED IN RACING MOTOR BOATS

The Red Raven, Comet and Teta motorboats made a clean sweep at the recent regatta held in conjunction with the Colusa carnival and captured all the trophies offered. Three cons of these three boats were lubricated with the new Monogram marine motor oil. It would appear that this Monogram marine oil is to be as large a factor in motorboat racing as the original Monogram oil now is in motorcar and aeroplane contests.

BAKERSFIELD TO HAVE ROAD RACE

Kern County Merchants' Association Moving Spirits in July 4th Event.

Percy Walker, Pacific Coast A. A. official, has just returned from Bakersfield, to which city he went upon invitation from the Bakersfield Merchants' Association to look over the course on which the Bakersfield-Coalinga Road Race is to be run on July 4th. Mr. Walker is authority for the statement that the Kern county merchants are alive to the importance of such a contest within their county and accordingly have put up over $5000 in cash prizes for two contests, a free-for-all and a 300 and under cubic inch race. The road from Coalinga to Bakersfield is being put into splendid condition and one of the best events of the season should result from it.

Some of the entries are: Bert Dingley, with his Pope-Hartford, Joe Nikrent and the Knox, Louis Nikrent with the Buick, the Staver, Chicago; Flat, Franklin; possibly the National, and at least a half dozen others.

Mrs. Mearns, America's great authority on Health and Beauty Culture, advises each morning and night, massaging the parts with Melorose Cream each night, and each morning bathe the parts with cold salt water. Take White's Vaucare Tablets four times a day, drink water freely, and within a very reasonable time excellent results will be noticed. It is essential that you take the Vaucare Tablets, that contain the GENUINE IMPORTED GALEGA, such as Willard White Company's does, and that you use the safe side for this brand, take no substitutes, as they are worthless and a waste of time.

The tablets are more of a food than a medicine, and are perfectly harmless. Easy to take, they only dose Mrs. Mearns. MAJOR BUTT DENIES CUPID HAS TAKEN HIM IN TOW

PRESIDENT TAFT, his wife's sister, MRS. LUCY HERRON LAUGHLIN, her children and MAJOR ARCHIE BUTT. The Major denies that he is to marry Mrs. Laughlin.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Major Archie Butt, who has been the personal aide of President Taft ever since he took office, denies that he is going to marry Mrs. Lucy Herron Laughlin of Pittsburg, a sister of Mrs. Taft.

Mrs. Laughlin, who is the daughter of John Herron of Cincinnati, is a widow with two children. She is fond of outdoor sports, and is an excellent tennis player and swimmer.

SCANDAL SHAKES TRAVELERS' CLUB

Charge of Gambling Quickly Ends the Exclusive Organization.

(By COUNT VON ELPHBERG.)

BERLIN, June 3.—The "Travelers' Club," recently established by William Draper, the wealthy New York man now residing in Berlin, has been broken up by a scandal.

Mr. Draper found a fine home for the club in Moltke Strasse and it received on its opening day the Kaiser's felicitations and wishes for its success. Its membership was carefully selected and included many prominent Americans. It aimed at fostering friendly relations among the men of many nationalities residing in Berlin.

All went well until a newspaper charged it with allowing gambling to be carried on in its rooms. On this becoming public, many leading members resigned. The scandal has now culminated in the arrest of the club cashier, Leon Paar, while attempting to abscond with the club's money.

Paar, who at the gambling tables acted as banker, was frequently trusted with large sums. So extensively was this practice carried on that the temptation proved his undoing for he appropriated rackets amounting to $2000 besides taking $2500 belonging to the club funds. He is now in jail awaiting trial.

HOWL-DOWN SINGER.

Brunswick society women, with a European ring-leader, demonstrated effectively their antipathy toward the opera singer, Carlotta Roeder, who was involved in a recent case which gained her notoriety by an extraordinary disturbance in the Duval Theater of the Princeship wherein she appeared in "La Traviata." Everything was previously planned by the aristocratic partisans and when the actress appeared before the curtain followed the most tragic scene, the Baroness, by vigorously blowing a shrill whistle, to the consternation of the audience, gave the signal for her followers to howl down Roeder. The performance was rudely interrupted. Uproarious scenes ensued, during which the Baroness was forcibly ejected by the police.

Fierce altercations continued and at the conclusion of the performance and when the actress drove away she was only protected from injury by a cordon of police with drawn swords.

CHARGE MALPRACTICE IN SUIT FOR $7,500

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The Pacific coast hospital association of California was made defendant today in a suit for $7500 damages on a charge of malpractice preferred by Mrs. Marie Beck. The woman alleges that she was taken to the hospital suffering from a broken wrist which had been set by her own doctor, M. A. Magnus and Max Magnus. She claims that a physician of the company removed the splints, substituted adhesive plaster, and that she was discharged without her wrist being restored to its normal condition and was forced to go to the German hospital.

BURIED ALIVE. SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., June 3.—William Meyers, an employee of the Hobson quicksilver mine on Morrow creek, near this city, was buried alive by a cave-in yesterday.

His dead body was recovered after several hours' work by a party of rescuers. Several other miners narrowly escaped a similar fate.

Mrs. Laughlin has been much at the White House, and the fact that she has been seen frequently in Major Butt's company and that the Major is preparing to go to housekeeping gave rise to the rumor which will not be downed in spite of his denials.

Major Butt was formerly a newspaper correspondent at Washington. He received his commission in the army from President McKinley at the time the army enlistment was enlarged after the Spanish war.

WESTERNER, 98, IS ROBBED IN N. Y.

Gray Bearded Man Applies for Lodging at Municipal Home.

CHICAGO, June 3.—A gray bearded man, carrying a hickory cane, applied at the municipal lodging house in North Union street last night and said to the clerk:

"Young man, I was directed here for a night's lodging. Do I get it?"

"Name?" asked the clerk as he reached for a registry card.

"Peter S. Morrison," was the visitor's reply.

"Age," was the next question.

"Ninety-eight, the 11th day of last March."

"What?" exclaimed the clerk in a doubtful tone. "Come, come, old man, give me your right age."

"Never lied in my life," was the patriarch's quick retort. "I'm 98, and if you say I'm not, I'll crack you across the head with this cane."

Morrison, who says he is a veteran of the Mexican and Civil wars, lives in Big Horn Basin, Wyoming, and came east on a visit. He draws a pension, and had money enough to take him home, but on his way from Detroit to Chicago, he was robbed.

He has telegraphed to his son in Wyoming for money.

It is Criminal to Neglect the Skin and Hair

THINK of the, suffering tentailed by neglected skin troubles—mental because of disfigurement, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. "PERFECT GIRL" TO DISPLAY CHARMS TO WOMEN

THE TRIBUNE ARRANGES FOR SPECIAL DAY AT THE ORPHEUM

Margaret Edwards to Give Reception on the Stage

A DAY FOR WOMEN

THE TRIBUNE has arranged a Woman's Day at the Oakland Orpheum for next Friday, June 9, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, when "The Perfect Girl" will be on exhibition. She will be presented by her mother, Mrs. L. Edyth Edwards, of Berkeley, in a way that will be distinctly appealing to every woman and girl.

Admission to the theater on this occasion will be by coupons, one of which appears on this page of THE TRIBUNE.

Admission will be free and by coupon only.

It must be understood that none but women and girls will be allowed in the theater next Friday morning, when "The Perfect Girl," with her mother, under the auspices of THE TRIBUNE, will expound the principles that have made her "The Perfect Girl."

Everything in connection with the affair will be of particular and unique interest to women, being arranged especially for their benefit.

There will be no men allowed in the theater nor on the stage. It will be for women alone.

Make your plans to be at the Oakland Orpheum on Friday morning at 11 o'clock, and go early, for there will be a tremendous crush.

"The Perfect Girl" will be there, and the women of Alameda county will be permitted to see her rare natural beauty, unadorned, and without the artificial trappings of the stage to detract from her exquisite charm.

Mrs. L. Edyth Edwards, mother of "The Perfect Girl," will answer all the questions that may be asked at this time by the woman assemblage regarding the methods used to bring about "The Perfect Girl."

Mrs. Edwards will also tell at that time how her daughter won the gold medal given by the New York Physical Culture Society, in international competition, for being the most perfectly formed girl in the world.

Listen! THE TRIBUNE has a big secret for you!

It is one of those secrets that every woman will be almost tickled to death to be told, and one of the kind that every woman will find almost impossible to keep to herself.

It is a secret of how THE TRIBUNE has arranged with the Orpheum management and Mrs. L. Edyth Edwards, the mother of "The Perfect Girl," for a TRIBUNE morning at the Orpheum this week.

You have heard of "The Perfect Girl." Certainly. Everybody has.

Every man, woman and child in Alameda county has felt the thrill of pride in the fact that the most perfectly formed girl in the world, Miss Margaret Edwards of Berkeley, is a resident of this county.

When the New York papers, the San Francisco papers and the Chicago papers and in fact the biggest papers all over this broad land have devoted pages to stories and pictures about "The Perfect Girl" of Alameda county, who is also the "Perfect Girl" of the world, it would be strange, wouldn't it, if our home folks should not be tremendously interested in and proud of "The Perfect Girl?"

It would indeed be strange.

Well, although we all have heard of "The Perfect Girl" not all of us have seen her.

THE TRIBUNE'S IDEA.

Everybody wants to see her though, and that is why the Orpheum people are putting her on the stage, in a beautiful vaudeville offering.

But while that is very good and highly desirable THE TRIBUNE has found an even better idea.

THE TRIBUNE has arranged to have "The Perfect Girl," with her mother, Mrs. Edwards of Berkeley, appear at a TRIBUNE function in the Orpheum theater on Friday morning at 11 o'clock, when every woman and girl in Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley who presents a TRIBUNE coupon will be admitted to the theater, free of charge, to see "The Perfect Girl," to see her mother, to hear them both talk and to ask all the questions they can possibly think of.

FOR WOMEN ONLY.

Remember! The coupons are for women and girls only.

None but women and girls will be ad-

The "Perfect Girl," MISS MARGARET EDWARDS, and a picture showing the symmetrical development of her legs. The proportions of the girl wonder are shown in the following table:

Neck—11 1/2 inches.	Bust—32 inches.
Arm—9 inches.	Waist—23 inches.
Forearm—8 3/4 inches.	Hips—34 inches.
Wrist—6 inches.	Thigh—19 inches.
Elbow—8 3/4 inches.	Calf—13 inches.
Chest—Normal, 31 inches.	Ankle—8 inches.
Chest—Contracted, 27 inches.	Weight—106 pounds.
Chest—Expanded, 32 1/2 inches.	Height—5 feet 1 1/2 inches.

mitted to the Orpheum on the occasion of THE TRIBUNE'S presentation of "The Perfect Girl," and her mother, on Friday morning next.

It will be splendid, of course, to see Margaret Edwards, "The Perfect Girl," in her vaudeville performance at the Orpheum. But there are thousands and thousands of women who will want to get a look at closer range and who will also want to hear from the lips of "The Perfect Girl" herself just how she became "The Perfect Girl."

Then there are lots of things the women would like to ask about in connection with this art of so training the body that it can be properly called "perfect body."

THE TRIBUNE day at the Orpheum will give them just that chance. They can ask all the questions they want of "The Perfect Girl" and of Mrs. Edwards, her mother.

STAGE RECEPTION.

They will be allowed to greet Miss Edwards on the stage, as there will be a reception on the stage after Mrs. Edwards gives the talk, explaining in detail how she trained Margaret Edwards to be "The Perfect Girl" of the world.

As women only are to be present it will be possible for "The Perfect Girl" to discuss subjects that would be out of place in a mixed audience—subjects that are of great interest and importance to every woman. In all these subjects Mrs. Edwards has shown herself an authority, and she will answer every question that comes within the scope of her field of training.

The ladies will be permitted to examine and see for themselves how "The Perfect Girl's" muscles have been developed throughout—an experience which is likely to come but once in a lifetime, for it is not much oftener than that that a "perfect girl" is developed and shown to the world.

IMPORTANT TO WOMEN.

Because THE TRIBUNE understands the tremendous importance and the great novelty of this affair, it is determined that every woman and girl in Alameda county shall have the privilege of being among those present in the Orpheum theater on Friday morning at 11 o'clock. THE TRIBUNE believes that this will be one of the greatest educational events which could possibly be contrived for the benefit of Alameda county women.

All the teachers, all the great educational leaders, all the doctors, every big and progressive citizen, knows that the strength and prosperity of a state has to depend upon the strength and perfect health of its women members. Nobody can deny that to develop a perfect girl—perfect physically, mentally and spiritually—is a rare and great achievement. If Mrs. Edwards, who has accomplished this wonderful task, can spread the gospel of how it was all done to the women and girls of Alameda county, who can say that a vast amount of lasting good will not be accomplished?

That is the aim of Mrs. L. Edyth Edwards, and it is the purpose of THE TRIBUNE to see that the object is attained.

ALL INVITED.

To that end THE TRIBUNE invites the co-operation of every educational factor in Oakland, Alameda and Berkeley.

THE TRIBUNE requests that announcements of its great day at the Orpheum on Friday morning be made in every woman's club, in every social gathering, and wherever women congregate.

WOMEN'S RULE IN ENGLAND PREDICTED

Gertrude Atherton Has a Word to Say About Petticoat Government.

Says Fair Sex Will Be Running Affairs There Within Fifty Years.

NEW YORK, June 3.—"Mrs. Pankhurst has the brain for state craft in England today. Within fifty years, I expect to see the English government under the control of women."

These were the rather remarkable statements made by Mrs. Gertrude Atherton, the novelist, on her arrival today on the America.

"As for women gaining the vote in England," continued Mrs. Atherton, "that is a foregone conclusion. Women are coming to the front in public life and in the future they will deal with the important political questions as they arise."

"The reason for woman's progress everywhere is a simple one. She has more leisure than she ever had before. Families are smaller and she has less to look after in the home. Moreover, the labor saving devices that she is able to use in the conduct of her home add to this share of leisure."

"Leisure has given woman time to study, and this means that she has time to develop her brain. The average woman's brain is now quite as good as that of the average man. The average man's brain does not amount to very much and if it is said that the average woman is a fool, why the average man is certainly not much better."

Girl Drops Purse From Ship's Deck

NEW YORK, June 3.—As the whistle blew today for the lowering of the gangway on the American liner Newark, a young and attractive woman on the promenade deck waving farewell to friends on the dock, dropped a leather purse into the stream.

L. Lloyd of the baggage department sprang down to the raft and snatched up the purse before it had time to sink. It was handed to the quartermaster, who returned it to the owner. A man, who had come down with the young woman said she was Miss Baxter and that the purse contained $2000.

GIRLS GIVEN TIME TO PRIMP

15 Minutes Are Allowed Each Morning for Chicago Employes.

10 Fair Maids Fluff Hair and Powder Faces at Public Expense.

CHICAGO, June 3.—An order granting ten girl employes fifteen minutes to primp before beginning the day's work was issued yesterday by A. J. Callaghan, chief clerk of the corporation counsel's office in the new city hall.

"The girls who primp are the best workers," said Callaghan. "The ten report at 8:45 a. m. and are allowed fifteen minutes to primp. They must get at the dressing room at 9 a. m."

One of the girls outlined the "primping timetable" as follows:

1. Inspect braids.
2. Straighten tuffs.
3. Fluff hair.
4. Adjust belt.
5. Rub face with powder bag.
6. Look at face, head and hair in mirror.
7. Examine waist.
8. Look over skirt.
9. Hang up coat.
10. Put away hat.

"Time flies, you know," said the girl. Ask any married man if his wife can primp in fifteen minutes. We're not allowed any more time than necessary."

"I am sure the girls will do better," said Callaghan, "because they have this extra fifteen minutes to prepare for work. The girl who primps to be commended. It is the right kind of pride."

'As You Like It' a Play, Not a Wrestling Match

Barnard Graduates Refuse to Pose as Wrestlers and the Scene Is Cut Out.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Because none of the graduates would take the part of the two wrestlers in the class of 1911 at Barnard cut out a scene from "As You Like It," which was offered tonight to a highly exclusive and restricted audience on the Barnard campus.

There were many number of young women ready and willing to be foresters in russet doublets and green hose, but not a single senior could be induced to play the part of a wrestler.

"Some of them are athletes, too. But," they said, "the ground is so hard and grass so mussy and there are so many bugs and things on a lawn—ugh!"

BREWER FRACTURES HIS SKULL IN HEAVY FALL

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Charles Fouchs, a brewer whose home is at 2049 Lombard street, fell from a Fillmore street car, between Lombard and Greenwich streets, tonight and sustained a fractured skull. He was retained at the Central Emergency hospital and later transferred to the German hospital.

day the following letter from Manager George Ebby of the Orpheum, the letter being self-explanatory:

Oakland, Cal.

My Dear Mr. Mott:

As Oakland's chief citizen I believe that you will be interested in the fact that we have, in the person of Miss Margaret Edwards, a young girl who was awarded a gold medal by the New York Society of Physical Culture, in international competition, for being the most perfectly formed girl in the world.

Prof. Robert Otter, head of the Anatomy Department of the University of California, has written to Mrs. Edwards that "your daughter Margaret is the most perfect human being I have ever seen." Other gentlemen of similar high standing and authority have expressed the same opinion.

It seems to me noteworthy that Alameda county should have produced so perfect a girl who, in addition to physical perfection, has mental and spiritual gifts that have inspired such poets as Joaquin Miller and others to indite poems that celebrate her extraordinary gifts.

Mrs. Margaret Edwards has been imported for a year by New York and San Francisco impresarios to permit her daughter's appearance on the stage, in such setting as would help to show the young girl's perfection to the world, as an illustration of what certain forms of culture could be made to accomplish in the way of physical perfection.

All these offers have been consistently refused by Mrs. Edwards in her daughter's behalf, but she has finally consented to permit Miss Margaret to appear on the stage of the Oakland Orpheum under our auspices so that the citizens of Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda may see that triumph has been attained by the California girl, who is also an Alameda county girl.

I believe that you will approve an artistic and dignified presentation of "The Perfect Girl" to our public, and will join me in the wish that all mothers and fathers may see and profit by the exhibition which "The Perfect Girl" is to give on the stage of the Oakland Orpheum theater.

I will be glad to have you occupy a box with your family and friends, as guests of the theater during Miss Edwards' engagement with the expectation that you will approve this and other arrangements that are designed to show the pre-eminence of Alameda county in man, woman, children and every other product.

'FOR MOTHER' BOY TEMPTS DEATH

Lad Falls Off Precipice While Picking Poppies for Sick Parent.

Child Drops On Ledge From Which He Is Rescued by Firemen.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—A little boy is wandering in the dark today, great golden poppies flowering his way.

In this world he has been called a poor boy, but only Peter Pan can tell us what his glory will be if he crosses that misty borderland, where he is hovering, into the Never Never Land. Up on the top of Telegraph Hill wonderful poppies, grown in the heart of the sun, bend their dainty heads to the whistling trade winds and nod invitingly to the adventurer. They are like the sirens of the sea that hide cruel teeth of death beneath their beauty.

Little Albert Torre passed that way today and looked up at the carpet of gold. He remembered that his mother, who had been ill a long time in a dark room in their home at 2047 Grant avenue, wanted some flowers, and that father had said that all the money was needed for medicine and food.

GOLD OF POPPIES LURES.

Here were flowers, growing right above the rocky streets, as beautiful as any in the florist's window. It only needed a boy of courage to get them. Old Solomon Caw, who was riding in some far part of his domain at the time, through strange oversight, did not whisper a word of caution. Old Solomon was usually close at hand to advise little boys in all their ways.

Up, up, went the boy. Farther away grew the street and nearer the flowers. It was not as bad as it looked. At last he was on the slope overlooking Sansome street, gathering a great armful of the flowering beauties, holding them close in his small, sweaty, torn hands, thinking how his mother would like them and how they would light up her little room.

He stood a moment, silhouetted against the great panorama of hill and blue bay, a brave figure. Then he started to go down.

BLOSSOMS CARPET TRAP.

He was tired or the flowers hid the footway from him, or something happened. A slip, a slide, and the flower-laden arms were thrown wide in flight. He fell, the body striking ledges and rocks on its way to the street far below.

Just at the moment when those below who had seen the fall were closing their eyes, turning away, a hand was reached out and the boy was snatched miraculously from instant death. A ledge wider than the others received him. He lay there in a heap, a few poppies still clinging to him and falling around him.

A call was sent to the harbor police. In a few minutes truck No. 2 of the fire department rumbled that way. The firemen went at the job of rescue without pause. They swung a ladder sixty-five feet up the face of the cliff. The ledge where the boy lay was still sixty feet away.

Lieutenant McGowan and Truckman Egan left the top of the ladder and began the difficult scramble up the face of the cliff to the boy.

After several minutes of hard work, in which they came close to losing their foothold several times, they reached the still figure.

With infinite pains they carried it tenderly down, step by step, almost inch by inch, in spots.

At the ladder other firemen met them and the boy was soon in the Emergency Hospital.

It was found that he was suffering from a probable fracture of the skull and from a broken right thigh and leg and bruises.

He was removed to the French hospital, where little hope is held out for his life.

And mother's room is darker than ever.

EDUCATION TO CHECK DEATH RATE

High Infant Mortality Could Be Stopped, Declares Physician.

Prominent New York Doctor Cries Out Against Criminal "Race Suicide."

NEW YORK, June 3.—Dr. S. Josephine Baker, chief of division of child hygiene of the department of New York, and one of the best known women physicians in the country, made the statement today that we permit infants to die in a manner which is well nigh criminal "race suicide."

"In conserving the resources of a nation it seems to me we ought to start at first in the conservation of human life rather than the conservation of the more material resources."

"The problem of infantile mortality is one of the most difficult we have to meet in the division of child hygiene of the department of health in the city of New York. I believe that the excessive mortality is due primarily to ignorance and improper feeding and care. The fact applies to all the cities in the United States. The death rate of infants throughout the country has decreased 50 per cent in the last fifty years. This is due to the campaign of education that has been carried on by medical science."

EDUCATION OF MOTHERS.

"The two things needed to prevent the large infant mortality is the education of mothers in providing prepared food for the babies where the mothers cannot nurse them. "In this country the federal government has not taken up the question of infantile mortality, but practically every large city has, because the cities realize the enormous detriment to the community itself that this tremendous waste of life should go on. We who are really engaged in this work know that fully 60 per cent of these mortalities could be prevented."

"As the greatest proportion of infant mortality is due to ignorance, the means to prevent it must be education. It is necessary in this kind of educational work to make the personal appeal to the mother."

"LITTLE MOTHERS."

"In connection with the infant mortality a movement has originated in the division of child hygiene in the department of health of New York City, which has attracted a good deal of attention and which in my opinion is one of the greatest factors in the campaign. This is the establishment of the Little Mothers' Leagues. We find in this city as in every city in the country, that in large families the care of the babies is delegated in most instances to an older child.

Last year 151 mothers gave lectures in New York City to girls of 13 years of age on "How to Care for Babies." Then they formed in every part of the city where it was evident that the girls did look out for the babies, these Little Mothers' Leagues.

2000 GIRL MEMBERS.

"The children were taught at their schools meetings exactly how a baby should be dressed, fed and the exact way of preparing the baby's bed. We have seventy-one of these leagues with a membership of 2000 girls. They are not only a help to the babies who are taken care of by these girls, but when they have their own children they will know how to take care of them. I think this is one of the most valuable parts of the work."

"The minute people are willing to make a provision for the saving of life as they are for the prevention of crime, just so soon will they find these deaths preventable."

STUDENTS' HEALTH IS BEING GUARDED

Instructor in Hygiene Finds Defects and Warns the Parents to Act.

ALAMEDA, June 3.—The establishment of a department of health and hygiene in the Alameda schools under Samuel Downing, former vice principal of the Haight school, a Stanford graduate, has resulted in more student and better health for the scholars. The department was inaugurated last September.

Downing, after graduation from Stanford, fitted himself specially for the work by taking post-graduate courses in hygiene at the University of California and Harvard.

He is an ardent advocate of the open air classes, two of which he organized last term, one at Haight school under a large oak tree and the other at Everett school in a shed open to the air.

The pupils in both classes showed marked improvement after a month.

SUPERVISE THEIR PLAY.

Downing devotes a day a week to each school. He examines each pupil thoroughly, as well as supervising their play, that they may derive all the benefit possible from their recess time.

"This department, though new in this city, is used and recognized in many eastern and western cities, for educators have come to know the close relationship between health and good scholarship," Downing said.

"Only a few years ago there was no health supervisor in the public schools. The scholarship of the pupils naturally suffered."

"Now, the pupils are being educated along health lines. They are taught to realize what good care of their bodies will do. The result proved that they take more interest in their studies and school life."

PLAYTIME IS IMPROVED.

"Supervised play is another feature of modern grammar school life that is proving a great factor in the school life of the growing boy and girl. For boys baseball, basketball and football are provided, and for the girls folk dances and school yard games. This gives the proper outlet for their animal spirits and gives them a chance for that keen competition and fair play that has made baseball the great American game."

"The constant supervision of the children's health in the Alameda schools alone has proved that in several cases dangerous illness has been prevented. Reports have been made to the pupils' parents, who had given proper medical attention and thus prevented illness."

Oakland Tribune

Dear Sirs:—

We demonstrated to our satisfaction several weeks ago that the SUNDAY TRIBUNE has a reading clientele that is profitable to any consistent and energetic advertiser.

We announced through the SUNDAY TRIBUNE columns the sale of Fourth Avenue Heights property and realized the largest sale of real estate ever held on any individual day in Alameda County.

We believe the paper that is publishing local news of a social, financial and civic nature is deserving of exclusive and persistent patronage by Oakland merchants. If the promotion of real estate interests in Alameda County were left to San Francisco publications, Oakland would today be handicapped and would not have arrived at her present place in the list of cities of the Pacific Coast.

The Tribune is intimately associated with the growth of Oakland and its Sunday publication tends to create home trading and foster a better spirit of local pride. Its advertising rates are reasonable, based upon its extensive, responsive circulation.

$7500—Fine modern, side-entrance 2-story house of 7 rooms.

FIRST FLOOR.
Entire, finish waxed redwood; reception hall 9x12, connecting with stairs, living and dining room; living room, 12x15, open brick fireplace and mantel; dining room 15x16, panel walls, plate shelf, beamed ceiling, china closet, open fireplace; kitchen large, with cabinet cooler.

UPPER FLOOR.
Front bedroom 15x20, two closets and linen closets, stove flue; second bedroom 13x14; southwest bedroom 13x13, deep closet; west bedroom 13x13.3.6. Lot us show this to you.

N. B.—We sold the Adams Point residence we advertised last week. Another N. B.—When we contract and advertise a property it's worth buying. It costs us money to do it.

Must Be Sold

$4500—Modern home suitable for two families if desired; 9 rooms; 40 feet frontage; cement driveway; large garage; on one of Oakland's finest close-in residence streets, near Telegraph ave. Lot alone is valued at $3000. This has been reduced from $6500 and has been cut to the bone for a quick sale. Appointments to inspect it can be made through this office. Owner must sell to meet other obligations. (378)

Apartment House Site

$5500—40x130, in vicinity of Bankers Hotel; this less than $140 per foot; apartments could be erected that would pay a sure and splendid income without tying up a large amount of capital; build them classy and the right size and we will lease the buildings for you. Maybe we can give you some valuable pointers. We've had experience. (103)

For the Small Speculator

$1800—Everything close-in generally comes high. Here's one between two main business streets, near 28th st., with a fine lot, 20x100, and a small building. In a few years you will make a good profit, which is quicker than saving out of your wages. (13)

GEORGE W. AUSTIN

Lots Opposite De Fremery Park

16th and Magnolia streets, where the city has built tennis courts, children's playgrounds, etc.; only three lots left; $1250 each; fine location. Look at these and you will surely be interested.

$5250—Downtown Snap

Tenth st., three blocks east of Broadway; 50x100; fine site for apartments; house of 10 rooms and bath; opposite city park. (728)

Wheat Kind

of a place can be for such a low price? Absolutely a snap. Just think, a bungalow in Piedmont, 1/2 block from Oakland avenue; 5 rooms, bath, beam ceilings, fireplace, etc.; lot 40 feet frontage, for $7500. (737)

FOR EXCHANGE.

New building corner main blighted street; store and 4 flats; the best buy in Oakland; worth $10,000; rental value $900 a year. (3107)

I HAVE LOTS OF MONEY TO LOAN AT 6 AND 7 PER CENT.

F. F. PORTER, 1114 Broadway

$3700—Will buy a pair of flats on 28th st., bet. Telegraph ave. and Grove st., in first-class condition; on the sunny side of street, and easily worth $750 more than the asking price; this property combines both home and income; terms can be arranged.

$1600—5-room, high-basement cottage, on 36 st., and well rented; a choice little buy for income and advancement.

$2750—This is the best close-in speculation we have had on our books for months and I can personally recommend it as a splendid buy; it is a 50-ft. corner, east of Market st., and including interest at 6%, will buy a beautiful 3000 cash, balance easy terms.

$5300—A beautiful 8-room modern residence, extra well built, artistic interior finish; mantel, china closet, bookcase, etc.; terms can be arranged on this beautiful home with large lot; see it today.

$800—Not adjoining the corner of 3d and Chester sts.; you can positively make 50% on this choice bargain within 90 days.

$4500—Will buy a northeast corner, 60x125, in Adams Point; it is positively the best-located lot in this district and the owner, who is a non-resident, is sacrificing for immediate cash.

WE LOAN MONEY ON REAL ESTATE AT 6 AND 7 PER CENT.

WOMAN 101 YEARS OLD TO 'RIDE GOAT'

"Grandma" Kennedy Elected Member of Healdsburg Eastern Star.

SANTA ROSA, June 3.—Mrs. Slecta Kennedy, who is 101 years old, was last night elected a member of Sotoyome Chapter of the Eastern Star and two weeks hence she will be initiated. She is the oldest known person to have ever been initiated into a lodge and the Eastern Star folk at Healdsburg are planning something elaborate for the ceremonies on the night that "Grandma Kennedy rides the goat." Mrs. Kennedy is hale and hearty and the weight of more than 100 years has not borne heavily upon her. She is keenly alive to the things that are going on around her, still superintends her household duties and reads and writes without difficulty.

On her 100th birthday she took an automobile drive. She can run a motor car herself. She has resided near Healdsburg for over half a century and is a pioneer of the State.

There will be a large gathering of members of the Eastern Star from all over the county on the night of Mrs. Kennedy's initiation as a member of Sotoyome Chapter.

THOUSANDS VISIT FAMOUS SEA RESORT

SANTA CRUZ, June 3.—Not since Santa Cruz became famous as a watering resort was the summer season ushered in more auspiciously than tonight, when thousands of visitors mingled with the local population to share in the carnival of pleasure.

INSANE MAN SAYS OFFICER IS CRAZY

Finds That Sheriff Forgot the Commitment So Makes Out He Is Official.

AUSTIN, Texas, June 3.—Sheriff J. L. Boyd of Palestine came near being made the victim of a serious joke that was played on him by an insane patient whom he brought to the asylum here. The sheriff forgot to bring the commitment and the latter discovered this. When the two men arrived at the office of the superintendent the insane man stepped forward and introduced himself as the sheriff of Anderson county.

"I have an insane patient here," he said. "I failed to bring the commitment, and you will have to take my word for it."

Sheriff Boyd gasped in astonishment and hastily assured the superintendent that he was the sheriff and the other man the patient.

"Oh, that's all right, you can have your office here for a while," the superintendent answered, thinking to pacify the supposed insane man.

"That is one of the poor fellow's hallucinations," continued the insane patient. "See here, don't you go to looking up the up? I answered the real sheriff, excitedly, 'I am not crazy.'"

"They all say that," replied the superintendent.

"Well, I guess I'll be going," said the patient.

The superintendent began to suspect that perhaps a shrewd game of deception was being played. He detained the supposed sheriff until he could make inquiries and establish the identity of the two men.

MARRIAGE GUEST GIVEN A LICKING

Butts Into Ad Club Feast and Receives Considerable Rough Handling.

OMAHA, June 3.—A guest who came from either Chicago or Milwaukee to attend the wedding of Miss Jean Cudahy, daughter of Edward Cudahy, the packer, last night, broke into the banquet room of the Rome Hotel, where a banquet of the Omaha Ad Club was in progress, had a fight with the waiters, got kicked by the hotel manager and was arrested and taken to jail. Here he gave a false name and was released on bail, which he has forfeited rather than appear in police court.

The Ad Club banquet, attended by 250 business men of the city, was in progress when suddenly the big doors were thrown open and a young man rushed in. Seeing that he was an intruder, one of the waiters attempted to stop him and the couple ensued.

Miss Jean Cudahy was married today to Frank Wilhelm of this city. The marriage was the last festive event to occur in the Cudahy mansion in this city, as the entire family will next week move to Chicago to live.

MOTHER'S PLEA IS RAISED IN COURT

Asks Leniency for Her Son, Accused of Being White Slaver.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—In the court of Police Judge Shortall this morning there sat for two round hours a gray haired woman, Mrs. J. J. Glenny, to be called against her son, who was charged with violating the white slave law passed by the legislature.

When William Glenny, the accused, was finally ordered into custody on bail into tears, arose and addressed the court in this fashion:

"Mrs. Glenny, if my son has done what he is accused of, let him be punished. But, anyhow, I want to take this girl home with me and care for her. Let me do what I can to repair the wrong that has been done here. Beyond that all have to say is this: If God can forgive a wicked son, why cannot you do the same?"

The woman on account of whom Glenny was arrested is the mother of the accused. She has been taking her earnings for the past four years.

During the hearing, attorney Thomas O'Connor, counsel for the defense, and the court engaged in a wordy battle over the disposition of the case. O'Connor urged the court to grant a continuance to allow the defense to prepare for the trial. The court, however, was of the opinion that the matter was finally straightened out between them, and the court dismissed the case against Glenny on the statutory complaint. It was then that the court placed the ball at $1000 on the vagrancy charge.

STEAMSHIP COMPANY BULDS WAITING ROOMS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—With the completion of the new and commodious steamship offices and waiting rooms for the Charles R. McCormick Company at the foot of North Beach, the water front at North Beach now possesses an improvement nowhere else to be found on the front. With five steam schooners in their fleet plying between this and other coastwise ports the company found that hundreds of passengers compelling to board the vessels were compelled to wait upon the wharf until the ship's arrival. Although there are several other shipping concerns whose steamers arrive and depart at the same place, none of them possesses a move to make any improvements in the McCormick Company started construction of waiting rooms.

There are waiting rooms for both men and women. Every modern convenience is there, even to telephones.

SAILS WITH CAPACITY.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The Pacific coast steamer Governor, Captain Hanna, sailed for San Pedro today with over 400 tons of freight and seventy-six passengers. This is both freight and passenger capacity. The independent company is offered more business these days than the sturdy old Hanna can handle.

HAS 400 PASSENGERS.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The Pacific coast steamer Governor, Captain Hanna, sailed for San Pedro today with over 400 passengers and a capacity cargo of freight. There was more freight offered than could be taken on board.

GARDEN SCENE OF SUMMER WEDDING

Miss Anita Maillard Marries Temple Graves in Grounds of Her Home.

BELVEDERE, June 3.—A picturesque summer wedding took place at 12 o'clock noon, when Miss Anita Maillard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Maillard, became the bride of Temple Graves, the ceremony being performed in the beautiful garden that surrounds the Maillard summer home. Many friends of the Maillard family crossed the bay in a special boat in the morning to attend the wedding and the breakfast which followed. The Rev. Arch Perrin of the Church of the Advent of San Francisco officiated.

It was an ideal June picture in which the wedding was set. A bow of flowers and foliage had been formed into an altar, and before this the bride and groom and their attendants stood. Mrs. Edithman Sutton, a bride of a few weeks, was maid of honor. The other girls in the party were the Misses Marion Zeile, Dorothy Page, Leslie Page and Louise McCormick. Little Miss Marian Leigh Maillard was flower girl.

All of the young women were attired in dainty lingerie dresses made of sheer lace-trimmed material, with picture hats laden with flowers. The bride wore the conventional wedding gown of white satin and lace, the veil being clasped with orange blossoms.

The marriage is the climax of a romance that began two years ago, when the bride made a trip to South America. Bridgman, an engineer, was in charge of operations near Santiago. Later he visited San Francisco, en route to Manila, where he also was in charge of an engineering project. The Bridgman family is well known in Stamford, Conn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bridgman will visit Connecticut and linger for a time on the Atlantic coast. They will reside in a mining town in the mountains near Knoxville, Tenn., where Bridgman has built a home for his bride.

PREVENTION OF BLINDNESS AIM

Philanthropic Californians Organize a Society for That Purpose.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Mrs. Andrew S. Rowan, 1038 Vallejo street, San Francisco, has been elected president of the Prevention of Blindness Society, recently organized here.

Dr. C. S. G. Magel of San Francisco is secretary and Mrs. George I. Bucknall, 2433 Franklin street, is treasurer of the organization, which is composed principally of public-spirited physicians, women and citizens.

On the board of directors are the following: Mrs. J. J. Glenny, Dr. G. G. Magel, Dr. R. G. Woodruff, Dr. Adelardo Brown, Dr. George W. Merritt, Mrs. Aylett R. Cotton, Mrs. Elizabeth Asher, Mr. A. E. Gaudner, Dr. W. F. Snow, Mr. William Lathrop McClure, Miss Katherine Felton, Mrs. Ralph C. Harrison, Dr. H. Burt Ellis, Dr. William Ellery Briggs, Dr. Martin A. Meyer, the Rev. Cecil Marrack, Walter McClure and F. J. Murawski.

It is planned by the society to conduct an exhibit of pictures and literature during the National Education Association convention here in July. In connection with the exhibit an exhibit from the Russian State Department for the prevention of blindness.

It is claimed by members of the society that at least one quarter of all blind children in all the blind schools of this country are unnecessarily blind. This statement is based on claims that most of these children are doomed to lifelong blindness through carelessness of physicians at the time of their birth, or to the carelessness or ignorance of midwives.

Fully forty per cent of the cases of blindness, it is claimed by physicians, could be cured had they been attended to properly at the proper time.

ROANOKE BUMPED AS SHE CROSSES THE BAR

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The North Pacific steamer Roanoke, Captain F. J. Sen, arrived in port today with another tale of grief. While crossing outbound over the Columbia River bar the weather was a bit rough and the vessel bumped upon the bottom several times before crossing the bar. The 125 passengers knew nothing of the happening and the steamer continued down the coast as if nothing had occurred. Upon arrival here it was found that several of the plates had been bent. The Chief Engineer, Mr. Sen, concluded to hold the Roanoke here until damages could be repaired. The passengers booked through to San Pedro were shipped on the steamer Harvard.

DIVERS ARE TO RAISE TUG SUNK IN RIVER

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Diver G. A. Abrahamson, accompanied by his men, a complete diving and wrecking outfit, left for Napa Creek today to raise the tug Valiant, which was sunk a few days ago. At a point about 12 miles below Napa City the stern of the craft became stuck in the mud. All effort to move the tug into deep water failed. When the ebbing tide lowered the bow of the Valiant, the water ran into the craft's hold. Suddenly the mud on the bank gave way and the craft disappeared and settled at the creek bottom, twenty-five feet below the surface.

LOS MOLINOS NOW POSSESSOR OF STATION

LOS MOLINOS, June 3.—Work on the $600 station which the Southern Pacific Railroad Company has built at Los Molinos is completed and the station agent is now occupying the building. The company will park its right of way in conjunction with the grounds of the Los Molinos hotel. It is also putting in two miles of side track pursuant to its plan for the Los Molinos branch line. The principal stopping point between Garberville and Chico.

VETERAN FIGHTER SPRINGS SURPRISE

Holds His Own Against Top-Notch Welterweight in the Pink of Condition.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 3.—It was the wily old veteran of the welterweight class, not in the best condition, against the top-notch in that division in perfect physical trim, tonight at the Buffalo Athletic Association clubhouse when Mike (Twins) Sullivan and Jimmy Clabby met, and at the finish the veteran was still there, although a good deal more battered than he has finished in any of his other local engagements.

Clabby made it a battle at close quarters all the way and there is no doubt that he was a sufficient merchant marine to utilize its own opportunities. Several of the leading South American republics, on the other hand, are building special ships for the Panama trade.

BRIDE-ELECT IS GUEST AT "KITCHEN SHOWER"

MARTINEZ, June 3.—Social events in Martinez have been numerous during the past week, the most elaborate affair being given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Glass, who entertained at a "kitchen shower" in honor of Miss Elizabeth Ludden, who will become the bride of James F. Hoey on June 14.

About forty friends of the bride-elect were present and hearts were played during the evening, the prizes being awarded to Mrs. W. W. Morgan and M. W. Joost.

Miss Ludden was the beneficiary of another shower at the home of Miss Amy Morgan this week at cards.

Mrs. Harry Mudd entertained the members of the Thursday Afternoon Bridge Club at her home in Pine street on Thursday of this week. Mrs. L. C. Wittermeyer won the first prize and Mrs. C. G. Bacon the second honors.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY OF CATHEDRAL MISSION

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—The Cathedral mission of the Good Samaritan will celebrate the seventeenth anniversary of its founding and the first anniversary of its entering into its new building Sunday.

Services will be held at 11 o'clock a. m. and 7:45 p. m. At the morning service there will be a program on the holy communion and the annual report will be read by the vicar, the Rev. J. P. Turner.

This will review the work that has been accomplished by the dispensary, clothing bureau, clubs and other agencies of this working during the year. It will also contain an outline of what it is hoped to accomplish during the coming year.

MANY PERSONS WANT SAN FRANCISCO BONDS

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Correspondence now going on between San Francisco financial institutions and Clerk Hagerty of the board of supervisors indicates that within a short time all of the $1,125,000 water bonds not already disposed of will be sold.

One of the bondseekers desires to take all that is left. Another wants $150,000 worth.

It is desired to sell the bonds in San Francisco as far as possible, so that the interest paid by the city will go to its own people.

There is also in the hands of the clerk correspondence with an eastern concern which desires to arrange for marketing the entire $450,000 worth of bonds as their sale may be authorized.

BALLOON ASCENSION TODAY AT IDORA

Professor Frank Hamilton, the local aeronaut, will make the first ascension since his serious accident last spring, at Idora park this afternoon.

Hamilton, who has been in the ballooning business for the past seventeen years, met with his first bad accident last June at Idora park, when the balloon he was flying in fell away from the ground.

The daring airman broke a number of bones and was laid up in hospital for a couple of months. Idora patrons remember the thrilling ascent of Hamilton in past seasons, and his return to the sky-soaring sport will be watched by thousands today.
